THERE IS NO DEATH

"Who knows but that which we call life is death, and that which we call death is life?"

W. J. Moore

(In Southern Churchman)

This dreaded thing which we call death—

A name so misapplied—

An entrance into real life.

For which our Saviour died.

We cling to this brief mortal life,

Despite its sorrows, pain;

But this is due to lack of faith,

And reckon not death's gain.

A loving message spoke by Christ

That told us why He came;

It was to give abundant life,

O bless His holy name.

Then, too, there was a sacrifice,

Atonement on the Cross;

The shedding of His precious blood.

Which made for gain not loss.

So cling not to this mortal life,

But live for Him who died,

That we may make our home with

God,

Forever to abide.

State DepartmentStresses Dog Law

The State Department of Agriculture, stresses the necessity and value of strict enforcement of the Kentucky dog law, as seen in the following article taken from that department's publication, the Marketing Exchange Bulletin, of December 15.

"One of the best and probably the most misunderstood law of the state is the dog law which is found in Kentucky Statutes, Chapter 5, Sections 68a and B 1-37.

"For a thorough and rigid enforcement of this law, it takes the cooperation of the enforcing agents and the dog owners. The efforts of local county officials and the improved economic conditions are two important factors that make for an increase in the number of dogs licensed. The sheriffs of the state are largely charged with the enforcement of this law and in those counties where they are alert and active in this law is where the largest number of dogs are licensed. Also in those counties they are able to pay the sheep claims and in a number of cases there has been a nice sum to revert to the county school fund.

"Only in so much as the dog law is observed and enforced, just that much is the county the beneficiary of its good effects. If the dog law is not observed and is ineffective, then it is useless to try to raise sheep in that county. Results bear this statement out. Where the citizenship of the county licenses their dogs, the county live stock fund has sufficient in it to be an encouragement and protection to those who raise sheep.

"It is interesting to note some recent comments from the Department of Agriculture of Pennsylvania in which state the dog law is so rigidly enforced. Since this rigid enforcement, the number of uncontrolled dogs has greatly decreased, the number of licensed dogs has increased and the loss among live stock and poultry by dogs has greatly decreased.

"The number of prosecutions for 1935 were 1,706 which compared with 1934 which was 2,000. The number of convictions was 1,620 which compared with 1,800 in 1934.
