EDITORIAL COMMENTS FROM ELIZABETHTOWN NEWS

Nobody would be hurt by a hard rain fall.

A good many towns are making water hauls that are not figures of speech.

Drivers are supposed to have their license paid for, whether the car is or not.

Georgetown News says some people's tongues are in high gear while their brains remain in neutral.

A Circuit Judge doesn't have to worry about collecting his bills. He never charges anything but a grand jury.

Gov. Landon says the President's program is cockeyed, and Father Coughlin calls him a liar. Why not merge and call him a cockeyed liar?

HOW TO STOP CRUELTY

This is Mr. Angell's answer: There is only one way to do it, and that is to go down to the foundation and build up. We must educate the children. We must create a great public opinion. We must wake up the pulpit and the press, and scatter the literature of humanity until it shall be read in the homes, taught in the schools, hung on the walls, and all the children shall feel that these animals have been mercifully created by our common Father, and mercifully given us to use, but not to abuse.

THE TOY GUN

The air-gun or B. B. gun and the sling-shot, so coveted by boys and so freely advertised by certain conscienceless business houses, are responsible not only for the death of hundreds of beautiful and useful birds but for sad and permanent injuries to others. A circular issued by the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers states that in one institution for the blind, there are 300 children who will never see again because their eyes were put out by toy guns.

PAPA DIONNE GIVEN BIRTHDAY GIFT BY TOTS

Papa Oliva Dionne, the quintuplets' father, celebrated his thirty-second birthday anniversary Thursday and received a gift from his elder children. The Dionne youngsters who could write have been signing autographs at their father's refreshment stand across from the Dafeo hospital, home of the quintts, and summer tourists slipped coins into their hands. The kiddies gave Paper Dionne their savings.

"I AM YOUR KING"

The new King of England is evidently in no danger of denying the promise of his younger years. He bears a certain royal dignity as an intangible quality, but his humanness is unfeeling and without restraint.

The most recent story of his still few weeks of kingship, tells of a visit on his part to Glasgow and into the very heart of the "Reddest" part of his realm.

He was warned, the story says, that the Left Wing City Council of the Scotch town had refused to be presented to him, but received the news with no sign of displeasure or hesitation. "That is perfectly all right," he said, "tell them I'll come and have tea with them instead."

And that was exactly what he did. Later, he visited the slums of Glasgow, and in that "appalling place," as he called it afterward, he knocked on each door himself.

One dismal room was the home of a blind man, Hugh Queen, who called out when the knock came, "Who's there?"

"I am your king," was the answer, "May I come in?"

The story is told by the New York Times' wireless service, to which there is added, by the AP a bit of reminiscence by the Lord Provost John Stewart who chuckled as he told how King Edward at tea in the Lord Provost's private room had shown his host how to balance a penny and then, when his superior skill at penny balancing had been proved, demanded his penny back, because you know "I'm a Scotsman," he said.

It seems rather evident, in the face of an innumerable telling of such tales that the British malcontents are in for a difficult time of standing out against a king like this!—Knoxville Journal.

U. S. ARMY OFFICER BACK FROM ETHIOPIA

Eating raw meat was only one of the experiences of Capt. John Meade, the United States Army's official observer of the Italo-Ethiopian War. For five months he traveled in the northern part of Ethiopia by plane, mule-back and Shank's mare. He had a pack train of 17 mules, 12 servants and one interpreter who later deserted him under fire, forcing him to learn the Amharic language. Water and vegetables had to be boiled, dysentery was common even among the Ethiopians, mosquitos in the swamps were as thick as clouds and fleas were everywhere. Captain Meade was able to obtain fresh meat, however, by shooting ducks, guinea fowl, wild boars and gazelles. Now returned to this country, he considers Emperor Haile Selassie an intelligent monarch who was forced into fatal errors by the impetuosity of his soldiers. In the opinion of the American officer who dashed 150 miles by truck to cable the news of the Ethiopian rout at Lake Ashongi, the defeat of the African state was due to the modern weapons of the Italians and the lack of organization on the part of the Ethiopians.

A PROUD FATHER LEAVES POOR HOUSE

Re-enactment of "Over the Hills to the Poor House" occurred here this week when a 35-year-old son returned to take from the Fulton county farm to his home an aged father who had gone there nearly a month ago without the son's knowledge. Coming all the way from West Virginia, where he has attained a comfortable living, married and built a home, the son, native of Fulton county, appeared before Judge C. L. Walker, who directed him to the farm. "With tears in his eyes," Judge Walker said, "the large, clean-cut man told of writing repeatedly to his father, but receiving no reply." So this week he came to Fulton county only to find that his father had resided in the little home place as long as he could, too proud to ask for help or to seek relief.—Hickman Courier.

STATE UNIVERSITY MOVIES AT THE STATE FAIR

Educational motion picture films set to sound will be extensively exhibited in Kentucky for the first time during the Kentucky State Fair, the week of September 13, when the Extension Department of the University of Kentucky will operate daily in the Merchants and manufacturers building on the Fair Grounds, Louisville. A completely equipped theatre for the showing of educational films. Exhibitions will be free to the public, and interspersed with the movies will be performances of the University of Kentucky string trio and Mary Louise McKenna, soprano, in an adjacent University reception booth. Official technical publications of the University may be read in this booth by those interested.

WAYSIDE TRAGEDIES

It is unavoidable, of course, that mals on the highways will occasionally happen. And it is no uncommon thing to see the mangled bodies of furred and feathered victims of the automobile lying on the roads. A little more care, a bit more consideration for animal life, on the part of motorists would materially lessen the number of these wayside tragedies among the humbler creation.

MOSQUITO HAS 22 TEETH—MISTAKE

An exchange says that a mosquito has 22 teeth, some fellow with more time than he had use for having made the discovery and told the newspaper man. We don't believe a word of it. The old mosquito may have had that small number, but the modern one—the one that has played Harrodsburg so successfully the present season, has several times that number and bites on them all at one time.

Your Family Coat-of-Arms

Gilpin

The Pennsylvania Family of Gilpin can trace its coat of arms shown here to the year 1206 when its ancestor Richard De Gilpin of Kentmere, county Westmoreland, England having slain a wild boar creating great mischief in the neighborhood adopted for his arms the device presented. The legend of the wild boar is still told to visitors and the picturesque ruins of the castle are an interesting sight.

Joseph Gilpin, who settled in America, was a descendant of the above Richard De Gilpin and was attracted to the New World by Penn's purchase. With his wife and children he settled in Pennsylvania and courageously began the development of his purchased tract of land.

Description of Arms: On a shield of gold a green boar.

Crest: An arm sheathed in armour grasping a branch of laurel.

Motto: Sincere in word and deed.

OPERATION RESTORES CHILD'S HEARING

When his hearing was suddenly restored during an operation for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids, Carl Thelin, Jr., 6, Milwaukee, deaf since he was three months old, had to have his ears plugged with cotton until he could accustom himself to the sounds around him. Even ordinary sounds caused him to wince with pain.

ONTARIO CAR LICENSES TO HONOR KING

Ontario car license markers for 1937 will bear two crowns, one in each upper corner, in honor of King Edward's coronation year. The markers have a military crimson background with white lettering.

THE ROAD MASSACRE

A gloomy picture is painted by the National Safety Council, which says if the current trend is continued motor fatalities in the United States this year will exceed the all-time high record of 37,000 established last year. Deaths in July were three per cent higher than in 1935, it being the third consecutive month whose fatalities exceeded the corresponding month of 1935. The fault is with public opinion. As long as drunken drivers and reckless drivers are not treated as enemies to society just that long will the road massacre continue. Usually when a speeder is apprehended there is more criticism for an officer honestly endeavoring to enforce the law than for the driver, who is willfully breaking the law, and imperiling the lives of others in so doing.—Elizabethtown News.

THE TELEPHONE

I am a telephone. When I am not broke I am in the hands of a receiver. I have a mouthpiece, but, unlike women, I never use it. Fellows use me to make dates with girls, and girls use me to break said dates. Husbands call up their wives over me, and wives call their husbands down over me. I never go anywhere, but sometimes the company comes and takes me out; it all depends on whether you pay your bills or not. I am the bell of the town, and while I do not wear jewelry, I often get rings. Whether I do things or not, a lot of people nail me to the wall; and I like music, but the only music I get is chin music. I get all the popular airs and the most popular is hot air.—Bourbon News.

ANCIENT MULE HAULS MAN TO SEEK PENSION

Before the State pension headquarters on Main street at Hopkinsville, this week stopped an ancient, one-mule wagon drawn by a stiff-kneed little old mule, whose harness was cord, reinforced with wire. In the rickety conveyance was Lee Hancock 74, Fairview farmer; a small quantity of hickory nuts and two watermelons. The man had been six and a half hours on the road from Fairview, going to Hopkinsville to apply for a pension. The hickory nuts and the watermelons were the only produce left by the drouth.

LIFE SAVED WHEN DREAM CAME TRUE

One night last week on the island of Hawaii, a Territorial Forester named Leslie W. Bryan had a vivid dream. In it he saw a dirty, ragged, wretched soldier at a certain lonely spot on the slopes of Mauna Loa. Before daylight Forester Bryon was on his way to that spot. He knew that for a week an alarm had been out for Private Edward Deal, missing from an Army rest camp. Sure enough, at the spot he had seen in his dream, Forester Bryan found dirty, ragged, wretched Private Deal, saved his life.

Wildcats To Play First Game Sept. 19

Maryville, Tenn., And Ky. University Squads Open Football Season In Lexington.

With all sections of the state represented on the squad of more than 40 players, the University of Kentucky football candidates opened their 1936 practice season last Tuesday with a double session on Stoll Field. The first man to report was Stanley Nevers, 205-pound tackle, who will captain the Wildcats this year.

The coaching staff is encouraged over the season's outlook, considering the veterans from last year's team who have returned and the promising material from last season's undefeated freshman team.

Chet Wayne, head coach and athletic director, is assisted in building a winning team this year by Porter Grant, end coach; Tom Gorman; line coach; Birkett Pribble, and Frank Moseley assistant coaches.

The Wildcats have to develop speedily to be in shape for their opening game here September 19 with Maryville, Tenn. After that game, the Kentuckians will be forced to the limit to compete on equal terms with their foes, including such powerful elevens as Alabama, Georgia Tech, Xavier, Washington and Lee, Florida, Manhattan, Virginia Military Institute, Clemson and Tennessee.

The Virginia Military Institute game here October 3 will be High School Day, when all Kentucky high school students and teachers will be admitted for a nominal sum. Other games to be played in Lexington are Florida, October 24; Alabama, October 31, and Clemson, November 14.

OPERATING ROOM AT GLASGOW AIR-CONDITIONED

A modern air-conditioned system has been purchased by board of trustees at the Community Hospital from the Frigidaire Corporation, and will be installed in operating room of the hospital here.

The new system will regulate atmospheric conditions of the operating room at all times, dispensing proper amount of humidity, while the exhaust system discharges fumes from narcotics used in operations and feeds purified air into the room. Construction of the cooling system was started last week, and when completed, the Community Hospital will be among one of the few in the state equipped in this manner.—Glasgow Times.

SAVE THEIR SIGHT

Careless, carefree youth is always heedless of the future. That's why mothers and dads are so important in adolescence. We must guard against neglect and those slight handicaps that weigh so heavily in later years. Have the children's eyes examined before they enter school; keep needed glasses properly fitted to changing vision.
