

09080 ON 1770H INNOV
121 PINE ST
JANET ROBBINS
CNO80102 10
*****5-DIGIT 8

COMMUNITY NEWS

Email: INGCNews@aol.com

July 4, 2002

Volume 20, Number 27

<http://www.sjcommunitynews.com>

(609)893-4585

"NJ Weedman" cultivates another lawsuit

$5 Million, change of venue sought from girlfriend and county judges

By Hartriono B. Sastrowardoyo

Like a dandelion on a well-manicured lawn, Ed "NJWeedman" Forchion's newest lawsuit has arrived at the Burlington County Superior Court. This time he filed a $5 million lawsuit claiming denial of freedom of speech and freedom of religion against his girlfriend, Linda Holden, and Judges Maria Bell, John Almeida, as well as two other judges. Citing that the judges sit on a Burlington County court,

See page 8

Going bananas for blueberries

By Timothy Radice

'A BASKET FULL O' BLUES'

COMMUNITY NEWS

Email: INGCNews@aol.com

July 4, 2002

Volume 20, Number 27

<http://www.sjcommunitynews.com>

(609)893-4585

"NJ Weedman" cultivates another lawsuit

$5 Million, change of venue sought from girlfriend and county judges

By Hartriono B. Sastrowardoyo

Like a dandelion on a well-manicured lawn, Ed "NJWeedman" Forchion's newest lawsuit has arrived at the Burlington County Superior Court. This time he filed a $5 million lawsuit claiming denial of freedom of speech and freedom of religion against his girlfriend, Linda Holden, and Judges Maria Bell, John Almeida, as well as two other judges. Citing that the judges sit on a Burlington County court,

See page 8

Going bananas for blueberries

By Timmothy Radice

The Blueberry Festival this past Saturday had a significant amount in attendance and is quite possibly known as the "best" in the past years. This fun-filled experience left a resounding effect of the community as a warm, intimate, and friendly community. The entertainment and attractions were many, and they offered many

See page 6

'A BASKET FULL O' BLUES'

PHOTO BY Tom Walker

Break out the blueberries! What seems to be billions of blueberries bask in a basket from the best Blueberry Festival in Burlington County. The well-attended Festival was held June 29th in Whitesbog, and in addition to blueberries, blueberry smoothies, blueberry pies and blueberry preserves, fish, birds, music, and crafts were also in abundance.

Burlington Co. schools not making the grade

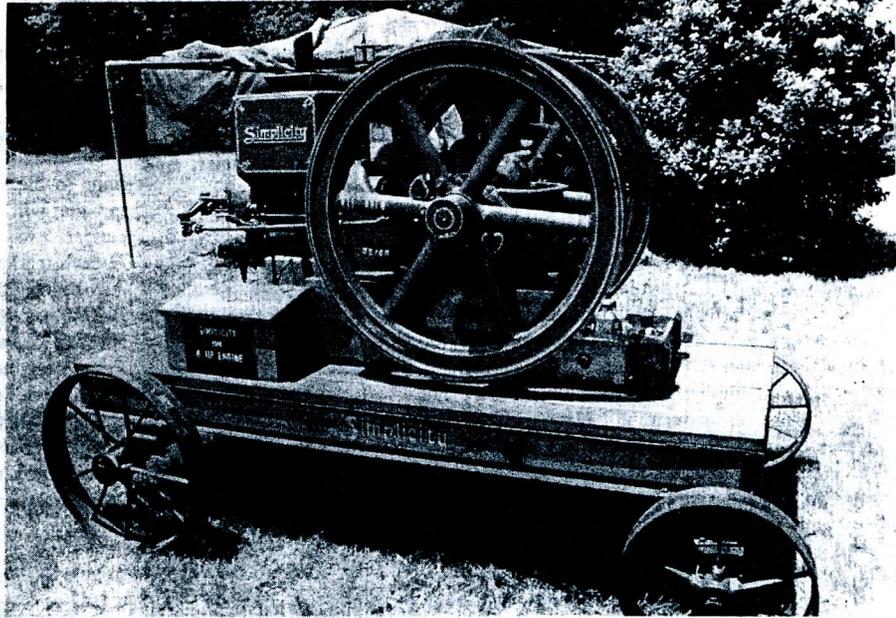

By Bob Vassallo

No one blue at Whitesbog Blueberry Festival

WHITESBOG BLUEBERRY FESTIVAL PHOTOS BY TOM WALKER

Sarah Coyn is crowned Burlington County FarmFair Queen during the day.

A historic engine was on display during the festival.

Visitors to the fair enjoy the water tank and craft tables.

Some friendly alpacas are featured at the Fenwick Manor Farm.

Whitesbog Festival

July 4, 2002

COMMUNITY NEWS

From page 1

different experiences for those from out-of-town. The most eye-catching attraction for the young at heart would be the exhibit of the birds. These animals consisted of a screeching owl, eagle, and barn owl. This was one of the many attractions that caught the eye of many and that had peeked interest into the minds of others. This attraction would be the offsetting factor to the business set across from the populated booth. This business was conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taverner of Northeast Kettle Korn Co. This highly selling idea of Kettle Korn goes to the foundation that something sweet is good to eat. Their business venture together as business partners at the Festival was highly successful in helping to promote their product. As for the other aspects of the food industry at the Festival, the many food stands and blueberry products sold were a big success. The one stand that is to believe to be the most auspicious would be the fish fry stand.

Although there was a frost this year, that caused the blueberry picking to halted, there were many other ways of attaining blueberries. One stand was selling a flat of blueberries for $16, along with the many products that can be made. There were also many other stands that would sell blueberry smoothies, blueberry preserves, and blueberry pie. Not only were the blueberry products moving, but the varied food products were a big reason to sit under the trees and the tent's set up on the grounds from the unbroken heat.

This Festival had much to offer and with the weather permitting, there was much fun to be had and seen. There were also so many forms of artistic expression at this Festival. There were paintings, decorations for the house, and candle making. These forms of artistic expression filled the time for those young ones to enjoy the day. For those that are grown, the many talented musical acts proved to be very entertaining and asking for more. From the many vendors to the natural inhabitants of the earthly forests, the Blueberry Festival had a great showing of people and pride, for which this

5

July 4, 2002

COMMUNITY NEWS

Whitesbog Festival

PHOTOS BY TOM WALKER

Yum funnel cake was a popular item at the Whitesbog Blueberry Festival (pictured above). Learning about boat building was another attraction during the day.

David Stensland is busy knitting away.

Moon bounce at Whitesbog

Children enjoy the 'Moonbounce' attraction during the blueberry festival held this past weekend.