Old-Fashioned Aquaflorium Finds Favor

Rosebuds, Gladiolus, Asters and Other Solid Centered Flowers Are in This Novel Container.

An old-fashioned attraction in grandmother's crowded living room was the aquaflorium, a clear glass globe filled with water and usually containing a few rosebuds, or any garden flowers she happened to have.

The aquaflorium is coming back into favor, reshaped somewhat, with clearer glass, and a modernized pedestal. It is the same idea, reappearing after a few years like some of the fashions in dress, yet it produces a remarkably modern effect in the room.

The flower buds immersed in the globe filled with water gives of a phosphorescent glow, which is more striking in its novelty than many a modernistic painting.

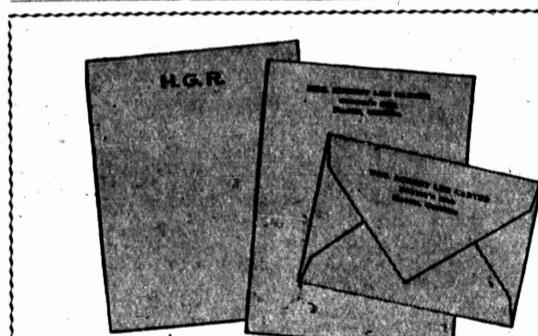

The Old-Fashioned Aquaflorium in Modern Guise Is Coming Back in Favor. Here It Is With a Few Rosebuds.

It is interesting to see how different flowers will appear in one. The florets from a spike of gladiolus, for instance, will take on elongated shapes from one angle, and seem almost round from another. The dainty petals of the aster will seemingly take on considerable weight, as water bubbles settle on them. The same is true of the carnation. Marigolds will appear much less bold, as their rich colors are tempered by the water and the air bubbles.

Almost any flower head which has a firm center will be displayed well in an aquaflorium, and in many cases they will be preserved for a ter rich relatives is almost irresistible replacement. Take a look.

few flowers from the supply you get at the florists' for an arrangement, and put them in the aquaflorium. You will find the practice interesting, as there are so many ways of arranging them inside the bowl, and they take on such different colors and shapes.

There are many preparations sold which can be added to the water to make it stay sweet for a long period of time. It is a good idea to procure one of these, although a pinch of charcoal dust will do almost as well.

"HAIRST QUEEN" IS OLD SCOTTISH CUSTOM

When harvesting time came in Scotland the prettiest girl among the workers on the harvest field was chosen to cut the last sheaf of corn and to decorate it. She was known as the "Hairst Queen," harvest queen. She had to carry the sheaf to the farmhouse to the accompaniment of bagpipes and fiddles, where the sheaf was hung from the rafters in the kitchen and a dance took place in its honor. Sometimes Ceres, the goddess of corn, was represented as a doll. The "Hairst queen" having cut the final handful of corn would tie it up with ribbons and deck it out in honor of the goddess.

VIRGINIA SPOON BREAD

Two cups of meal; two cups boiling water; one cup one-half cup sweet milk; two teaspoons salt; three tablespoons shortening; two eggs.

Sift meal twice and dissolve in the boiling water. Add shortening and salt. Thin with the sweet milk. Separate the yolks into the corn meal mixture and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a baking dish and bake in a moderate oven for 30 to 45 minutes or until the custard is set. Serve with plenty of butter. Serve from the baking dish.

SOMERSET WOMAN, 81, CASTS FIRST BALLOT

Although Mrs. Elizabeth J. Colson is 81 years old and in good health, she had never voted until the primary election held last Saturday.

Often urged to go to the polls on election day, Mrs. Colson had always refused, but this year she allowed her grandson, J. C. Colson, Pulaski County conservation officer, to persuade her to cast her first ballot. He accompanied her to the polls.—Somerset Journal.

PRAYER OF A NEW HOUSEKEEPER

Help me to keep my home so neat and shining

That folk who enter it will pause and say,

"She loves this place, her fingers touch it gently—Her pride in it will never fade away!"

When I am quite alone, and very busy

At unaccustomed tasks, may each one seem

A small adventure to be met with laughter,

The bright beginning of a happy dream!

Oh, never let my spirit grow impatient

Because there is so little time for rest—

And never let me choose the easy method

When I am sure the harder one is best.

And keep me from forgetting that the beauty

Of flowers compensates one for their care;

But, most of all, make this new home a treasure

That I am eager every day, to share! —Margaret E. Sangster.

'We Work That You May Sleep'

Time to change to MIRACLE COOKERY

DEAR MRS. HOMEFOLKS: Why don't you join the thousands of other American women who, this very month, will do away with old-style cook stoves and start a new "kitchen life" by installing electric ranges and appointing me family cook?

Like them you'll soon be calling me the "miracle cook"—because your meats, vegetables, breads and pastries, etc., will have finer flavor and be more nourishing—because you'll save so much time and work in the preparation of meals—because you'll find me so economical.

See our display of Hotpoint Ranges and other standard makes shown by local dealers. By the way, I'll be glad to supply all your hot water very economically too.
