Home-Made Pump Irrigates Ohio Farm

Apparatus Costing $150 In All Helps Produce Good Crops Despite The Drouth.

One Ohio farmer beat the drouth with an improvised irrigation system.

With the help of the Little Scioto River, an old automobile engine and 2,000 feet of pipe, S. B. Stowe, near Marion has produced good crops.

The motor draws water from the river through a twenty-foot pipe, forces it through a three-quarter inch pipe at seventy gallons a minute, then into a two-inch section of fibre hose which expands and when the pressure reaches ten pounds, permits the water to seep out evenly over the soil.

Stowe found that an inch of water weekly is required for the parched ground and that 27,000 gallons cover one acre with an inch pipe.

At forty-foot intervals are two-inch. He said the irrigation outfit cost him $150.

The Woman's Angle

By Nancy Hart

Skeptics who claim there's nothing new under the sun fail to reckon with the ingenuity of shoe designers. It won't be long before glass heels flash on the trim slippers of modern Cinderellas. Made of opaque glass, they come in lovely jewel colors to harmonize with the rich satins and brocades of the new evening shoes. Next in the procession of novelties is the aerated rubber heel, a model which makes it literally possible to walk on air. It has an air chamber in the back which collapses when a step is taken, thus throwing the weight of the body toward the front of the heel where many orthopedic experts say it belongs.

And while we're on the subject of shoes here's some timely advice from a well-known orthopedic surgeon. "No one should continue to wear a spike heel at all times," he declares. "A dress shoe or sitting shoe is not a walking shoe. If ladies must indulge their fancy for high heels, they should take a brisk walk daily in bare feet or at least in low-heeled shoes."

According to a home economist, most women pound their heels over hard floors for the equivalent of three to eight miles a day in the performance of their household tasks. If they wear spike heels, she says, their resistance will have sunk to zero by the time the dinner hour approaches. Well-fitting shoes with comfortable built-up heels are recommended by this expert for women who must stand on their feet for lengthy periods at business, in the home, or when engaged in outdoor activities.

America Grows In 150 Years

Strides Of United States From Struggling Colonies To Present Is Almost Unbelievable.

This nation of ours has only 6 per cent of the land area and only 7 per cent of the population of the world. But it has 32 per cent of the world's railroads, 58 per cent of its telephone and telegraph facilities, 36 per cent of its developed water power, 76 per cent of its automobiles, and 5 per cent of its radios.

There is no educational system in the world that can compare with that in the United States. Our standard of living is so high, compared with that of other countries, that we consume half the world's coffee half of its sugar, half of its rubber, one-third of its coal, two-thirds of its petroleum and three-fourths of its silk.

The workers' share of our entire national income has grown 40 per cent in 1850 to 70 percent at the present time. As a result more than half the farmers own their own farms, some 15,000,000 families own their own homes, three out of five families own automobiles and have telephones and electricity.

The United States now has 65,000,000 individual life insurance policies, and it also has 45,000,000 individual savings bank depositors.

This is the United States. This is a true picture of the nation which in the short space of a century and a half has risen from the status of 13 struggling colonies to one of the mightiest countries in the world today, a democracy where liberty of thought and freedom of opportunity has made for a contented and prosperous people.

Yes, this is the United States.

Bananas Migrate, Too

When Captain Cook discovered Hawaii in 1778, he found 50 varieties of bananas, brought by the natives' ancestors on their Pacific migrations by canoe. Today Hawaii ships this fruit to other parts of the United States.

Numerous Sinuses

Human beings have from 20 to 30 sinuses in their heads.

Something new in handbags is made of cocoon leather. Honest-to-goodness, it's made from the cocoon the butterfly spins, later dried and pieced together in three-quarter inch squares. It looks like mosaic and is nice with tweeds or woolen accessories.

Beauty specialists advise that it may be harmful to try to remove freckles. Prevent them by staying out of the sun. But if they do appear, here is a simple and harmless home-made recipe of a Frenchwoman that is well worth trying and may make the freckles less conspicuous: Beat the white of an egg and the juice of one lemon together in a mixing bowl. When the mixture is frothy add one cup of water and one tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Beat it again, then spread over the freckled area and leave on all night. Naturally, you should cleanse your skin well before you start.

When broiling ham for breakfast or any other meal spread it first with prepared mustard. That gives the finishing savory touch to this favorite meat. To bake a slice of ham trim off border of fat, chop the fat and mix with brown sugar and prepared mustard. Spread this on ham and bake half an hour.
