Friends of Flowers

There are flowers for nosegays, flowers that make a brave show in vases, flowers whose mother plants thrive by cutting. And then there are the flowers of a shy, home-loving nature, content to live far from tended gardens, so much happier if they live undisturbed among their own kind. Once plucked, they are never again so lovely. Careless young folk, tempted by their fragile sweetness, eagerly gather them; but they quickly wilt in warm hands. The ardent for possession cools as they droop, and usually they are impatiently flung away and trodden under foot without ever knowing a brief flicker of revival in bowls of cool water.

It is a sign of growth in knowledge and wisdom when we can find real pleasure in the view of a bank of anemones or the fragrance of a patch of arbutus, taking away a memory rather than a fast-fading armful of flowers. Wordsworth, when he saw a primrose by the river's brim or a host of daffodils along the margin of a bay, knew better than to carry them away and so dispel the magic that inspired him. They were more beautiful in their own place than they could possibly be elsewhere, even on a poet's writing desk.

KY. GIRL'S TEXTBOOK TO BE PUBLISHED

Miss Ollie Dewep, a graduate of the University of Kentucky, Lexington, and assistant professor of English at Southern Oregon Normal School and Junior College, Ashland, Oregon, has received notice from Ginn and Company, publishers, that her manuscript for a textbook on children's literature has been accepted for publication.

The book is intended for a classroom textbook for use in teachers colleges and normal schools. It will be a departure from existing books in the field and will contain criticism of various types of folk literature and modern literature, and a collection of representative literature for the first eight grades.

Miss Dewep was formerly on the faculty of Murray State Teachers College, Murray, Ky.

A DEVOTEE OF THE GAME

They were sitting under the trees, while the moon shone down on them. "Darling," she cooed, "do you really love me?"

"Of course I do."

"Do you think of me day and night?"

He hesitated for a while. "Well, darling, to be frank with you, I do think of football sometimes."

IN FASHION NOW

The smartest suits on the beach this year are the hand-knitted models. They are done on wool jersey foundation and are beautifully fitted.

Taffeta bathing suits have come in and with those of cotton print they are in high favor. These too, are made on wool jersey foundation.

For a good many years now the smart sport costume has been the thing to wear even to afternoon parties and teas before six. But recently, one notes that formality is returning to a certain extent. Not fussy formality, however, for ever through milady wears a large hat and a chiffon dress, the latter should be well cut but not fussy.

One of the loveliest dinner dresses for the summer is made of black marquisette with shirt waist collar and cuffs and wide band at the bottom of the full skirt, fashioned of white mouseline de soie.

Another lovely evening frock is made of uncrushable Irish lace and is just the thing for a summer weekend.

News comes across the water that smart women are again using the invisible hair nets of pre-war days at the seashore and in the country.

W. A. BOSTON'S WIFE BENEFITS THREE CHURCH INSTITUTIONS

The will of W. A. Boston, which was probated Thursday in the Woodford county court, leaves his estate real and personal, to his widow, Mrs. Kate Miller Boston, during her life and directs that after her death the shares, among the Versailles Christian church, the Christian church property be divided, in three equal widows and orphan's home, at Louisville and the College of the Bible, Lexington.

The will stipulates that the gifts to the three institutions be held in perpetual trust by their trustees or curators and only the income be used for their benefit.—Woodford Sun.

SURVEY SHOWS WOMEN ARE GUIDED BY NEWSPAPER ADS

Newspaper advertising is found more important than anything else in leading women to choose the store at which to buy their dresses, says a research study made public at Boston. In Boston, the survey found, 43 per cent of the women bought their dresses at the store whose advertising they liked best. The study was made by Charles C. Stech, research specialist and advisor on better selling, of New York City. More than 3,000 women were interviewed in Boston in the survey.

KEEP BUDS FRESH WITH SODA IN WATER

Flowers may be kept fresh for a long time by putting a pinch of soda into the water in which they are held. They should be gathered early in the morning or late in the evening and not while the sun is shining on them.

RARE JAPANESE TREE FOUND IN TOLEDO PARK

Navarre Park at Toledo contains a sacred Japanese fan tree so rare that only two others grow in Ohio. The tree was planted thirty years ago, and gets its name from the fan shape of its leaves.

A GARDEN-PATH

A garden path may lead to 'any-thing'—A bed of pansies like a Paisley shawl, Or pink verbenas gaily bordering Delphiniums, blue against a grayish wall.

A garden path may find an apple tree With flagstones underneath, and chairs around A gracious table all laid out for tea, And ladies' frocks that gently sweep the ground.

A garden path may gradually grow cool And still—and this a garden under-stands— When it goes past a moonlit lily pool, Where lovers whisper, holding hands.

—Dorothy Calloway.

TRUE WEALTH

If I can live in simple comfort and owe no man, sharing intimately with loved one—life's varied experiences; if I can bring a touch of healing and a clearer outlook into the trials and problems of those with whom I mingle; if I can humbly undertake public service when the public calls me caring neither too much nor too little for popular approval; if I can give spiritual values always the first place and gladly sink from sight, like a bit of heaven, that others might be elevated—then all this experiment of living yields in full measure the true wealth of contentment and happiness. —Alfred Osborne.
