Graduation and May Crowning are the climax of the school year at Our Lady of the Elms. With Mary—before the Blessed Sacrament, seniors see a new beginning. The final days of school, after retreat, are filled with partings—and of parties, of excitement and sadness so characteristic of every turning point.

Postulant Lorraine Michaud anticipates the reception of her white veil in August. For her the future holds a life of consecration and devotion to the rule of Saint Dominic.

A physics experiment in measuring increases in acceleration is tackled by Jean Hinderscheid, Kathie Bender, and Susan Heckman.

Unpredictable science experiments, tasty home ec concoctions, and class field trips make the school day exciting as well as challenging. In addition to academic endeavors, there are Mardi Gras festivities, a card party, a tea, and tournaments to keep everybody busy.

"Adventures in Cooking" is the first semester theme followed by Home Economics enthusiasts Pat Carmedy, Joan Near, Janice Tipton, and Bobbie Everhart.

New French teaching techniques and a modern mathematics system were introduced into the curriculum this year. "Buenos Dias" became the favorite greeting of Spanish students who celebrated Christmas in the tradition complete with a "pinata." The model United Nations General Assembly

While Sister M. Dominica and Mrs. Paul Baldacci lend some friendly advice, Mrs. Reidy, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Thomann, and Mrs. Magyary participate in the annual I.D.A. card party.

Towards happiness by sharing . . .

While "Elm Leaf" editors were striving to meet deadlines, Sodalists were organizing a clothing drive to help needy American Indians. Various classes and organizations of the school worked side by side this year to promote unity among the students. Student Council conveyed the idea of a "Better You," and National Honor Society members aimed to place scholarship in its proper perspective.

Players Guild and the Choral Choir combined their efforts to produce the musicale, "Mr. Crane of Sleepy Hollow." Although many meetings and rehearsals required time and effort from everyone, the success of projects this year compensated for everything. The annual May crowning culminates our year—together! And 1962 at the Elms was study, service, laughter, loyalty . . .

Athletic training, as well as intellectual and spiritual development, is an important facet in a thorough education. Hockey, volleyball, and basketball tournaments not only enliven class spirit but also promote school unity. Sports such as badminton, archery, and fencing combine co-ordination with skill. This year, horseback riding provided sophomores and freshmen with the opportunity to display their ability as equestrians.

ines the present

As early as November sophomore biologists begin work on science projects. Parallelograms often pose problems in geometry, and Julius Caesar is still crossing the Rubicon in sophomore Latin classes. French students strive to perfect their accents, while journalism and English improve writing techniques. The Life of Christ becomes vivid to the girls through Religion II.

New worlds open for freshmen

Looking forward to a rewarding, but challenging four years at the Elms, the freshmen find a new world of mathematics opened to them in algebra, and their utmost concentration is given to Latin conjugations. General science and health reveal some of nature's complexities, while world geography and history familiarize them with the terrain and peoples of the earth. A deeper love and understanding of their religion is embedded in them through their study of the Liturgy.

Geography students Susan Richards, Sharon George, and Frances Gradisar explore the nations of the world through maps and charts.

Visual aid charts and models facilitate health study for freshmen Linda Large, Pat Spencer, Mary Rita Schmitz, and Marilyn Spallino.

An orientation day, and a luncheon given by their "big sisters" were two of the first enjoyable social events for frosh.

Freshmen and sophomores donned togas for the JCL hop and slave auction; while year-round sports helped "fledglings" pull together.

Make my life the s

The business of "education" is complex. The intellect, the will, the emotions—the "whole" person is to be developed at the Elms. Freshmen are encouraged to fill their lives with truth, "ever old and ever new." The Dominican tradition in education helps them to realize the far-reaching implications of their religion and assists them in finding both joy and fulfillment in every phase of their academic program.
