

LAWS RELATING TO FEES OF COURT OFFICERS

"All fees shall be due and payable within two months after the services are rendered," and if not paid "shall be distrainable on and after the 1st of January next ensuing the rendition of the services."

Costs, for which judgment has been rendered, are due and collectible by execution at end of ten days.

Each party to a suit is individually liable to the officers of the Court for his own costs, incurred by him, without regard to the settlement of the case, and any agreement with others as to payment of same, will not release them from their liability to the officers who performed the services for them.
