

LETTERS from Our Readers

FROM JACK TO MACK

My dear Mack:
You will no doubt, recall that our President in his address at Chicago two weeks ago, declared that money barons in their great distress came to him on their knees asking for succor and help during their distressing moments. He, with his big heart, turned a willing ear to their appeal and gave them hospital treatment, ministering to their needs and finally discharged them as practically cured, and sent them on their way rejoicing. Instead for Uncle Sam's kindness, they did the other thing. Based on the President's declaration, I composed a little four stanza poem, a copy of which I herewith hand you. I showed it to the officials at the Democratic headquarters here and they were so impressed with it that they had copies sent to twenty of the leading newspapers of Kentucky with instructions to publish at once. I presume this has or will be done. When they told me that they had communicated with twenty leading newspapers I asked them if they included the Harrodsburg Herald. When a negative reply was given, I told them in strong terms that THE leading newspaper of Kentucky was yours. Note was made of this and the remark made that you would be communicated with at once. I told them that I would do so myself, for which they thanked me. The declaration of the President has been taken up and commented on by nearly all of the newspapers of the country, with illustrations. See attached cartoon from The Washington Post. I addressed the Democratic Club here last night (Oct. 21) and reminded them, among other things, that ingratitude was a cardinal sin. Thank you for the dozen copies of papers containing my poem of last week. I will gladly pay for them if you will let me know the price.
Hastily and sincerely,
JACK.

"INGRATITUDE"

When money barons asked for help
In times when it was needed,
They hurried to dear Uncle Sam
And knelt right down and pleaded.

Hospital care was given them—
They were so very ill—
No other doctor could be found
That equaled Sam in skill.

When happy cures were brought about,
They started on their way,
Quite happy from relief they got,
And brighter was the day.

The Dance of Salome
No one is in a position to give definite information concerning the steps danced by Salome nor the tempo of the music. In ancient Hebrew times the tambourine and the cymbal and the harp accompanied the dancer. This type of dance is always sensuous. The entire body is brought into play. The hips and the hands are over-emphasized. The dancer who takes this role should dance in bare feet. It is customary for her to wear a scarf tightly folded about her head, ornamental breast ornaments, and skirt which is ankle length or a little longer, slashed up one side. Many scarfs of various colors form an important detail of the costume of Salome.

Springs in Canadian Rockies
The five chief springs in the Canadian Rockies have a total flow of about 1,000,000 gallons a day, and issue from the ground the year round at temperatures ranging from 78 to 122 degrees Fahrenheit. The chief constituents of the waters are calcium sulphate, or gypsum; calcium bicarbonate, and sulphate, and their therapeutic value is high. Winter weather does not in any way affect the temperature of these waters.

West Virginia in 1863
Although West Virginia became a state in 1863, congress was petitioned in 1776 to establish West-sylvania, the part of Virginia west of the mountains.

Winner Eats Loser
Mole crickets are cannibals, and a fight between two of these insects ends by the winner eating the loser.

Man-Eaters
The leopard, like the lion and tiger, sometimes turns man-eater. It is thought that much of the killing of human beings, charged to the lion in Africa and the tiger in India, is really the work of sly leopards which seize and carry off their victims with astonishing boldness, strength and skill.

The New TORRIDAIRE CIRCULATOR

- Entire inner unit of cast iron, extra heavy, rugged—to withstand severe usage.
- Each of the five sizes is identical in design and construction—fire bowl weighs on the new TORRIDAIRE increased 60% over the ordinary type—HOT BLAST DOWN DRAFT TUBE—doors fitted to precision air tightness—easily accessible cooking top—the very thing for heating water, warming milk, preparing a cereal, a light breakfast or supper.
- Porcelain enameled back. Louvers reflecting heat downward, preventing cold and drafty floors.
- All joints interlocked and double-cemented, which prevents the escape of gas, leaks and drafts.
- Water pan gives comfortable moist healthful heat. Enameled to prevent rust, insure long use.
- All ash doors have sliding dampers, machine ground.
- Mica fire door, giving open-fire cheerfulness.
- Cast iron round reversible collar.
- All these features—such as Enameled back, Hot Blast Tube—and others enumerated are included at our lowest price—in short, there are no "extras."

When coal is burning in a circulator, the draft through the fire bed forces gases up the chimney in the form of black smoke (A). In the average circulator heater, the tremendous heat value of these gases is wasted. The TORRIDAIRE down draft hot blast tube takes air in over the fuel bed and heats it to over 1,000 degrees. As the gases arise, heated air mixes with the black smoke (gases) and forms combustion, converting the gas (one-half of the soft coal) into heat (B). An average ton of coal has 13,000 cubic feet of gas. The heat value of this gas, lost in ordinary circulators, but burned in TORRIDAIRE Circulators, is often twice the cost of the coal. Fuel savings pay the cost of a TORRIDAIRE Circulator Heater.

The "concealed cooking top" is an exclusive feature in all TORRIDAIREs. No other circular has it.
