News of Modern Women

Mary E. Hamilton, the first woman member of the police force of the City of New York, recently issued practical instructions to mothers to protect their children from kidnappers. 1—Never leave your child unprotected. 2—Be certain that you can identify your baby if it should be stolen by preserving a photograph of his footprint.

Good advice to all mothers from Policewoman Hamilton.

When Congress assembles in January there will be six women in the House of Representatives: Mrs. Isabelle Greenway, Arizona; Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, California; Mrs. Virginia E. Jenckes, Indiana; Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Massachusetts; Mrs. Mary T. Norton, New Jersey, and Mrs. Caroline O'Day, New York. After fifteen years of federal women suffrage, there are only six women in the Congress, a real challenge to feminists!

The three oldest in Congressional service are Mesdames Kahn, Norton and Rogers, all of whom have served since 1925.

Miss May Anderson, director of the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, has announced that her Bureau is studying the servant problem. The study shows that the domestic worker has suffered more during the depression than any other class of women workers. A reading list of publications on household employment for both mistresses and maids has been prepared by the Bureau.

One lone woman will sit in the Senate of the United States during the next session. Mrs. Hattie Caraway of Jonesboro, Arkansas.

In 1840, Miss Harriet Martineau, British Journalist, visited the United States, and found that women had seven occupations, five in the home and two outside, bookbinding and typesetting. As 1940 nears, American women are found employed in 500 occupations. Surely a Century of Progress for women.

The Public Works Administration has allotted $20,218,000 for carrying out 613 projects for women in forty-one states. Types of work in which women will be employed include: Library work, Braille transcription, art, music, clerical work, research, landscape beautification and community service.

Many women who study law do not practice it. The Law School of the University of California has reported that about 7 to 8% of the students are women; that of 70 women graduates from the school since 1908, only 23 are engaged in legal work. Perhaps the reason lies in the honest opinion of the Dean of the Berkeley Law School, "It is clear that women graduates in law from our School have much less opportunity to succeed than men."

Mrs. Harriet Hanson, frontiers-woman, leader and guide near Lowman, Idaho, lives 28 miles off the beaten track and her nearest neighbor is eight miles away. But with a telephone and radio she feels in touch with the world. It often takes her two or three days to go for the mail. She holds the record for having killed one of the biggest cougars in that section.

Among those who helped to bring holiday cheer to New York's millions was Miss Jessie Craig Adam, carillonist of the Church of the Ascension in lower Fifth Avenue. There are two other women carillonists in the United States, both in Massachusetts. Mrs. Dorothy Birchard Mulroney of Springfield and Mrs. Ruth Muzzy Conniston of Cambridge.

Miss Elizabeth Knowlton, a Vassar graduate, holds the record for having achieved the highest altitude in mountain climbing by a woman. She has climbed the Canadian Rockies, the Selkirk and the Alps.

OUR DAILY BREAD

One never-knows the satisfying taste Of bread until he earns it . . . Better still

To plow the stubborn earth, to plant the waste And carry the threshed wheat down to the mill.

Bread that one gains by sweat is better than

The proffered loaf . . . The gift of luxury

Will never sing into the heart of man As will his triumph over poverty. Once the soiled hands of Labor were not held

In high repute, but now our daily prayer

Is not for gifts of bread . . . Our pleas have welled From weary hearts that have too much to bear

But with new courage for the bitter moil

We pray to earn our bread by honest toil.

KATE SMITH BOOKED TO VISIT KY. LEGISLATURE

WHO SELLS ELECTRICITY CHEAPER?
Government Agencies Report That Commercial Power Companies Offer Lower Rates

A GOOD many people honestly believe that government ownership of electric power plants (especially municipal government ownership) offers the public many advantages—particularly the advantage of lower rates for service.

Maybe you are such a believer. Maybe not. But as a taxpayer (and who isn't?) you will be interested in the following facts:

The United States Bureau of the Census reports, after a nationwide survey, that municipally owned plants sell electricity for an average price of 3.1 cents a kilowatt-hour, while commercial power companies (including our own group) get an average price of only 2.7 cents a kilowatt-hour.

And the Federal Power Commission reports, after a nationwide survey . . .

That the average service rates of municipally owned electric plants are "extremely high" for properties exempt from taxation and capital charges.

That, while commercial power companies pay from 10 per cent to 18 per cent of their gross earnings in taxes and must also earn a fair return on their capital investment, almost all municipal plants wholly or partly evade these charges.

That, in spite of this differential in their favor, the municipal plants collect more per kilowatt-hour for their service than commercial electric companies receive.
