

Visit the Historic Village of Whitesbog

This month on If Plants Could Talk, hosts Bill Hlubik and Nick Polanin visit the Historic Village of Whitesbog, NJ, birthplace of the blueberry industry, to learn about Elizabeth White, a pioneer in horticulture. They will demonstrate the best way to grow blueberries and provide a look at how our state's farmers cultivate blueberries. If Plants

Could Talk airs the first Saturday of each month at 12:30 PM.

The episode on blueberries airs on Saturday, July 6 at 12:30 PM; rebroadcast Sunday, July 7 at 6:30 PM.

If Plants Could Talk features gardening tips from local university experts, successful farmers, master gardeners and many other plant experts. Rutgers Cooperative Extension produces the half-hour gardening show, which is now in its third year on NJN Public Television.

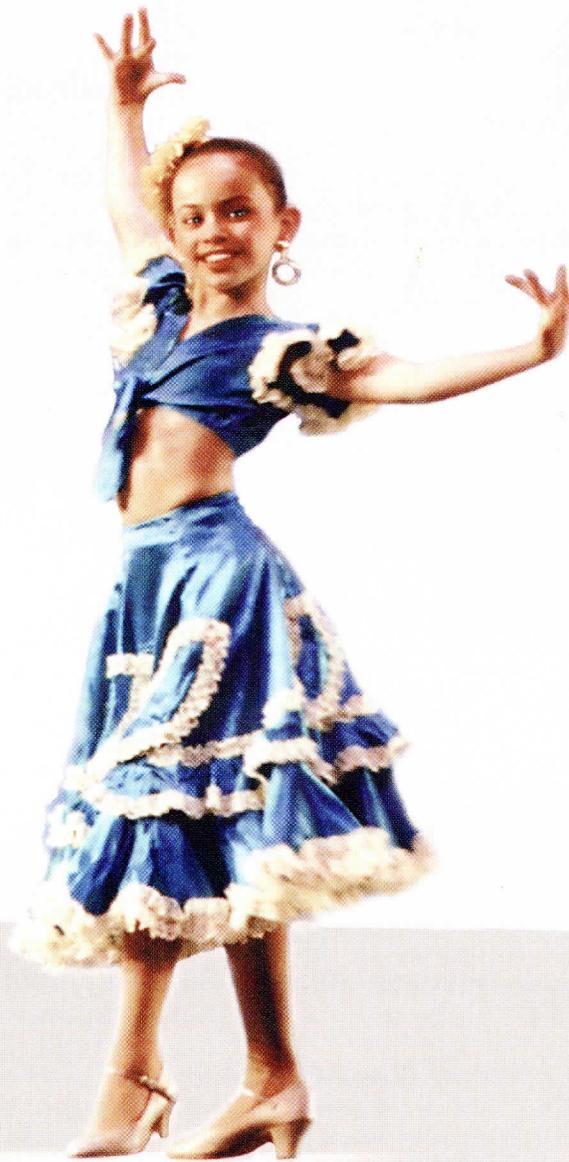

Bill Hlubik created the program to extend the educational outreach of the Rutgers Cooperative Extension Agricultural Department in 1997. Along the way, he's presented his audience with great new plant varieties, the latest on integrated pest management and helpful "how to" tips, while visiting some of the most beautiful places in New Jersey.
