

THE HOUSE OF HAZARDS

By MAC ARTHUR

TWENTY - ONE YEARS AGO

FROM THE HERALD FILES

August 27, 1915

Miss Alide Meredith will leave in a few days for Trenton, Neb., where she has accepted a position as assistant principal of the high school.

J. M. Roddy, former pastor of the local Baptist church, preached Sunday for the newly installed pastor, Rev. W. H. Brengle.

City politics is living up with the following candidates announced for Commissioners of Harrodsburg: Robert Edger, I. C. James, L. B. Givens, John I. VanArsdall, Riker VanArsdall, James L. Isenberg, Lafon Riker, James Bruner.

Anderson Lewis, Negro bootlegger, who has paid over $2,000 in fines here, is again in the toils of the law. He was caught by officers near McAfee coming from Lawrenceburg with a fifteen gallon load.

Judge Thomas M. Cardwel, one of the most prominent citizens in the city, died Thursday, August 26, 1915 at 5 o'clock, in the morning. He would have been 70 years old his next birthday. As a mere boy he enlisted under Gen. John Hunt Morgan. In 1887 with John G. Pulliam, he was one of the establishers of the Harrodsburg Sayings, afterward The Herald.

The new A. D. Price Hospital will open on October 1, the committee in charge has announced.

About 20 citizens were here Tuesday from Adair county inspecting Mercer's good roads. Adair will vote next month on issuing a $150,000 bond issue for road improvements.

The Mercer County Colored Fair opened its second annual exhibition Wednesday.

The VanDiver family will hold their big reunion here on September 2 at the fair grounds. This will be the second held in Harrodsburg. The address of welcome will be given by Mr. Allan Tupper VanDiver.

There were more than 1,000,000 visitors in Berlin during the two weeks, of which 150,000 were from foreign countries.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

PAS

No room for word "Never"

Back in 1926, I happened to be riding with a vigorous middle-aged man who had just sold his business for several million dollars. The contract provided that he should remain active in the company, but his intention was to take things easy. "I am never going to let myself have any more financial worries," he said. "In addition to my stocks, I have $700,000 in the moss-back bonds. Whatever happens, they can never get me."

In 1929, his stocks began a nose dive. By 1931, he thought the depression was over sufficiently so that he could make a large commitment on behalf of one of his friends. The commitment nearly wrecked him. For five years he has worked harder and worried more than ever before.

The other night I saw him again. His business is getting better, his stocks are improving. Always an optimist, he said: "This country is going to have another profitable period. The question will be, Have we learned anything? We didn't know enough to salt away our winnings before; shall we know enough to do it this time?"

Another man remarked recently: "My principal mistakes have been in believing too much in the country but in believing too little. I sold some perfectly good securities in 1932 because I was finally persuaded that this depression was different, that, however nobly the country had recovered before, it could never recover again. Those same stocks are selling today at prices which I thought I never should live to see."

Here are two smart men. One was sure the depression could never go far enough to involve him; the other was equally sure that recovery would never come in sufficient proportions to lift him "off the hook."

Both are intelligent; and both are wrong. This is a big country; it is big enough to contain almost every thing. But there is one little word that apparently is too big even for it—that is the little word never.

Laughter is golden

At an informal party I met Herb Williams, that comedian who is a vaudeville drollery has made me laugh a score of times until my stomach muscles ached. Earnestly and reverently I pumped his hand. "If I should never see you again," I said, "please remember that you carry with you always the undying regard of a very grateful customer." Being a top-notch he is, of course, modest. He seemed a bit surprised that anybody should say "thank you."

He is one of a precious little group of folks to whom I should like to make similar acknowledgement. Are they not the world's most valuable citizens? Of almost every kind of talent there is an over-supply. We have plenty of bankers, lawyers, writers, income tax collectors and investment counselors. But only a handful of men who can literally make you laugh until you cry. If there ever should be another war, surely they should be put in a special classification under the draft.

One of Charles Lamb's essays records a touching conversation between an elderly man and his wife. They are recounting the joys of their young days—the theatres they attended, the books they bought, the sacrifices they made together. At length she says wistfully: "Yes, we have more things now, but we do not laugh so much."

Laughter is golden, and youth should lay up as much of it as possible in the bank of memory. Only the most important business should be allowed to interfere with the chance for extra laugh.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN' BY PETE GETTYS

Two hundred seventy-nine million acres is a considerable stretch of land—cost a good deal just to ride over it—an' when you think of replantin' it in forests—treatin' it in other necessary ways to prevent rapid run-off of big rains, an' all that's required to stop such floods—it's goin' to cost a lot of dollars, an' the fellers not livin' in the flood districts ain't very strong for it—nor near so hot about it as the fellers who stood by an' saw his farm an' home an' stock washed away. Sure, he thinks good old Uncle Sam ought to do somethin' about it—so there you are!

Did you ever taste a "garlion"? Never did—even see one, but it's a cross between garlic an' onion.

Surely you've eaten "topeppo"—that's somethin' you can have when company comes, it's a cross between a tomato an' a pepper.

An' they are growin' cucumbers on vines that look like lemons—a great big cucumber as long as your arm an' that they say it retains its moisture and crispness.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache; headache, dizziness, loss of energy; leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

An' did you ever see string beans 3 feet long?

A Jap feller out in California has developed a melon that's something fancy an' ought to take a prize at the County Fair. This melon has a smooth yellow rind—is bigger'n a cantaloupe an' has delicious salmon-colored meat.

But talkin' about melons—one feller made the statement that the meat in a water melon wasn't red until you cut it—and who knows?

Plane Altered to Carry Invalid

An interesting case of the use of an airplane as an ambulance occurred in Pennsylvania when a man to whose spine a part of his shinbone had been grafted was flown from a hospital in Philadelphia to his home in Bloomsburg. Due to the fact that his wound would require several months to heal, a special carriage had to be constructed in the interior of the plane so that his trip might be made in a prone position. Physicians interested in the case explained that the operation which had been performed was most unusual as it was only the fifth of its kind to be performed in this country.—Scientific American.

Ideal of Conservation

Game management pronounces no doctrine, it simply asks for land and the chance to show that farm, forest and wild-life products can be grown on it, to the mutual advantage of each other, of the land owner, and of the public.

True Observation

"It is disappointing," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "that wise and friendly precepts reach obstinate ears so much less promptly than the roar of artillery."

"POOR CIRCULATION" MOSTLY TIRED NERVES

So many people come to see me, telling me, among other things, that they have "poor circulation." The reasons for this mistaken idea is because their feet are more or less numb, with "creepy" sensations, tingling and almost invariably, cold, or uncomfortably cool. These symptoms they ascribe to poor circulation.

True, it feels just like that; feels as if the blood could not get through the tissues fast enough and was trying to force its way—which isn't the case at all; those tiny blood-vessels may be as open as they ever were, with the pulse rate and arterial pressure normal. The coldness, tingling and numbness, however, will bring the "poor circulation" opinion every time, when the patient tells me about the failing legs, or arms below the elbows.

It's a nerve proposition every time. When the brain and spinal cord become very very tired, fagged, weary from long over-taxing, the twigs of the nerves farthest from the centres will manifest their exhaustion by lack of healthy function. To prescribe a heart tonic for such a condition when it only needs rest, would be stupid. The general tonic may be useful and, particularly, the nerve tonic which, however, is only supplemental to the first requirement—rest for the brain and cord.

If those leg symptoms are accompanied by high blood pressure, it is extremely necessary that the patient consult his physician at once—and it isn't "poor circulation" even in this emergency; it's still a nerve-proposition that caused the feeling, though the circulation may be running riot.

The stork brought twins to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William May Kingwood, W. Va., the second time in less than fifteen months.

If you feel...

- tired
- run-down
- nervous
- out of sorts

THERE is usually a definite reason for such complaints...so, now let's reason sensibly.

Don't try to get well in a day...this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel rundown...a frequent sign that your blood-cells are weak, with a tendency towards anemia—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve—by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic to feel like yourself again. S.S.S. Co.
