PIONEER PARK NOTES

(H. C. Wood, Curator)

'Kiss and make up' will bring bliss. To matrimonial shake-up. The wife, of course, will get the kiss. The husband gets the 'make-up.'

Mrs. W. C. Kern, of Perryville, with her cousin, Charles Wilson, of Chicago, were visitors of the Park on Thursday. Mrs. Kern has quite an interesting museum at Perryville, with many relics of the battle fought there during the Civil War.

The graduating class from St. Joseph Hospital at Lexington, numbering 22 young ladies were guests of the Park on Thursday of last week, accompanied by one of the sisters.

Mr. Guy R. Woods, a former Mercer county boy, was a visitor of the Park last week with his sisters. He now lives in Holton, Maine. Guy's mother was formerly Miss Slaughter and a descendant of Gov. Slaughter.

Col. Andrew V. Scott, a bandmaster in Chicago, and a composer, was a visitor at the Park.

On account of the rain in the morning and the big attendance in Frankfort of the "Onward Kentucky Movement" the Sunday number of visitors was not quite as large as usual.

Misses Martha Shelton and Silvia Molsinger, of Louisville, and Miss Geraldine Ollener, of Pinebluff, Ark., were guests of Mrs. Georgia Redford at the Park last Saturday.

It is quite a pretty sight to see the squirrels come down from a tree or one of the log blockhouses and sit on a bench under the thorn tree and eat their daily allowance of corn.

Mr. R. B. Rankin, brother of C. E. Rankin, visited the Park on Monday.

Bishop Ainsworth, of Georgia, visited the Park on Monday. The Bishop delivered the baccalaureate sermon at the Christian church on Monday night to a large and interested audience.

Mrs. Georgia Whalen, her daughter and son-in-law, were recent visitors to the Park. Mrs. Whalen was a former resident of Harrodsburg, and now is a citizen of Akron, Ohio.

Mrs. P. E. Bower and children, from Kansas City, Mo., were visitors at the Park on Tuesday, guests of Miss Neva Williams. Mrs. Bower is a relative of Major Jas. Taylor, whose beautiful home is now the Mansion Museum.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuehn and daughter, of Abilene, Texas, were recent visitors at the Park. Mrs. Kuehn is the daughter of Mr. John L. Cassell, who built as his residence what is now Graham Springs, and whose wife was Miss Jennie Bowman.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

By Pete Gettys

Some fellow who loves to figure says, "a man stands 16 chances to be killed by lightning to one of being worth a million dollars." That's not bad news for most of us common run of folks nothin' could be more fatal to the ordinary mortal's happiness than to all of a sudden get ahold of a big lot of money.

Read David Grayson's "Adventures in Contentment"—"the farm was mine. How sweet an emotion is possession—what charm is inherent in ownership! What a foundation for vanity—even for greater quality of self-respect, lies in a little property all your own. Money we may possess or goods or chattels, but they give no such impression of mineness as the feeling that one's feet rest upon soil that is his; that part of the deep soil is his with all the water upon it, all small animals that creep and crawl in the holes of it, all birds in the air above it, all trees, shrubs, flowers, and grass that grow upon it, all houses, barns and fences—all his."

"Oh, she jest has a cold or is nervous." How easy goin' we pass over such human ailments! But is there anything worse or harder to get over? Kiuin' along on the highway the other day, passing an old hilly, washed out, run-down farm, a city feller remarked: "You know, if I had that land I'd clean it all up and slap it in bluegrass and raise fine stock."—don't that sound easy and simple and easily accomplished?—about as unimportant and inconsequential to that feller as "Oh, she is only nervous."

Don't mean to be a-fussin' at the fellers on the farm—jest trying to help give them a little lift.

"We've met 'em in the city and we've met 'em at the shore." And we've met 'em in places that we've never seen before. But of all the friends we've cherished, and all we call our own, there ain't none that's half as steady as the farmer friends we've known.

"HARRODSBURG'S BUSY SPOT"

"We may travel up to 'Frisco, or to India or Japan, And we may gain all the honors that a common feller can. But we know full well "fer sartin" that our welcome never ends With the honest set of people that we call our farmer friends."

Looks like the grocery and market folks are sellin' everything by weight 'cept the very things that above all others ought to be paid for for what they weigh, an' that's eggs. Cabbage an' lettuce an' bananas, an' about every other thing, is by the pound. A dozen eggs ought to weigh 24 ounces—but eggs is eggs on the market—so much a dozen whether they're banties' or Brahmas'.

What a business this farmin' is—how it can take its losses an' still be the greatest industry in dollars and cents of this country.

Fifty million acres of land in the U. S.—that's an area bigger than the whole State of Illinois—50 million acres of land which were once cultivated farms, have already been about mined. This area ain't farmed at all now, 'cept for a little patch-farmin' here and there. An' another 50 million acres in a condition almost as bad.

And besides—te best top soil has been washed, or about washed off, a hundred million more acres. This area's as big as Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin all put together. About 100 million more acres are on the way.

More than three billion ton of soil is washed and blown off our fields every year. In terms of dollars and cents the direct cost of erosion is estimated at 400 million dollars each and every year.

Still us farmers are gettin' along—our income's the greatest in history—farm mortgages are bein' paid, there's a car in the woodshed—an' some of us are even feedin' old Shep canned dog food.

Three Generations: Grandfather had farm—father had a garden—son had a can opener.

Kentucky Bourbon The whole northeastern portion of Kentucky, in the early days, consisted of a single county which was called Bourbon county and, at that time, it included practically all of the state in which whisky was manufactured. In this way, the term came to be applied to the product.
