

THE HOUSE OF HAZARDS

By MAC ARTHUR

TWENTY-ONE YEARS AGO
FROM THE HERALD FILES

September 10, 1915

The famous Orphan Brigade of the Civil War held their 54th annual convention here this week and returned yesterday to their homes. There were 150 of the old Confederate soldiers, but the town was filled with their friends and relatives and other people interested in the Confederate cause. W. B. Stearns, 92, a native of Washington county, but now an inmate of the Confederate Home at Pewee Valley, was the oldest veteran who marched in the parade.

The parade halted at the court house where Col. W. B. Haldeman acted as chairman of the program. The invocation was by Rev. William Stanley, 84, a member of the Orphan Brigade. Among other things on the program was the introduction of Mrs. Ben Hardin Helm, widow of the first commander of the Orphans, who was greeted with rousing applause.

In the afternoon the veterans were taken in automobiles to the Perryville Battlefield, Shakertown, High Bridge or wherever they preferred, and in the evening they were entertained by the J. Q. Chenoweth Chapter U. D. C., at Graham Springs Hotel.

At the business session Col. W. B. Haldeman, Louisville, was elected Commander for life.

Miss Mary Nichols, Oklahoma, and Mr. Perry Bruner are two new members added to the faculty of Daughters College, it is announced by Dr. J. Dowden Bruner, president.

At the all day reunion of the McFee Clan at Providence church Thursday one of the speakers was Mrs. Champ Clark, a distinguished descendant of Washington, D. C. The attendance was large.

H. P. Dowling has been named judge at Burgoon by Gov. McCreary.

Squire Mat Norris has sold his 130 acre farm on the Mackville road to Charles Shoemaker, of Washington county for $18,000.

Rev. F. T. McIntire was returned as pastor of the Harrodsburg Methodist church in the assignments at the Conference just closed at Millersburg.

Harold VanArsdall, supervising architect for Hanniford & Son, Cincinnati, who drew the plans for the addition to the United Presbyterian church, was here this week to open the bids for contracts, and the work was awarded to L. W. Hancock & Company, Louisville.

George W. Lowrey, 82, one of the few surviving Union veterans in Mercer county, died in Burgoon Wednesday.

Mrs. Letcher Riker, of this city, has resigned the presidency of the Woman's College, Danville, because of her health.

Mrs. W. T. Brooks, well known here, died in Paris Wednesday. Died Friday, an infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Werdie VanArsdall.

SCHOOL TO PREVENT CRIME

Organization of the National Crime Prevention Institute, under Dr. Sheldon Blueck, professor of criminology in the Harvard law school, looks like another helpful step in the nation's war on lawlessness. This agency, reports Dr. Glueck, hopes to co-ordinate the crime prevention activities of city, state, and nation, to fill important gaps in the existing anti-crime battle line, and to provide a clearing house, as it were, for crime prevention information.

Quite logically this new program is going to start with the public schools. For here, Dr. Glueck points out, lies the first approach to the whole problem.

This is a move to forestall crime. It ought to prove a great deal more effective than the present course, which takes effect only after the overt act is committed.

JUST THINK THIS OVER

We have two eyes controlled by nineteen nerves, and two ears in a straight line. There are five methods of advertising:

Radio—in one ear and out the other, if we listen.

Billboards—we drive by fifty miles an hour.

Picture Screen—two-hour program, 7,200 seconds (ads flashed twenty seconds).

Direct Mail—Advertising DETached from news.

NEWSPAPERS—advertising ATTACHED to news, is read leisurely by the entire family. This explains why 75 per cent of national advertisers use NEWSPAPERS.

ORIGIN OF POTENTIAL PARTY SYMBOLS

Most people have grown so accustomed to seeing the Democratic and Republican parties portrayed as a donkey and elephant, respectfully, that they spend little time wondering why it is so. As a matter of fact there are few old timers living who remember the Thomas Nast cartoons which first portrayed the parties as such. The donkey was first used in this manner by Nast in 1870 and the elephant as a symbol of the Republican party was born four years later. They quickly caught the public fancy and have been so employed ever since.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

Beware, Sweet-Sounding Whistles!

At a recent convention of the Society of Friends, generally known as Quakers, it was announced that "not a single Quaker has been on relief rolls during the national depression."

These extraordinary folk are a survival of another era: They conceive it their duty to "exclude themselves from the frivolous pursuits of pleasure," and never have asked help to keep up payments on the automobile. Benjamin Franklin, who lived among them and was a close student of their habits, has left us many reasonable sayings, such as the following:

"Beware of little expenses: a small leak will sink a great ship."

"Buy what thou hast no need of, and ere long thou shalt sell necessities."

"Keep thy shop, and thy shop will keep thee."

"Diligence is the mother of good luck."

"A child and a fool imagine that twenty shillings and twenty years can never be spent."

In a letter to Mme. Brillon, written while he was representing our country in France, Franklin told how a small boy he received a pocket full of pennies as a birthday gift.

On his way to the toy shop he met another boy who had a whistle that charmed him. In a great hurry, young Benjamin offered all his pennies for a similar whistle, only to learn on his way to the house, that he had paid much more than the whistle was worth.

"I conceive," Franklin wrote, "that a great part of the miseries of mankind are brought upon them by false estimates of the value of things, and by their giving too much for their whistles."

Quakers cling to the old-fashioned notion that hard work, living within your income, and a sturdy self-respect are highly valuable spiritual possessions—much too valuable to be traded for any sweet-sounding whistle.

G-MEN LEARN STRANGE THINGS IN SCHOOL

J. Edgar Hoover leaned back in his chair the other day and enumerated the rigid qualifications necessary to become a G-man.

They include, among other things, a legal education, splendid physical condition, a stainless past with no arrests, a good credit rating, and a generally well-rounded personal development.

And even after an applicant turns up with a these qualifications, he still must spend three months in supervised training before he's ready to take the final test. In this period, he must study marksmanship, abnormal psychology, plastic surgery, fingerprinting, and other instruction valuable to an officer of the law.

Here, in a scrupulously trained personnel rests the success of the federal bureau of investigation.

BRITAIN DEVELOPING A "SOLID" MOTOR FUEL

A "solid" motor fuel in the form of small cinders made by carbonizing coal or peat was used recently in a fully laden five-ton lorry traveling from Leicestershire to London, says a report of the Commerce Department. Fuel consumption averaging .2 pounds per mile per ton of rolling load at a speed of 22 to 35 miles per hour. Sufficient fuel is carried to permit a cruising range of 100 to 180 miles. It is said that the manufacture of automobiles specially designed to use the new solid fuel is already under way.

WHENCE COME IMMORTALITY

A dinner was held the other night at which a bronze medal was presented. The dinner was a simple affair; in the grill room of a modest restaurant, down below the street level, it was inexpensive because the people who gave it were mostly artists; they constitute what is known as the Institute of Graphic Arts. The medal was presented to J. Thomson Willing.

"So what?" you probably say. "There are dinners every night, in every restaurant, and who cares? Who is J. Thomson Willing?"

He began life as an artist but, because he had talent for directing and encouraging the work of others, and a fine instinct for the proper arrangement and balance of art and type on the printed page, a newspaper annexed him as art editor.

Subsequently Willing was lured to New York by a great lithographic house, and later moved on to a group of national magazines. It was during the days of his magazine activities that I came to know him.

We had been together only a few days when I noticed something strange in his office. It seemed to be always full of people. I asked him about it, and he blushed a little, and said: "Every year a lot of young artists come to New York, and I feel that somebody ought to be a sort of Welcoming Committee. So I encouraged them to come in. It takes a good deal of time, but every once in a while I am rewarded by making a real discovery."

Around the table on the night the medal was presented were some of the best known artists in America. They were there because J. Thomson Willing had helped them when they were young; in many cases he was the first to hold out a kindly hand and utter an encouraging word.

He has no wealth; he has no fame beyond the limits of his own profession. But his life will live in the lives he has helped, and in lives that they, in turn, will influence. This is immortality.

CIVILIZATION PROGRESSES

Before the Spanish-American war the United States Army was about 25,000. Today Mussolini says Italy's army is 8,000,000.

That shows how Christian civilization progresses. Who would have believed when "dew" was the morning "down in Manila Bay" that so small a country as Italy would require an army of 8,000,000 in the year of our Lord 1936.

And, inasmuch as Italy feels the desperate need of 8,000,000 under arms—"men" here avoided because women and children may be included—Great Britain must need fully 16,000,000 to feel assured of continuance of her great role in world affairs.—Louisville Times.

HOMES FOR WRENS

Wrens are not too particular about the nest-box they occupy, writes Jas. B. Robinson in Flower Grower. In my opinion they are more likely to look to the surroundings. They like the atmosphere and home life of human beings; and if your yard and garden are acceptable, they will find a place in your porch vines or in a small near-by tree. They like shrubbery and may settle close to your doorway or walk.

TAXES (Woodford Sun)

For years I have strongly opposed sales taxes. A thought struck me the other day which almost converted me to a belief in them. No, it was not the argument that a sales tax "hits everybody." That is hokum. All taxation hits everybody. The laboring man who has no property, the salaried man who has no property to be taxed, pay heavy taxes on everything they consume. But, if there is no sales tax, they don't know it. Indirect taxation is like a deadly disease which is painless until the case becomes hopeless.

The reason I am almost converted to sales taxes is that nothing but frightfully heavy nuisance taxes, which aggravate the people every time they spend anything, will make them realize that government of all kinds in this country—local, state and national combined—will after a time absolutely drain the financial blood of the people, if they continue making heavier and heavier demands upon government. In no other way but in grinding nuisance taxes can you make people realize that when they insist upon more and more from government, they are taking it right out of their own hides, and that all of this talk about making the rich pay it is sure political bunk.

JUDGE SANDUSKY WOULD PUT DRUNKS IN ASYLUM

A gentleman who heard Judge Sandusky's charge to the grand jury at Mt. Vernon Monday says that the judge said he had complaint of men getting drunk and staying drunk, neglecting their business and their homes and those they are responsible for.

"I want such men brought before me. They are crazy and I will send them to the asylum," he is credited with saying. Come to think of it, a man foolish enough to stay drunk these hot days must not be in his right mind and may be "plumb crazy."—Interior Journal.

A FAMILY TANGLE

A few weeks ago a father and son married sisters. The father became the husband of his sister-in-law, brother-in-law of his own son; the father-in-law and brother-in-law of his daughter-in-law, and his wife became the step-mother of her brother-in-law and step-mother-in-law of her sister.

In the event of children, what will their relationship be to the in-laws. Don't bother to figure it out!

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all sorts.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doans are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.
