Stone Used as Calendar

The ancient Incas called a stone sun dial Inti-Huatana, or "Place where the sun was tied." The Incas used Inti-Huatana to give their alphabet a good work-out as well as to keep track of the seasons. When Inti-Huatana got hot, they knew it was summer; when Inti-Huatana was wet they knew it was raining.

Purpose of Banding Birds

Banding is done to make possible the scientific study of the habits and travels of migratory birds. Investigators trap the birds, attach numbered bands and release them. Information concerning each banded bird is filed in Washington, and when the birds are captured again reports are filed and the data traced.

PIONEER PARK NOTES

(H. C. Wood, Curator)

March is surely versatile. As present records show, From balmy winds and sunny skies To blizzard, ice and snow.

Among the schools that are early spring visitors one was from Whitley City last week. Each spring the pupils from this place visit the park.

An encouraging sign that the winter is about to end is the fact that several red bird couples have appeared at the Park and have been considering some building sites for the near future. The stockade seems to assure them security of home-life which they greatly value.

As a large number of our visitors come from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, we hope that the river between will not get on such a rampage as to shut off travel, not cause any of these states to lose heavily like those places further east because of the great inundations that have brought havoc and ruin in these flooded areas.

George S. Griffin, of Mt. Vernon, and J. E. McGurk, of London, Ky., were visitor at the Park on Monday.

A party of ten or twelve young people from the University of Chicago visited the Park the first of the week. They were spending their spring vacation in seeing Kentucky and seemed to enjoy their holiday immensely.

Recent visitor at the Park were Miss Gladys Campbell, of Chicago, and Mrs. Kathleen Froster Campbell, also of Chicago, who attended college with Miss Elizabeth Roberts, author of "The Great Meadow," the principle scene of which is laid at old Fort Harrod.

Instead of a lot of defunct fish as we feared engaged in apparently solid ice during the cold spell, the pool has almost double the population it had when winter began, and they are a very lively lot of swimmers too.

Valetta is Maltese Fortress. Malta, Great Britain's strategic naval base in the Mediterranean, has been conquered by many nations. Valetta, chief port of the island, was founded by a group of crusaders who became known as the Knights of Malta. The moat and walls, ancient defenses of the city, remain. As at Gibraltar, many of the harbor fortifications are hewn out of solid rock.

Cheese From Soy Beans

Natto, commonly called cheese, is a Japanese fermented food product prepared from soy beans. Although its manufacture varies, probably with the locality, it is a common practice to boil the soy beans until tender and then leave them in a warm place for 24 hours, or until they have fermented.

Scapegoat Pays

The idea of the scapegoat is practiced in some form or other in Tibet. In some cases an actual goat is sent into the wilderness. In others, a man is chosen who has to leave his village and live elsewhere for a whole year and when he returns someone else is chosen to bear the sin of the village.

Classes of Boxers
The difference between "heavy-weight," "light-weight," and "light-heavy-weight," when used in reference to boxers is: Heavy-weight, not less than 175 pounds; light-weight, between 127 and 135 pounds; light-heavy-weight, not less than 161 nor more than 175 pounds.
