

POETIC WAR ON AT FORT HARROD

Friendly Enemies Scalp Each Other
With Pens; Leave Tomahawks
And Knives To Indians.

War has broken out at Fort Harro. The friendly enemies are scalping each other with pens, instead of the knives used by the Indians on the old pioneers. Nerves caused the war. The nervous habit of Curator H. C. Wood when he is idle of humming a tuneless tune as he drums time on any article at hand, warped the nerves of his temperamental assistant, Mrs. E. Magoffin Hardin. She fired the first poetic shot:

Sing before breakfast,
Sing before dinner;
Sing like a saint
Or sing like a sinner.
Oh, let your voice
To the heavens resound;
But please don't do it
When I'm around.

Wood
To sing before you
Would waste my time,
For I would be casting
Pearls before swine.

Hardin
Then why must you warble,
Cast pearls before swine,
Give us all indignation,
And mark your own time?
We like the beat of marshal feet,
We like the thrum of drum;
But heaven save us from the bore,
Who beats his time on shelf or floor!

Wood
He may beat time on shelf or floor—
But tho' he tried it o'er and o'er
He'll ne'er beat sense, it may be said,
Into a very empty head.

Hardin
Your understanding in your feet
Tho' large, is on the ground,
Hence what you say or what you do
Is woefully unsound.

STOLE POTATOES FROM GARDEN IN STANFORD

The lowly spud is becoming so scarce and high priced owing to the drouth that it has been elevated into the class of articles worth stealing. One night this week thieves raided the garden of Rev. R. B. Baker, at Stanford, and stole most of his potatoes.

PICNIC ENJOYED IN SUNDAY SCHOOL CONTEST

The Pathfinders class of men in the Presbyterian Sunday school, taught by Mrs. T. C. Dedman, were guests of the class of young women taught by Mrs. G. A. Curry at a merry late afternoon picnic Thursday at Lane's Camp on Herrington Lake. The entertainment was the result of an attendance contest between the two classes in which the men beat the women. In addition to an excellent feast, an amateur "radio" tryout proved a source of much entertainment with Miss Clara Chappelle acting the part of "Major Bozo," and a number of "amateurs" putting on a varied performance.

Blue and White Edging

Borders of lavender ageratum and white alyssum have become deservedly popular features of the summer garden. This is a combination easily within the skill of the most inexperienced gardener, and requires merely the making of a shallow drill a foot and a half from the edge of the bed and sowing ageratum seed. The bed six inches from the edge of the bed sow a parallel row of sweet alyssum.

Thin the plants when the seed germinates to six inches apart and the lavender and white edging is started. All that is necessary after that is to keep it weeded and watered.

There are several dwarf and compact ageratums, and they are one of the most satisfactory of bedding plants because of their freedom of bloom. They furnish a sheet of blue bloom until the frost, not caring much whether the rain is a torrent, or the sun baking hot. They grow quickly from seed sown outdoors in warm weather, the plants frequently catching up with transplanted stock from the hotbed or indoor seed-box. There are white varieties, but the lavender, solid colors are best.

The snow white flowers and clean attractive scent of sweet alyssum has made it a continuous favorite. It makes wide mats as the season progresses and gives more and more bloom until freezing weather stops it. Sow it in the ground it is to grow in, as transplanting is harmful and unnecessary; thin to six inches apart. This will soon give you a solid mat of foliage almost hidden by the bloom.

A few seeds planted in a window box will give a fine edging to drop over the sides of the box. Both ageratum and alyssum will flourish in almost any soil, but they require a full amount of sunshine to do their best.

The miniature Mexican marigolds, with ferny foliage studded with tiny yellow flowers is often planted with the ageratum and makes a showy edging. It should be sown in a row in the same manner as the alyssum and thinned to six inches apart. It can be more easily transplanted than either the alyssum or ageratum.

BUREAU ADVISES IN FERTILIZER PLACEMENT

For the benefit of back-yard gardeners as well as American farmers who use $175,000,000 worth of commercial fertilizer in a year, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Engineering told members of an Estes Park, Colo., convention this week how to get the most value out of the high tonnages they use.

The bureau and other agencies have been studying fertilizer placement for 13 different crops in 16 states, and find fertilizer is a great benefit to corn, cotton, beans, potatoes, beans, peas, cabbage, spinach, and tomatoes when applied in a band at each side of the row. Placement about two inches to the side of the seed or plant and about three inches below the surface of the ground, is best in most cases. Most effective location of the band differs somewhat with the crop, soil and weather conditions, and with the amount of fertilizer. Broadcast applications produce poorer results. It was found. Planting machines equipped to place fertilizer in a band at the side of the row, especially for corn and potatoes, are already available.

HEROES OF AMERICAN HISTORY

THE GREAT TRAIL BLAZER!

Boone was born on a frontier farm, one of eleven children. He liked to hunt in the woods and became self-reliant and a fine backwoodsman. Together with his family and a group of settlers he founded Booneborough in Kentucky, and built a fort to resist the Indian attacks.

DANIEL BOONE

Once, when there was a scarcity of salt, Boone went to Blue Licks to get a supply. He was captured by the Indians, brought back to their village and became one of their tribe. He discovered a scheme to attack the settlers and, escaping from the Indians, he traveled day and night through the forest to warn the settlement and save it.

As the settlers stayed to fill up Kentucky, Boone lost all his lands and moved to Missouri. He lived to be 88 years old but remained a pioneer and hunter to the last.

CINCINNATI OFFERS GARDENING COURSE FOR IDLE

Another activity for idle hands has been offered in Cincinnati in a free six-weeks gardening course for the unemployed, just opening. Sponsored by the Committee on Opportunities of the Adult Education Council, this course is to be conducted by experts in every phase of vegetable, flower and lawn growing, according to Miss Helen Gregory, secretary of the council.

Prof. O. T. Wilson, head of the University of Cincinnati botany department, and M. E. Bottomley, professor of landscape architecture, head the list of eight instructors who will teach subjects designed to make experts out of amateur tillers of the soil. The subjects delve into botany, planting, cultivating, and care of every variety of plant life. Three two-hour classes per week have been scheduled.

"The classes are particularly designed for unemployed men whose work or profession has been gardening or for those who wish to become gardeners," stated Miss Gregory. "The material will be presented simply but completely so that those who enroll may have the opportunity of improving their skill to the utmost, increasing their chances for employment and better wages. The enrollment, however, has not been restricted to unemployed. One of our classrooms is the city's most beautiful botanical gardens and the other, one of the community gardens, where unemployed may have the free use of land for gardens of their own."

SHOWER BRINGS GIFTS TO FAMILY THAT LOST BY FIRE

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Darland whose household goods and clothing were lost when their house burned, are grateful for the gifts they received in the miscellaneous shower given them Friday by Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Sparrow and Mrs. Jack Sparrow. They are tenants on the farm of Mr. Jack Sparrow.

Those who attended the shower or sent donations were: Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Forsythe, Mr. and Mrs. George Stoppel, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Sparrow, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sparrow and daughter, Mrs. Tom Sparrow, Mr. W. F. Bailey, Mrs. Joe Farley and daughter, Mrs. Clayton Bugg, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Adams and daughters, Mrs. J. P. Leonard, Mrs. Sara Sampson, Mrs. James Alexander, Sr., and daughter, Mrs. J. Frank Davenport, Mrs. Sam Tatum and daughter, Mrs. Douglas Matherly and daughters, Mrs. John Freeman, Mrs. Ben Scroggins, Mrs. McKinley Anness, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hallett, Mr. Joe Wilham and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wilham, Mrs. Arch Woods, Mrs. Burks Trisler, Miss Effie Smith, Rev. and Mrs. G. Whitcomb Eilers, Mrs. A. D. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Matherly and daughters, Mr. May, Miss June Wiley and others whose names were not secured.

CURE FOR HAY FEVER CLAIMED BY HOSPITAL

A new 98 per cent successful cure for hay fever was claimed Sunday by physiotherapy department of St. George's hospital after five years of intensive research and experimentation.

The treatment, which was published, consists of the electrical application of a coating of ionized zinc to sensitive tissues of the nostrils by a process similar to electroplating. Immunity for the hay fever season was claimed to be obtained from three treatments and permanent immunity from treatment at the beginning of two successive seasons.

MILLIONS UNWANTED

Rufus C. Holman, Oregon state treasurer, doesn't know what to do with nearly 12 million dollars. In a letter to Governor Martin, the state treasurer explained that the money is a public fund. "The banks apparently do not want his money," he said, "and I do not know what to do with it." Under Oregon law, 2 per cent interest must be obtained on public fund investment.

PIONEER PARK NOTES

(H. C. Wood, Curator)

The actions of the weather-man, At last has shown he's sane, Though I thought he had forgotten, Just how to make it rain.

Despite the heat and dry weather the attendance at the Park on last Sunday was quite a good one. Alas! those who came from a distance and were eager to see the far-famed blue grass, found only a brown looking substance, dried into a semblance of hay, the blue grass was not even green.

F. S. Roddie and wife of Atadena, California, were recent guests of the Park, and were friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ralf Goddard. The Roddies are also on their way to Europe whither Mr. Goddard and son have gone.

Mr. Claud Davis and son, of Chicago, were at the Park last Saturday. Mr. Davis is a former Harrodsburg boy and the son of Mr. Henry Davis, once a banker here.

Prof. Sam Nicholl, of Lexington, formerly Superintendent of the Public school here, was one of the Sunday guests at the Park.

Miss Rose Marimon, of White Rock, Utah, was at the Park on Monday, a guest of Mrs. Maxie Sanders. Miss Rose is the daughter of our former townsman, Mr. Lee Marimon, while her mother was formerly Miss Nannie Forsythe.

This Monday morning, while the thermometer was flirting around the nineties, a gentleman and his wife visited the Park and said they had visited the Park last winter, but had only gotten as far as the Mansion, when the heavy drift of snow between it and the Fort made it almost impossible to reach the latter, so they gave up the attempt. If we could only temper the present weather with a little of that of last winter, how delightful it would seem. Say "arf" or "arf."

SAVINGS ACCOUNT 117 YEARS OLD

The oldest savings bank account, in all probability, in the United States rests in the Bank for Savings, New York City, the oldest savings bank in the State. This was discovered by WPA workers of the Federal Writers' Projects.

The account was opened on August 16, 1819, in the name of John S. Thorne, a newborn child, about six weeks after the opening of the bank. The amount deposited was $10, augmented, the following year, to another $5. None of the money was ever withdrawn, and Mr. Thorne, as records show, lived to a ripe old age. After his death, his heirs for sentimental reasons kept the account active by presentation of the pass-book for the crediting of interest due.

Up to January 1, 1936, the original deposits had been drawn as noted $3,455.03 in interest bringing the value of the account today to $3,470.83.

ICE CREAM TAX IS OBJECT OF SUIT

Aniello Nocero, ice cream manufacturer of Covington, applied in Franklin Circuit Court Tuesday for injunction against enforcement of the omnibus tax act taxing ice cream and other articles. The suit is a test of the constitutionality of the new law.

The provision declared the act unconstitutional, discriminatory and would "completely destroy his business and that of others similarly situated."

DANVILLE DOGS MUZZLED

With the announcement that two small children in Danville had been bitten Friday by a mad dog, the Boyle Board of Health ordered all dogs to be muzzled for thirty days.

VISITOR FALLS INTO LAKE HERRINGTON

Last Sunday Dr. and Mrs. M. B. O'Brien and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rose, of Indiana, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter VanDiver, who in the afternoon took their visitors to Lake Herrington. Returning from a boat ride Mrs. Rose suddenly became ill, presumably from the heat, and fell from the boat into the water, not far from the landing. Mr. Rose and Mrs. VanDiver caught her and held her above water until the life guard arrived and she was taken to a nearby cottage and revived. Later she was brought to Harrodsburg and after treatment seemed to suffer no ill effects.

Eight Safety Rules For Auto Drivers

- 1—Don't speed. Reckless driving saves too little time to risk your life and your family's in a car that is out of control.
- 2—Don't drive when you are sleepy. Stop at the side of the road—off the pavement—and relax. Smoke, or even sleep a little rather than drive when you are groggy.
- 3—If you have been drinking alcoholic beverages in any considerable quantities, don't get behind the wheel. Let some one drive who hasn't been imbibing.
- 4—Keep on your own side of the road at all times, respecting the white line, particularly in rounding curves.
- 5—Get into the habit of noticing the warning signs the state and county have erected along the sides of roads. "Through highway," "bad curve," "steep hill," all mean danger. Take warning.
- 6—In making right and left turns signal your intention clearly and far enough ahead so the man behind will know what to do.
- 7—Have your brakes, lights, horn, and steering equipment in good repair. You are risking the lives of everyone on the road if you don't.
- 8—In case of doubt, let the other fellow have the right of way. It isn't much comfort to learn, after some one in your car has been slashed or maimed in a crash, that you were technically in the right.
