

11 11 THE CARRIER PIGEON 11 11

Published each term by the pupils of the Oxford Elementary School

Single Copy 25 cents

EDITORIAL STAFF

Editor in Chief	- - - - -	Margaret Stewart
Business Manager	- - - - -	Clark Galloway
Literary Editor	- - - - -	Gladys Watt
Joke Editor	- - - - -	Margaret Sharpe
News Editor	- - - - -	Joseph Wright

EDITORIAL

There are many reasons for our magazine. I will tell you some of them.

First, we want our parents and friends to know more about what we are doing.

Second, the editing of the paper will help us in business experiences which teach us how things are done in real life.

It will benefit other classes in the school for they will also contribute to it.

We know many people are very interested in us, and we hope this will bring us nearer still to those who may feel as we do that we are doing things worth while.

So we send to you today from Oxford School Home on Oxford Hill our Carrier Pigeon with our first printed message. We hope you will welcome the greetings it brings. As the years go on and the Carrier Pigeon flies more often we hope you may welcome it and its message every time.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE AT OXFORD SCHOOL

Every year at Oxford School,
They have a very happy rule.
There is a big, big Christmas tree,
Which all the teachers buy, you see.
It is all trimmed with pretty things
Fit to show before grand kings.
Mr. Casson turns on the light,
So that things will look just right.
Then at the tree without a flaw,
The children stand and gaze with awe.

JULIA ELLIS,
High Sixth.

AT CHRISTMAS

At the Oxford School, every year,
Stands a Christmas tree so fine,
With its chains of brightest colors
And lights that flicker and shine.

The children every day
Gather round the lighted tree,
They sing and dance recess and noon,
With hearts all full of glee.

RICHARD McCARTHY,
High Sixth.