CHORAL UNION TO PRESENT CANTATA

The Choral Union is presenting "The Seven Last Words" by Th. Dubois, Friday afternoon, 4:15 p.m. at the Church of the Brethren. This oratorio was written with the usage of the seven last words which Christ spoke on the cross, each as the theme for a song. The words are used in the order in which Christ spoke them.

There are three soloists appearing with the chorus. Rolland K. Gallison (full name by request) bariton; Mirian Steeves Singer, soprano; and Winston Richards, tenor.

This oratorio is very beautiful, and its spiritual value serves as a lasting inspiration to all who hear it. All attending will be enlightened and made more reverent this Easter-time for having listened to this presentation of the Crucifixion on Good Friday.

FASHION SHOW GIVEN

The playlet given by the Cultural Advancement Class on Wednesday evening was "Wake Up and Dream". In this manner spring and summer costumes for the younger set were presented through the courtesy of Seiver's and John P. Evans clothiers shops of Pomona.

Mr. Carl Dutcher and Miss Kay Greenawalt, known in the play as Kenney and Marj, sat comfortably on the stage and slept through the fashion show which was a parade of their long forgotten girl and boy friends.

This novel way of giving a fashion display proved very successful. The many attractive manikens were carefully selected members of our own student body, and the great variety of color and style displayed suited their individualities.

Several very entertaining musical numbers were presented during the course of the evening.

DUTIES OF COMMISSIONERS

Our Associated Student election is not far off. By next Tues., April 14, all petitions for candidates which bear signatures of 10% of the Assoc. Students, must be turned in for approval by the commission and the faculty. Then, the next Fri., April 17, the Assoc. Student meeting will be given over to Campaign speeches for the various candidates, didates, and to the primary election, Tues. April 21. If no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast for any office, another election will be held. The elected Commission will be installed May 1.

As the coming election approaches, let us keep in mind the capability and experience of the various candidates and their capacity for carrying out the duties which will consequently fall upon them. First comes the president who presides over our Commission meetings, Assoc. Student meetings and presents La Verne at the intercollegiate events, such as the Southern California Presidents Assoc.

Next in importance, probably, is the Commissioner of Finance, who has direct control over the purse strings of the Assoc. He receives and disburses all Assoc. Student funds, subject to the approval of the Commission. Next comes the important and responsible position of Commissioner of Athletics, who will direct all athletic activities in cooperation with the coach and managers.

Following this is the Com. of Publications, who will supervise all Assoc. Student publications.

One of the most outstanding commissioners is the Welfare Commissioner, who directs all social activities of the Assoc. Students, cooperates in all activities affecting the general welfare of the students, and has charge of the "date book" in which all student activities must be registered.

And last is the Com. of Forensics, who has a big job to perform, namely: Supervise all Assoc. Student Forensics, Dramatics and Music activities; and also supervise the stage, its equipment and the schedule for the use of the stage. --The Editor

OBSERVATIONS ON POLITICS

As the Campaign progresses and gets hotter, everyone should try to keep a friendly spirit, especially toward opponents so that when the election is over no one will have a group of enemies and no animosity will have been made. Campaign managers should see to it that their own posters as well as their opponents are no marred.

No one need get uncontrollably "hetup" over the campaign. After all, the world or its end does not depend on THIS election. Of course, everyone should use all seriousness in making his choices, no one need lose any sleep or become a "tottering nervous wreck" because his or her favorite did not win the election. In other words the school will go no matter who is elected.

Furthermore, I hope that those qualities as expressed by you in the "Best Leopard" contest and those which you consider essential to good executive management will be employed by you in casting your forthcoming ballot. Especially we should emphasize broadmindedness, calm consideration, and the general welfare of LaVerne in the light of its athletic and cultural needs. Everyone is working for what he thinks is the best interests of LaVerne; the athlete, the debater, the actor, and even myself, William (Billy) Randolph Hearst, as sometimes called. Well, one further observation and I must quit. No one ever told me,, but I've heard that politics is bad business. If you're in it, you must either be fast, strong, and merciless, or get out. And if you're out, you have the "peace that passeth understanding".

EUROPEAN SITUATION

Last week in an editorial the editor presented France's point of view. To be fair to both sides, I will present Germany's viewpoint this week.

To understand more clearly Germany's point of view which seeks to justify remilitarization of the Rhineland, let us view in retrospect the events since the Armistice in late 1918.

When Germany accepted the Armistice, it was made clear that the peace which was to follow would be based on Wilson's Fourteen Points. The Treaty of Versailles not only failed to embody many of the principles of the fourteen points, but shouldered Germany with sole war guilt which became the basis of reparations, amounting to thirty-two billion dollars. When Germany defaulted on her regular payments because of impoverishment and internal instability, France sent troops into the Ruhr district and thus further embittered the entire German population.

Under the Versailles Treaty, Germany was disarmed upon the pledge of other countries to follow the same course. Hardly (cont. p.11)

MEN ACT LIKE. . . . MEN

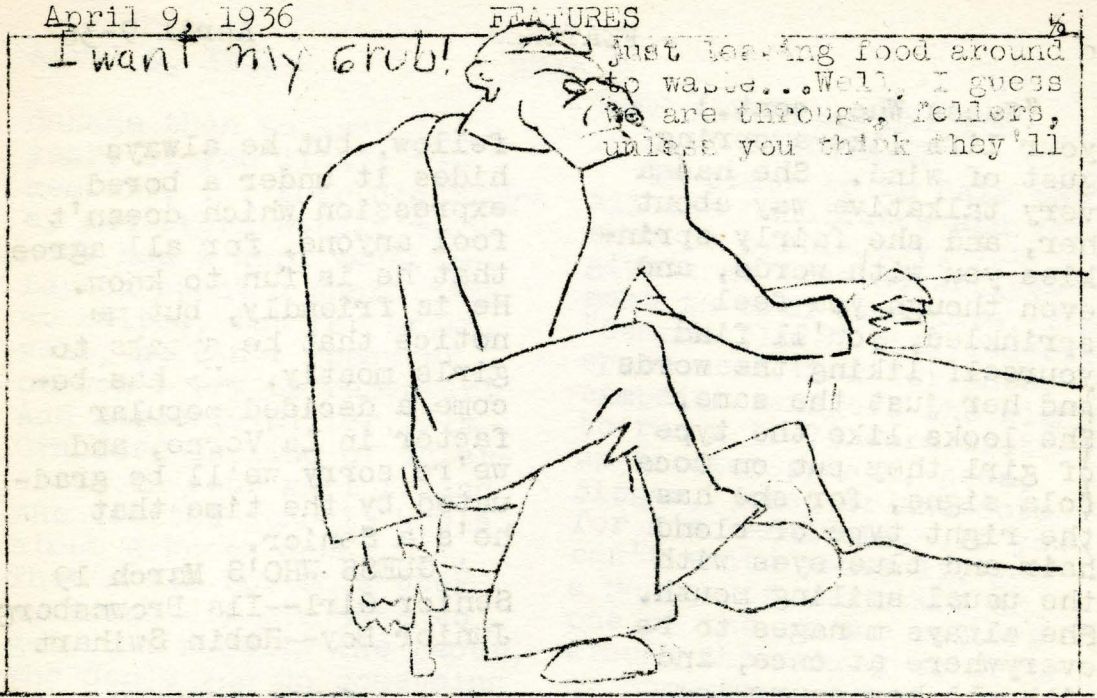

We still have the good old fashioned men around here who believe that a man's strength is in what he eats. They are relatives of Pop Eye for muscle is their ideal in life. These men usually eat in the Dining Club, and they even have the waiter trained to gather up all the left-overs from the other tables and bring it to them. Their conversation goes something like this:

"Hey, don't let anyone take these empty places at our table, there'll be more for us to eat if there are only a few of us here. . . and for Pete's sakes, don't let girls sit with us, they only eat the salad and look at us as if we were pigs. . . if you can imagine that one.

"You know since I've been going out for track; . I've lost pounds, and I've got to gain at least five of them back this meal. . Hurry and eat more of that goulash so we can ring for more.

"Hey, hand me that plate again; I've only had four helpings out of it. Babe, here, has had at least five helpings.

"Stutzie, ring again, and tell him we want bigger and more bread....Did you see that waiter's expression? You'd think a feller didn't dare ask for his third plate of bread around here.....

"Butcher, I'll bet I gained more weight and muscle that you did this week. I'd show you, only I haven't time to stop eating....

"Johnny(or Ellwood) will you sneak over there and grab that desert that girl left?...Imagine anyone just leaving food around to waste....Well, I guess we are through, fellers, unless you think they'll let us out to scrape that pan...

"Babe, you look like you could still eat enough to scrape it.....

You know, I must be getting old or something; lately it seems that I c can't even get up from the table like I used to. . .

your life like a spring gust of wind. She has a very talkative way about her, and she fairly sprinkles you with words, and even though you feel sprinkled, you'll find yourself liking the words and her just the same. She looks like the type of girl they put on Coca Cola signs, for she has the right type of blond hair and blue eyes with the usual smiling mouth. She always manages to be everywhere at once, and with all her scurrying hither and yon, she adapts herself very well. She's probably had many spring fevers, but right now she's inclined to the auburn haired variety. And all in all, we need her sunshine around here.

GUESS WHO Frosh Boy

Someday when we grow up and are big enough we're going to hold him on our lap, for he's just the cuddly little boy that would be fun to tell pirate stories to, and when you'd finished he'd say, "Tell me another one, Grandma". His voice hasn't changed yet, but it probably will some day. He's a peppy fellow, but he always hides it under a bored expression which doesn't fool anyone, for all agree that he is fun to know. He is friendly, but we notice that he speaks to girls mostly. He has become a decided popular factor in La Verne, and we're sorry we'll be graduated by the time that he's a Senior.

FROSH REALLY CAME THRU

The baby Leopards sprang out from their lair, March 26 with all the agility and success of adults. The Frosh under the leadership of Kutchy and Johnnie surpassed all expectations of the Sophomores in their April Fool edition of the Campus. From the advent of Boaz, the clown, to the dying sound of the tuba at the finis of the parade, hilarity reigned supreme for the Leopard Kittens as did amusement for the seasoned Cats.

If you can't write yourself, get a member of the staff or one of the clever writers around the school to write or compose one for you. This article may be anything you wish. Pick your own heading. Gladden B. Walks Into Car Vacation seems to have had ill effects on several of our most active Leopards. Gladden Boaz is at the present time in a hospital in Bakersfield recuperating from an accident. He and Johnny Landis were hitch-hiking back to school after a week's stay at Johnny's home in Live Oak. Boaz is suffering from a broken collar bone Johnny returned to school alone, and it is hoped that Gladden will do the same very soon.

La Verne Crites and Willie McDaniels seem to be suffering from the mumps, but not together as they might wish. Both are at their homes, and are expected back here again soon.

Y.W. NOMINATES CANDIDATES

An important meeting of the Y.W. will be held on Friday for the nomination of officers for next year. Campaign managers will give their speeches and there will be an opportunity for nominations from the floor. The following nominations were made by the Y.W. cabinet.

Y. W. Holds Hi-Jinks

The Y.W.C.A. girls had a splendid time at the Hi-Jinks party Tues. evening in Fellowship Hall. Everyone came dressed to represent a character from Mother Goose. Doris B. was given a box of stationary for the costume of "Mary, Mary, Quite contrary". Doris, Virginia, and Phyllis made a jolly trio dressed as the "Three Little Pigs." V.Massey had the funniest costume--"Wee Willie Winkie." The faculty and classes gave skits for entertainment. Then games were played and the evening ended with a grand finale when Pie-a-la-Mode was served.----------Jessie

CAUSTIC COMMENT

In this school we have an organization which is sponsored, organized, and upheld by the women alone, the Young Women's Christian Association. This chapter of the national Y.W.C.A. was founded here to give every girl an opportunity to do actual work for Christ in our college. It is the only strictly women's organization on the campus, being so organized that every girl may become a member without any mandatory obligation on her part.

It is known that if every girl does not do her part, if she does not make an effort to attend meetings and uphold the association in its activities, L.V.C. will no longer have need of its chapter. It is also a known fact that there are the special few in this school who do exert all of their energies to make the organization more than a struggling one. The others who are inactive and who criticize the activities of this group, do so with the wrong attitude. They believe that it is run by a clique, that favors are given. It so happens that this so-called clique "is" the bluc and it is because the others have not shown sufficient interest in assisting with the work of the organization that they feel left out of it. Consequently they do not attend meetings or even its parties. They do not exert any of their energies to help build an organization. They don't seem to realize that what organization there is, is made by the activity and interest of its members. These members try their hardest to make the club as appealing and interesting as possible to non-members. This fact should be recognized and respected by those people. If this attitude were used, it alone would help stimulate initiative and further activity of the members.

The Y.W.C.A. starts on its program for a new year of activity with the election of officers next week. With newly aroused interest and initiative, the organization hopes to carry on successfully the good work done this year.

TETER? BUTTERBAUGH MARRIAGE

The highlight event of Easter vacation for the friends of Alta Mae Teter and Fred Butterbaugh, was their marriage at the Santa Ana Church of the Brethren, April 6, 8 o'clock.

The bride chose for her wedding dress a beautiful white satin gown with a finger-tip veil caught around her head with a stiff lace crown. She carried no additional accessories other than a beautiful bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley mixed with white roses and fern.

Opal Burnette, maid-of honor and the brides' only attendant, wore a peach taffeta dress. Orange variegated sweet peas comprised her bouquet and corsage worn in her hair. As his attendent, Fred chose Royal Glick.

The church was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies and a white fence across the front of the pulpit. Maurine Moomaw and Elsworth Teter sang solos preceeding the ceremony. Dan Stover as accompanist also played the wedding march.

Many of the invited friends of the couple were able to attend the occasion. Those representing college friends were: Margarite Deal, Wilma Lambeth, Virginia Watson, Altonetta Waas, Kay Steele, Everett Myer, George Steele, Don Verbeck, June Walker, Merlin Eisenbise, Ralph Smeltzer, Mr. and Mrs. La Follette, and Dr. and Mrs. Studebaker.

The young couple left the same evening for an unannounced destination. They will return to Fallbrook to make their home, and Fred will resume his teaching in the public school next week.

EISENBISE GIVES WARNING

The next few weeks will be a busy occassion for all politically minded Leopards. Let's elect those officials who are best suited for the jobs rather than on the basis of friendly scruples. Fight hard for the person you want, but let it not be said that you were not tactful. Avoid as much petty greviences and personal animosities. Let's go for a hard fought election and thenhelp till it hurts to uphold our new officials.

ZO CLASS TAKES TRIP

The zoology class met at 5o'clock Monday morning for a field trip to study birds. They journeyed to the salt marshes near Balboa where th they studied many interesting kinds of waterfoul--including egrets, cormorants, stilts, and samdpipers. Then, at the beach, they identified some of the marine birds. After a lunch on the sand, the young zoologists returned home, much to their regret.

had peace been concluded before France began a "search for security". Within seven years she had negotiated treaties and extended huge credits, for munition purchases in France, to all of the countries surrounding Germany. It is no wonder that Germany doubted the sincerity of the Allies in general and of France in particular.

It was during this period in 1925, that the Locarno Treaties were concluded, to a great extent, as the result of the efforts of the great German statesman, Gustav Stresemann. The Locarno Pact was intended not only to guarantee the security of France, but also that of Germany. That security now is being violated by the military alliance between France and Russia. Hitler declares that because of France's new military alliance with Russia, the Locarno Treaty which guarantees the frontiers of Germany, France, and Belgium has ceased to exist. What has happened this time is indicative of what so often takes place in international desagreements: an asserted violation of a treaty by one nation justifies a violation by the other party.

Germany demand and was refused equality of armaments at the Geneva Disarmament Conference in 1932, either by disarmament or rearmament. This paved the way for the unilateral breaking of the disarmament clauses of the Versailles Treaty. For why should Germany be called upon to forego military forces when the rest of Europe are constantly increasing their armaments and by treaty and alliance making their position relatively more secure?

Provision is made under the covenant of the League for the revision of treaties but French opposition has prevented any change in the status quo.

As an expression of equality and sovereignty, Hitler has moved troops into the Rhineland to occupy definitely German territory. Thus remilitarization wipes out the last vestige of the oppressive clauses of the Versailles Treaty.
