COUNTY ASSESSOR MAKES REPORT TO STATE TAX BODY

Currens and Royalty To Take Report To Frankfort Today And Settle With Tax Commission.

LAND REDUCED BUT INTANGIBLES RAISED

Total 1935 Assessment For 1936 Taxes Revised By Board Super-visors $11,009,663.

County Assessor E. C. Currens and his deputy, Holly Royalty, will go to Frankfort today to make their settlement with the State Tax Commission. That body requested a raise of $400,000 in the Mercer tax assessment, but this was not complied with. What raise was made was on intangible properties, and the reductions were on land.

The report of the Board of Supervisors which recently completed work is reported by Assessor Currens as follows: 1935—assessment for 1936 taxes—Total raises $237,408, total reductions $20,395, net gain $217,013. The gain added to the first recapitulation of $10,792,650 makes the total 1935 assessment $11,009,663 as revised by the board.

The 1934 assessment was $10,859,612 and the gain for 1935 over the year before is $150,051. Assessor Currens says he is hopeful that the State Tax Commission will accept these figures as they are, as he does not see how the Commission can put an additional raise on the county's assessment.

Volumes Printed Decades Ago Bought By Mr. And Mrs. Pollard For Their Collection.

Several interesting old books have been added to their collection by Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Pollard. One printed in 1820, in perfect condition, with an almost unmarred leather back, is entitled "The General Instructor," with the sub-title, "Or the Office, Duty and Authority of Justice of Peace, Sheriffs, Coroners, Jaiors, Jurymen." Written by John Bradford, it was printed in Lexington 116 years ago. It is said to have a price now of $25. The book formerly belonged to the collection of an old man near Owensville, who recently killed himself because he had become obsessed with the belief that all his antiques were to be taken away from him for debt.

Another book entitled "Twyman Hogue, An Early Piety Illustrated" is a biographical sketch of a little boy with an excess of piety and learning, the son of Rev. Aaron Hogue, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Lebanon, and Jane Gilkerson Hogue. The child was born at Lebanon, Sept. 14, 1845 and died about his twelfth birthday. The biography is written by W. W. Hill, D.D., and was printed in Louisville in 1859. This little book is now listed at $7.50 by collectors. Mrs. Pollard purchased it at a second hand book store in Louisville.

SHEEP RAISERS DISCUSS LAMBS

County Agent C. F. Park, Others From Mercer Attend Meet At Lawrenceburg.

More than 100 sheep producers from five counties—Anderson, Mercer, Shelby, Woodford and Spencer—met in a sectional quality lamb conference at Lawrenceburg Saturday and discussed problems of vital importance to sheep raisers of these counties.

County Agent C. F. Park officially represented Mercer county at the meeting and others from Mercer county interested in sheep attended the session.

Special emphasis was placed on the growing of lambs for market. The importance of feeding both the ewe and the lamb so as to prevent stunting of growth was stressed. The importance of purebred flocks was discussed in detail and it was reported that not more than one half of Kentucky flocks are headed by purebred rams.

A better type of grade ewe, one that would be more satisfactory for quality lamb production and at the same time produce a clip of at least eight pounds of wool was discussed.

A packer-buyer representing one of the large meat packing companies spoke to the sheep raisers and warned them that buck lambs would be heavily penalized this year and that the farmers who expect their lambs to bring the highest market price must castrate the ram lambs.

Good pasture was enumerated as an important factor in raising good lambs for the market and also the importance of creep feeding of all lambs until such pasture is available was brought out.

Speakers appearing on the program were E. S. Good and Richard C. Miller, of the University of Kentucky; Cecil Embry, Louisville; E. A. Thomas, Shelbyville, and Art Zimatt, packer-buyer.

Other meetings of similar nature were scheduled for this week as follows: Monday, Independence; Wednesday, Owenton; Thursday, Cynthiana, and Friday, Williamstown.

Makes Pilgrimage To Home of His Ancestor

Descendants Of One Of The Founders Of Harrodsburg Finds Much To Interest Him Here.

An interested and interesting visitor in Harrodsburg this week was Harvey J. Scone, a descendant of one of the founders of Harrodsburg. Mr. Scone's home is at Sidell, Ill., but his present address is the DeSoto Hotel, Savannah, Ga. This was his first visit to the home of his ancestor.

A few days after the arrival of Capt. James Harrod and his band of 20 settlers in 1774 at the site of their future town, they were joined by Isaac Hite, a surveyor, and nine men. Among these was Jacob Sodowsky, the great-great-grandfather of Mr. Scone. He traces his lineage through his mother, Mrs. Emma Sodowsky Scone. His grandfather was Harvey Sodowsky; great-grandfather, Abraham Sodowsky; great-great-grandfather Jacob, who was a surveyor with Hite. Their ancestry goes back to Capt. James Sodowsky who landed at Jamestown in 1700. Mr. Scone says that the name Sodowsky is often corrupted into Sandusky, but his branch has kept the original spelling. He carried away with him a number of books and pamphlets regarding the history of Harrodsburg of which his ancestor was one of the original settlers.
