L.J.Wright,

Plff.

Vs. Petition.

Adams Express Company,

Def.

The plaintiff, L.J.Wright, states that the defendant, Adams Express Company, is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of Kentucky and that as such it has the right to sue and be sued. He says that said corporation is engaged in the business of common carrier; that it receives and transports goods and merchandise from various stations in Kentucky to various other stations in said State and to and from various stations and other states to Kentucky. He says that on the 28th day of March 1918, he bought from D.Scott 7 bushels of seed corn, which the said Scott delivered to the said defendant, Adams Express Company, for transmission and consignment to the plaintiff at Harrodsburg, Kentucky. He says that said company has failed and refused to deliver to this plaintiff said corn and that by reason of said failure and refusal he has been damaged in the sum of $56.00, which is a reasonable value of said corn at the time of said refusal to deliver same.

Wherefore he prays judgment against the defendant in the sum of $56.00, for all costs expended in this action, and for all relief to which he is, or may appear to be, entitled.
