Our Lady of the Elms
Akron, Ohio

I Am The Mother of...

During this year of Our Lady, we recall Mary's statement that many will grow closer to his Eternal God, only when he faithfully utilizes the everyday means at his disposal. By fulfilling our duties as students and children of Mary, we answer the challenge our Lady has made to each one of us. At the Elms we have been given the opportunity to transform our daily actions into gifts for her Divine Son.

"The same God who bade light shine out of darkness has kindled a light in our hearts."

Corinthians II, 4:6

Above: Freshmen Patricia Doyle, Kathryn Gaskill, Donna George, Becky Fortney, Nancy Hartnett, and Maria Zucco of Home Room 5 rehearse for the comedy "Accent on Revenge" to be presented to the freshman class.

Freshmen . . .

Beginning their four years at O.L.E., the freshmen raised money for the missions by holding raffles. Acquiring their "Big Sisters" helped them to learn the ways of the school with an experienced hand to guide them. Becoming members of the Junior Classical League introduced them to a greater appreciation of Roman culture in our lives. From the freshman class, the Players Guild gained many aspiring actresses. Participation in the school tournaments taught them the value and importance of teamwork.

... Start Anew

Freshmen discovered that Latin is not as dead a language as they thought. Learning algebra opened a completely different field of mathematics to them. The complex study of science began for the first time with enjoyable nature walks about the campus. In religion the detailed study of creation was begun. Essays and book reports prepared them for future term papers and themes. In June the freshmen left behind them a year full of experiences both rewarding and enlightening. A new life had begun.

Sophomores Discover the Past . . .

The business of exploring for the truth can lead one from Roman togas to intercontinental missiles, but sophomores know that the traditions of the ancients reveal much about the citizen of the twentieth century.

Left: Reenacting Roman festivities are the Nine Muses, Sharon McDonald, Paulette Zumpano, Lynn Murphy, Jeanne Ulrich, Jean Hinderscheid, Sue Baumgarten, Kathy Boyle, Mary Ellen Mosher, and Carol Richards; while looking on are the three mythological gods, Emily Ablonczy, Karen Schmitz, and Christine Dougherty.

... at the Elms

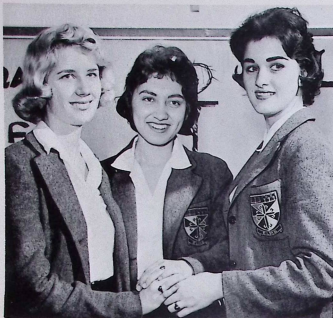

No longer entirely new to the school this year, the sophomores found a new activity open to them in the choir. The Roman Banquet provided the first big project that the sophomores as a class undertook. This year also marked the first time they could make and display projects in the school's science fair. Thus a year full of accomplishments and ever-increasing responsibilities drew to a close.

Above: Geri Zajdel shows the winning valentine to Nancy Dannemiller and Marianne Marzano. As a project, the valentines were done completely in Latin.

Juniors . . .

Since September, the juniors have taken part in many traditions at O.L.E. Beginning with the magazine drive, the juniors showed their leadership by securing the highest total in the school. Following this, they became members of the I.D.A., carrying on the customs of the Elms. Their proudest moment came when they received their class rings making them official upperclassmen. A trip to Washington showed that the juniors can play as well as work.

Row 1: L. Greene, P. DiNuoscio, P. Drach, F. Cafarelli, B. Martin, V. Peter, B. Watts, A. Traub, R. Zucco, J. Sonderman, K. Vaughn, B. Hager, P. O'Connor, B. Smith. Row 2: K. Middendorf, K. Herndon, M. Doll, B. Bertsch, E. Yantis, M. Georges, P. Kraus, R. Owen, D. Blondyn, A. Moriarty, K. Hartz, P. Shirhal, K. Walsh, M. Murphy.

... Accept New Leadership

Many would-be craftsmen found expression in industrial arts, while future writers assumed an active participation in the "Elm Leaf." Still others found speech excellent for possible orators. Richer in mind and soul, the juniors completed another successful year at O.E.

Right: Totaling up the scores, Virginia Peter, Barbara Bertsch, Katherine Walsh, and Rita Zucco find that the juniors attained the highest total in the school.

With the Spirit of Love

With the spirit of love, we join our voices and our laughter in the joy of a well-played game, in the warmth of our parties, and in the work of our clubs. As we share these joys, we strive at the same time to develop an understanding of the meaning of responsibility, of the joy of giving, and of the art of kindness. Long after we have put aside the tools of our games and contests, long after our parties have ended, and long after we have finished our work in these activities, the lessons they have taught us of love, truth, and joy will remain within us.

"Make charity your aim, the spiritual gifts your aspirations . . ."

Sharing is an Art

The hard work clubs demand is over-shadowed by the combinations of laughter and learning we acquire from them. Making our studies seem more worthwhile and providing us with memories of shared joy and work, our clubs fill an important part of our school. Intensive practice with great enjoyment was the resulting keynote of the Choral Choir, whose outstanding performances this year to the efforts of its members. Providing unity between the faculty and the student body, the Student Council has become an important part of Elms life. The purchase of the statue of our Lady presented by the sorority ended the year in the spirit of love.

Seasonal Activities . . .

In the various plays given throughout the year the Elms girls had the opportunity to satisfy their secret passion for the stage. Dances and carnivals provided the chance for each girl to work with classmates toward making the events successful.

... Brighten Calendar

There are few things more essential to a person's happiness than the ability to get along well with friends and acquaintances. While this fine art must be cultivated over a long period of time by the individual herself, a good school offers its students varied opportunities for the development of this aspect of living. Ceremonies, plays, parties—all are fun, and vital to the process of growing up.

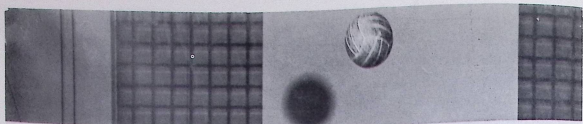

Above: Marianne Marzano, Ellen Young, and Regina Stanford take us back to Ireland in the Irish Play "Come Back To Erin."

Enjoying the annual May breakfast winding up retreat are L. to R. Sandy and Mrs. G. Giusti, retreat master, Father Becker, Bonnie and her mother Mrs. R. Sheck and Mrs. Gill and her daughter Karen.

Right: Linda Voorheis, Ann Marie Testa, and Regina Stanford enter into the spirit of the annual carnival sponsored by the senior class.

Focus on Sports

While spiritual and scholastic aspects form the basis of the student's training, no educational program is complete which fails to provide for the broadening of one's interest through athletic development. Archery, field hockey, badminton and basketball are among the sports offered to Elms girls. Through a program of physical education, Mrs. Paul Baldacci strives to perfect within each girl all the principles of good sportsmanship, leadership, and fair play, making athletic events take a significant part in the development of an envisioned ideal of perfection.

With an Eternal Hope

Hope is an easy word for a graduating senior. It says all those things we try so hard to express when we talk of "next year—and the next . . ." Memory, perhaps, is more concrete. The friends we have made, the knowledge, we have reaped, the ideals we have formed have become an integral part of our lives. But there are times when familiar realities become strange. New uses must be made of them. For the seniors, it's a changing world; and the steadfast and immutable things suddenly become vital . . .

"May God, the author of our hope, fill you with all joy and peace in your believing, so that you may have hope in abundance."

O.L.E. Studies

Left: Through the course of these past four years we have gradually grown to realize how our five postulants have enriched our class with their perseverance and dedication. M. Grande, B. Bezon, S. Toomey, J. Pinchot, and M. Tyler are looking forward to receiving the white veil in August. For them, the future is one of consecrated service in the Dominican way of life.

Fun Through the Years

"To Him, to God who alone is wise, glory be given from age to age."
