

December 4, 2003

Community News

A look at the engine that powers Whitesbog Village

By Beth Mitchell

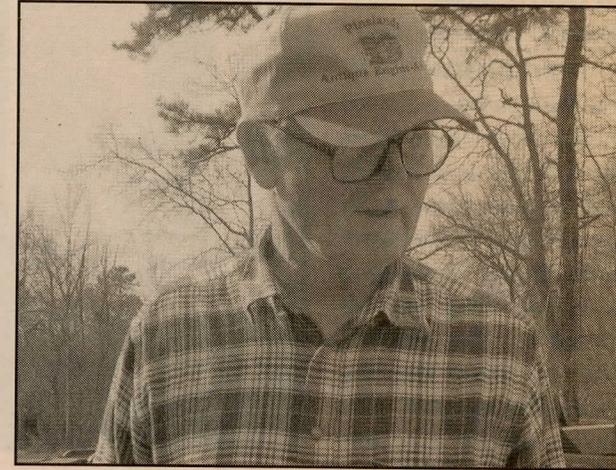

Special to Community News

PEMBERTON TWP.-

There is a symbiotic relationship going on at Whitesbog Village, located in the Browns Mills section of the township. The Pinelands Antique Engine Association and the Whitesbog Trust Preservation Society work hand-in-hand to continue to bring back Whitesbog to its former glory.

The tractor found at Whitesbog village is part of the tractor club's refurbished works.

All Rachel Havens/SPECIAL TO COMMUNITY NEWS
Bill King explains the intricacies of the tractor club.

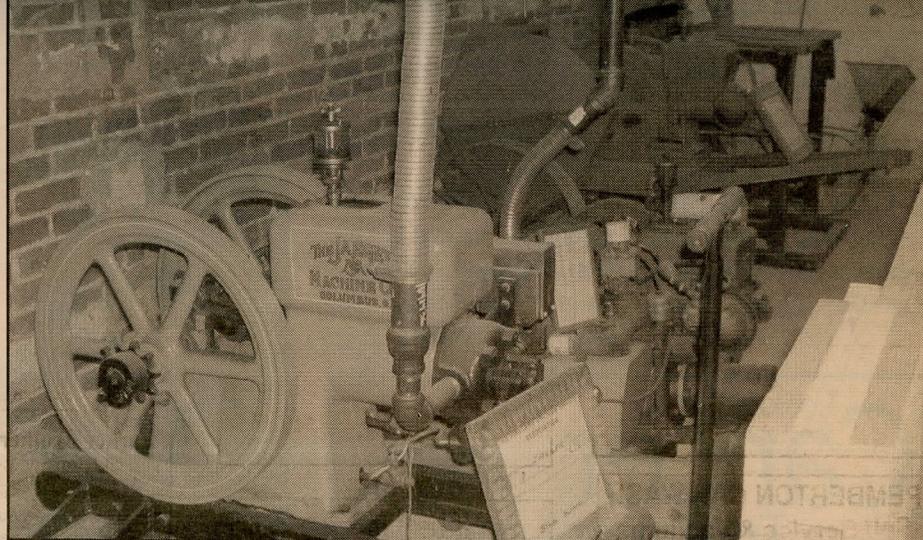

Here are the machines that kept Whitesbog running for so many years.

Framed $20.
Unframed $10.

To Benefit Whitesbog Township H...

Here are the machines that kept Whitesbog running for so many years.

The Whitesbog Trust has provided the Pinelands Antique Engine Association with a building, which now houses the museum for this association. In turn, the association provides the trust with assistance in maintaining the grounds or residing the outside of a barn and even utilizing their refurbished to haul the wagons for the hayrides sponsored by the trust. It's a sort of give and give back here at Whitesbog.

build a miniature train, there was a "New Jersey Devil" riding machine, complete with a smoking whistle and other whatnots all built for the amusement of the children on the grounds.

Bill King, a long time member of the Pinelands Antique Engine Association and volunteer at Whitesbog, explained that the goal of both organizations is to help Whitesbog Village in whatever way possible. "After all, Whitesbog is part of our history. Our local history is wound up in Whitesbog, as is our state history - it's part of us and needs to be remembered."

What about those tractors? The association finds old and oftentimes unusable tractors, dismantles them, rebuilds them, and the end product is a fine, working John Deere tractor, which is then used for projects at Whitesbog.

Little riding machines could be seen being driven on the grounds. Tractor engines had been used to

LOOK
Century 21
Alliance
SELLS MORE HOUSES!
894-4333