Gentlemen:-

I believe our contract calls for a statement of business done in the corresponding months last year in order to compare with my receipts during the pending of the contest which commences March 1st, in order to estimate the guaranteed increase. My legal adviser says it would be best to have your representative come here and see the books and make out his own figures and also make some definite arrangements as to how the bond shall be liable if there is no increase. I will send you statement if you wish it, but offer you access to my books any time, but think it is better to have a complete understanding, don't you? Prospects are good for a good contest, but an explicit understanding is the proper thing. The firm who put on a contest here recently had some trouble on that score, which we will seek to avoid.

Yours truly,

T.S. Orr, Ed.
