Bataan Survivors Going From Mercer To Japan

Three survivors of Bataan, who were among Harrodsburg's famous 61 prisoners there in World War II after being captured with the 192nd Tank Battalion, are today headed back toward the locale of their former imprisonment.

They are Judson Simpson, Lonnie Gray and Cecil Quinn, who were enlisted in the Regular Army after being released from Japanese prisons and restored to health at home.

The units which they are members are now enroute to Japan and may eventually be assigned to participation in action in Korea.
