Chinese Women Held As Models

Kathleen Norris U. S. Novelist, Says American Women Could Learn Dignity From Them.

American women can learn a lot about dignity from their Chinese cousins, says Kathleen Norris, the novelist, who spent a week at Peking during her tour of the Far East.

Chinese women dress much alike, she observed, and came to the conclusion that this gives them dignity and poise. On the other hand American women have no uniformity of dress. One will have a train three feet long trailing behind her, and another may sport a high collar that hides half her face. Still another may sport a low neck, and a fourth a short skirt that barely covers her knees. This hardly makes for dignity, Mrs. Norris feels.

"Peiping's air is easy to breathe, like that of San Francisco," said the famous writer, who interrupted work on her sixty-second novel to go sight-seeing. "I wouldn't try to write a novel on Chinese life unless I had lived in China at least five years," she said.

Mrs. Norris went to China as "part of the convoy" to bring back her niece, Mrs. James A. B. Barton and son.

Rush to Marry May Force Building Boom

Home Loan Bank Board Says Delayed Weddings Will Be A Big Factor in Construction.

A Home Loan Bank board study said today that "delayed" weddings of couples whose marriages were blocked by the depression will be a major factor in any building boom. The study, prepared for publication in the board's official magazine, said the marriage rate "is acutely sensitive to the ups and downs of general business activity."

Citing a sharp drop in marriages from 1929 to 1932, it added this "was undoubtedly a major influence in reducing the demand for homes during that period."

"But the depression only postpones marriages; it does not permanently eliminate them. For the most part, the couples who were forced to forego marriages in bad years will get married in the succeeding good years."

"When these delayed marriages take place, they will greatly increase the demand for new homes."

Such marriages, it was said, have been an important contributing factor "to the building booms that follow former depressions."

SHIRLEY TEMPLE "JUST ORDINARY"

The headlines that presented Shirley Temple as "just an ordinary child" overlooked the important part of the conclusions of the university psychologist who has been studying Hollywood's child actress.

"Consciously," the psychologist found her "ordinary." But "Unconsciously she is a genius, with a native grasp of the requirements of her work; she acts without being aware she is acting." In short, she presents an "unusual case of dual personality in which the unconscious is developed far beyond what we think of as normal."

Psychology is such a gloriously inexact science that the foregoing findings may mean much or little. But may not genius be a condition wherein one takes pains unconsciously rather than consciously?

Anyhow, by the sign of the American dollar, which as yet is considered our surest meter of genius, Shirley Temple is not ordinary. Whether her genius is conscious or unconscious. —Richmond Register.

MESSAGE OF NEW YEAR

I asked the New Year for some message sweet,
Some rule of life with which to guide my feet;

I asked, and paused; he answered soft and low,
"God's will to know."

"Will knowledge then suffice, New Year?" I cried;

And, ere the question into silence died,

The answer came, "Nay, but remember, too,

"God's will to do."

Once more I asked, "Is there no more to tell?"

And once again the answer sweetly fell,

"Yes! this thing, all other things above:

God's will to love."

WE ASK YOU
