Freshmen acquire experience

The beginning freshman at the Elms learns quickly the necessity of balancing a full program of Latin verbs, Shakespeare, volleyball rules, planning committees, and a new world of math and science. Talking before a group, helping a clean-up crew, collecting class dues—all give her a new idea of responsibility.

LEFT: Peggy Riccardi and twins Sandy and Susan Parker learn table setting and etiquette in the Christian family course. This setting was picnic style.

RIGHT: Seeking to add a new word to their vocobulary are freshmen Helen Payerle, Sue Mumper, and Johann Mollohan.

Sophomores search for happiness and to accept

Student Council and JCL provide areas of leadership for the new sophomores. Religion and biology require the logic learned in geometry, while French and Latin continue to pose problems and provide laughter at some of their attempted solutions. Choral Choir and Players Guild afford sophomores the opportunities to develop themselves while entertaining others. The social and educational are balanced by the Toga Hop, mission activities, and world history projects which round out a productive year.

Dissecting a crayfish is Karen Kelly assisted by fellow sophomores Adrienne Duzy and Sue Summerville.

Watching the activities of seahorses in the aquarium are sophomore biology students Sharon George and Lynda Culp.

Juniors strive for maturity ...

to the age of discovery in en have entered. Chemical quations make problems for the for a lifetime. The new age of only the educational, but the IDA induction, card party, and the Christmas Cotillion. Crowning the year, the ring ceremony gives the juniors a symbol of the courage that should accompany their new-found but ever-growing maturity. Responsibilities and privileges alike bring an appreciation of past lessons and the promise of Senior year as rewarding the past—another discovery.

Michael DiSalle was re-elected governor as the juniors cast their votes in a mock election. Sorting out campaign literature are Gabriele Seidel, Roseann Trecaso, Linda Barbuto, and Sandy Ladwig.

School activities offer ideal:

"Not to progress is to go back" has motivated the Student Council, Players Guild, and Choral Choir, as well as all other school organizations, Players Guild meetings aim to acquaint members, with various facets of acting. Its production, "Breath of Spring," gave members practical experience, while entertaining the whole school countries of the production of the producti

The annual Choral Choir program at Poliky's evidenced enthusiasm and hours of rehearsals. The Student Council effected numerous improvements, with the Christmas Mail Box and giant wreath adding a festive air, and the virtue of the month providing inspiration.

CENTER: The deft hands of Janice Matvey apply makeup to Gabriel Seidel as she rehearses a scene with Mary Lou Hurt.

"each duty to fulfill . . . "

Stressing the fact that the present is built on the past, JCL informed and entertained its members with the Roman Banquet and Toga Hop. Education was carried outside the classroom through its informative meetings and activities.

ABOVE: Sister de Montfort explains to open house visitors Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Zwisler the courses their daughter will study in biology as a sophomore.

RIGHT: Black Peter and Saint Nicholas make their annual visit to the Elms this year in the persons of seniors Mary Lou Hurt and Becky Fortney.

The tinsel on the spotlighted tree glitters in the background as Sue Walsh and Al Rolland dance to the music of Pat DeRosa.

Being together brings gladness

These are the faces of happy people who are enjoying the fruit of their effort whether it be decorating for a dance, rehearing a tilt in the decorating for a dance, rehearing a tilt lime, hard work, and prayers are the ingredients of a successful event at the Elms. The rewards both temporal and eternal reflect themselves in cheerful countenances, the mirrors of glad hearts of spirited Elmites. For freshmen JCL opens the door of extractricular extivities such as Choral Choir, Players Guild. Sodality, Student Council, and lota Delta Alpha sorroity.

Sister Matilda coaches beginner Carnen Stewart in the techniques of ail painting.

Juniors Rosalie Ruggerio and Christy May "sit this one out" with their dates Dick Jebber and Mike Baughman at the Christmas Cotillion sponsored by IDA sorority.

Meeting at the refreshment stand are sophomore Gail Brady and her date, Hoban senior Pat McDonald. Other area high school students join the fun.

Physical education

RIGHT: Demonstrating a salute in a fencing exhibition are sophomore fencers Gail Brady and Marilyn Spallino.

develops timing and coordination

Rosie Hamad and Bobbi Hall help Cindy Wernig strap on her goalie pads as the freshmen prepare for their first venture on to the hockey field.

RIGHT: Junior Markie Evans displays her gymnastic ability in this phase of physical education introduced into classes for the first time this year.

The physical education department affords students ample opportunity to display atthletic provess in any or all of the balanced activities of limited and vigorous exercise. In addition to the longestablished games of hockey, volleyabl. Ibasthahl, bachminton, golf, archery, and the popular horseback riding, fencing, and basic gymnastics have been recently introduced. Intramural to unumments high, light the season as teams wie for the covered class trephy and spectators cheer their comrades on to victory.

Senior postulant Margaret Sweeney typifies the spirit of leadership and charity in the senior class. Her constant smile and ready willingness to help will carry her on to success on a Sister of Saint Deminic.

Thy faithful

The annual May crowning is symbolic of the spirit of consecration and service which is the ideal offered to every Elms graduate.

Graduation to the senior is a culmination of four years of loyalty, leadership, and a service of love to her school. As daughters of the Elms, we are an ever-increasing number moving toward the time when we are the wives, the mothers, the career women, the religious of a new generation.

A. ELM LEAF co-editor Maria Zucco points out the necessary changes to the printer, Mr. Paul Underwood, as sports editor Kathy Horrigan looks on.

B. Carmela Tramonte, National Honor Society president, adjusts Candy Nolan's newly received pin as Pat Traub watches as Kathy Greene prepares to give Candy her membership card.

C. A very active Student Council initiated several new projects this year, one of which was the Christmas mailbox. Sophomores Chris Martin, Karen Patterson, and Pat Kiernan stamp envelopes as Karen Simms mails her Yule greetings.
