MERCER FARMERS TO CONDUCT SOIL SAVING SESSIONS

County Agent C. F. Park To Explain Angles Of Federal Soil Conservation Program.

FIRST MEETING SATURDAY, APRIL 11 AT COURT HOUSE

Meetings Held Through Next Week, 7 P. M. At High School Centers Of 4 County Districts.

County Agent C. F. Park states that the 1936 Soil Conservation Program, recently announced by the Secretary of Agriculture, has as its major purpose the preservation and improvement of the land resources of the United States. He will explain the provisions of the plan at a series of meetings throughout Mercer county.

Every farmer is being given an opportunity to cooperate with his neighbors in a nation-wide effort to conserve and improve soil fertility, and to help maintain the economic gains of the past three years.

Briefly, the Program provides payment to farmers who in 1936 plant soil-building crops on crop land; carry out approved soil-building practices on crop land or pastures; or devote a part of the acreage generally used for soil-depleting crops to soil conserving crops or practices.

Meetings have been arranged for the purpose of explaining the program at the following places: Fifth district (and all others who will be unable to attend meetings in their own districts), on Saturday, April 11, at the court house at 1:30 p.m.; First District at the Rose Hill High School on Monday, April 13 at 7:00 p.m.; Second District at the Cornishville High School on Tuesday, April 14 at 7 p.m.; Third District at the Salvisa High School on Wednesday, April 15 at 7 p.m.; Fourth District at the McAfee High School on Thursday, April 16 at 7 p.m.

Farmers who are not able to attend any of these meetings, may obtain further information about the program from the County Agent's office or from any of the farmers who are serving as committeemen.

State Examiner Is Inspecting Records

Checking Over All Departments Of Mercer's Business, Especially Co. Budget System.

W. W. Becker, Jr., Assistant State Inspector and Examiner, who has been in Harrodsburg several days going over the records of the various departments of the county, was called to Frankfort yesterday to attend a meeting, but will return today to complete his inspection. As he will go over the records of every department of county business, he will be here some days.

Mr. Becker stated that there are only five examiners for Kentucky's 120 counties and each one has a big territory to cover each year. This year they are especially interested in checking up on the new county budget system which became operative last year after becoming a law, and which is designed to keep counties within their income.

CONSIDERATE MEAT THIEF LEAVES ENOUGH FOR FAMILY

J. G. Isham, who lives on the Burin road, says he is very grateful to a meat thief that visited his home on Sunday night—he was left enough meat to feed his family for some time. As they were all at church, the intruder could just as well as not have carried off a lot more meat, but took three sides, two shoulders and one ham. Mr. Isham says he imagines it was a one man job and he stole what he could carry away. The lock was broken on the meat house door in order to gain an entrance.

There's one thing he is sore about. He has received no word that the meat was good. So he is on the watch for the intruder and if he comes again he will have to sign an affidavit at the point of a pistol that the meat was first class, or he don't get any more.

CITY CREEK 2 FEET 6 INCHES OVER FORMER OFFICIAL MARK

Considerable damage was caused in Harrodsburg and Mercer county

Sunday night when a cloudburst struck this section after a day of intermittent rains and two hall storms. The heavy downpour began about 7 in the evening and in a few hours rivers and creeks were overflowing their banks, and low places in the city and county were turned into lakes. Roads leading into Harrodsburg were almost impassable for hours Sunday night owing to high water in a number of places, and many cars were stalled when drivers attempted to ford the water. Fortunately, the heaviest downpour was not of long duration, and flood water went down in a few hours.

The town creek was higher than ever was known by the present generation. The water spread for more than a square on both sides, and also the canal overflowed and inundated some of the best residence sections and several business houses. The present flood was two feet six inches higher than that of ten years ago, which was considered a record breaker, according to Patrolman Jim Shirley, who made the estimate from official marks made at that time. Many homes in the Negro section had to be deserted. The bus station was included in the buildings suffering an influx of mud and water, as

County Engineer J. W. Fraser reported much damage to roads and bridges throughout the county, which he has as yet been unable to estimate. No heavy damage was reported from any one section, but it will mount in the aggregate. In the Dixville section several sheep were drowned in the flock of James Cox. Shannon Peavler had two heifers killed by lightning. Out in the county a number of families living in low sections had the first floors inundated and had to take refuge upstairs.

The cloudburst caused the water to rise so quickly everywhere that it is remarkable that more serious damage did not result.

Mrs. Price Johnson, of the Lexington road, was unanimously elected a member of the club.

Mrs. Sims, the president, appointed the various committees in charge of arrangements for the meeting in Harrodsburg in May of the Kentucky State Federation of Women's Clubs.

were Priest's Grocery and B. M. Royalty's store.

Night Patrolmen E. L. Lester and Jim Shirley went to the Negro district when the waters began to rise and warned the residents to move out before it was too late. The officers found it necessary to carry out one aged Negro man who, being slightly crippled, was unable to wade the waters about his house. A second rescue made by the officers was that of two white youths from their car on Lexington street in a low place where they had stopped when the water got into their motor. The water was almost up to the cushions when the officers rescued the occupants.

Water got into the basement of the home of Dr. R. E. Youmans and flooded out his furnace. Dr. Youmans was at that time in a serious condition due to pneumonia, and could not be moved, so other means of heating the house had to be found. Basements in many sections of the city were flooded and furnaces put out of operation.

County Engineer J. W. Fraser reported much damage to roads and bridges throughout the county, which he has as yet been unable to estimate. No heavy damage was reported from any one section, but it will mount in the aggregate. In the Dixville section several sheep were drowned in the flock of James Cox. PREDICTED 500 KILLED IN STORM

Tornado Sweeps South, Floods, Fires Follow Wake Of Most-Devastating Storm In Years.

Known death tolls from tornadoes climbed to 438 Tuesday when more victims in the wake of the worst and most devastating storm in years Monday were located in the midst of shattered buildings and debris in several Southern states.

Mississippi's quaint little village of Tupelo announced a total of 206 deaths, surpassing the toll of Gainesville, Ga., where 178 were reported dead.

The remainder of the deaths occurred throughout Alabama, Tennessee, Arkansas, and South Carolina. Red Cross officials predicted that at least 500 were killed by the violent tornado. The toll is expected to rise and justify this contention when more of the debris is cleared away. Hundreds of unfortunate victims are suffering injuries as a result of the twister. Those most critically hurt are being cared for in hospitals and make-shift establishments throughout the stricken area. Property damage is expected to exceed $20,000,000.

BUNTON RESIGNS FROM CO. EDUCATION BOARD

John T. Bunton resigned as a member of the Mercer County Board of Education at the meeting of the board Tuesday afternoon, and William Barnett was elected to fill his place. Mr. Bunton's resignation became effective at once as he has accepted the contract to carry the rural mail on the route out of Bondville. He succeeds Mr. Barnett on the job. Mr. Bunton had served on the county board of education for about two and a half years, and had a year and a half more to serve before his term expired. Mr. Barnett is a well known business man and farmer.

DR. J. A. VANARSDALL HAS OLD KENTUCKY HISTORY

The Jessamine Journal has the following regarding a former Mercer county citizen, who has made his home in Nicholasville for some years:

Dr. J. A. VanArdsall is the owner of a history of Kentucky printed in 1885. The book belonged to his father, who was a native of Mercer county.

A supplement to the history is a sketch of Mercer county where the VanArdsall family settled in Kentucky and a considerable write-up is given of this family and other early settlers.

Dr. VanArdsall's father was mentioned as one of the leading farmers and business men in Mercer county at that time.

MR. AND MRS. WILL SHIRLEY ARE NOT IN STORM AREA

When the names of Mr. and Mrs. Will Shirley appeared in the list of those killed in the Mississippi storm this week, much apprehension was felt by Patrolman Jim Shirley that it might be his brother and his wife. He was working for a Southern contractor. Later news was received that his brother was on a contract at Crown Point, Ind., and both he and his wife are safe and well.

J. T. COOKE TALKS TO FILSON CLUB

Local Historian, Guest Speaker, Tells Louisville Group About Harrodsburg's History.

James T. Cooke, who has spent much time delving into Harrodsburg history and who enjoys searching out facts for himself from old court records, was the guest speaker Tuesday night at a meeting of the Filson Club in Louisville. His topic was "Rambling Through Harrodsburg's History and Tradition." His talk seemed to interest very much the lovers of history present. The Filson Club room, which seats about 150, was filled, the audience giving him close attention. One of the members in the audience rose at the close of his talk and added his appreciation to the formal thanks extended by the officers, by remarking: "They say history is dull, but it is not dull when told by Mr. Cooke."

Mr. N. L. Curry accompanied Mr. Cooke to Louisville and they were guests of honor at a dinner given by the Filson Club's president, Mr. R. C. Ballard Thruston, at his apartment at the Weissenger-Gaulbert. Covers were laid for eight. Col. James L. Many Guests At WPA Open House

More than a hundred interested persons visited the Women's WPA training centers in Harrodsburg on the occasion of "Open House" on April 2, and the centers at Burgin and Bohon were equally as popular, with visitors dropping in all during the day, in spite of disagreeable weather. The Harrodsburg center displayed Wilma Patricia Ann, the WPA baby which attracted much attention. This was a large doll which showed the layette, bassinet, spreads and an entire baby outfit, even to the shoes and stockings that had been made at the training center.

Numerous men's and women's garments and clothes for children of all ages, were on display. These garments, when completed are turned over to County Judge Charles T.
