STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONFERENCE AT U. S. C.

The annual fall conference of Student Volunteers met at the Y. M. C. A. hut at the University of Southern California Saturday, December 9. La Verne was well represented with eighteen students and friends.

After the devotions led by Miss Louise Houston, President of the Southern California Union, several "outgoing volunteers", Miss Lura Hixson and Roger Cumberland, gave short talks.

Three returned missionaries were the speakers for the remainder of the morning service. Dr. Boyd, a medical missionary who has spent twenty-four years in Canton, China, told of the opportunities of winning souls to Christ thru the means of healing the physical body. There are great problems on the field, but Jesus solves all the problems. To go through troubles "on your knees" is better than any other way.

Mrs. Dye, a missionary from Africa told in a very interesting way the side lines of preparation, giving the story of her own experience. Her good, practical advice was welcomed by all the volunteers. Study the fields to which you go. Be an expert in many things. Cultivate a great deal of imagination. Cultivate love for needy humanity. Above everything, have faith, an implicit and unflinching faith at all times.

A Mrs. Rosenberger from Palestine, told of the problems peculiar to that field. Palestine is the fanatical center of three religions. The population is counted in three distinct classes on the census, as Jews, Moslems, and Christians. To call everyone who does not belong to either of the first two classes, a Christian, regardless of his erroneous beliefs, makes it very difficult for the missionary work of the true, Protestant Christians.

The noon intermission from 12:30 till 2 o'clock was enjoyably spent in eating luncheon at the U. S. C. cafeteria and in getting acquainted with students from other schools.

The afternoon session opened with devotions by Miss Beth Dean of Occidental College. Miss Daisy Law, a

The College football boys certainly have a friend in Mr. Wright at the Sweet Shop. After the Redlands game and also after the Santa Barbara game he had all the fellows in for a treat. The fellows certainly appreciate it and the whole school appreciates his interest in us and his hearty support of all our activities.

Chinese student at S. B. U. C., told why she wanted to go back to China, stating that China is in desperate need; that her life is not her own, and that she must go back to help bring Christ to the people. Her words of caution were, "Be true to your conviction. Keep your vision clear by keeping close to God. Be true to your commission."

Miss Yerebakan, of S. B. U. C., told why she wanted to go back to Greece as a missionary. Although becoming a Christian in her native country, it was in America that she found the call to be a missionary. She wants to go back to Greece where her life can count for the most.

Probably one of the strongest speakers of the afternoon was Mr. Arthur Rue, a missionary from China. His interesting experiences on the field were powerful in illustrating to the volunteer what happens when you become a missionary. The grind of two years language study, the real handicap in using the language, and then being considered a foreigner all the time, are only overbalanced by the joy of seeing results in souls won for Christ. He summarized the needed qualities of a good missionary as adaptiveness, leadership and spiritual power.

Speeches were also given by Mr. Gleason, of China, Mr. Throne of Malaysia, Dr. Allison of Latin-America, and Mr. Knapp of the Near East.

The work among the lepers was touchingly told by Mrs. Kelley, who has worked in both India and China. These blasted lives, full of despair, find hope and joy in Jesus.

During the banquet in the evening, each school was well represented in exhibiting their respective yells and songs, including their alma maters. The tables were decorated in the various schools' colors. "Lest we forget," this is to remind us that the "eats" were entirely satisfactory.

The evening meeting opened with a business session. The delegates to Yonkers, Miss Turner, of U. S. C., and Mr. Shires, of S. B. U. C., were elected.

The speaker of the evening, Mrs. Fisher, gave a strong message on "the joy of doing the work yourself." Her appeals made every one anxious to be out on the field in duty. The touching climax was reached at the close when, with bowed heads, all sang, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord." The students returned feeling that in answer to prayer God had given them a day of great blessing.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE AT CHURCH

A very large crowd attended the illustrated lectures given by Leland S. Brubaker and President Funderburgh at the Church of the Brethren Sunday evening, November 26. The purpose of these lectures is to give a clear idea of what La Verne College is, what it is doing, and what it has done. The slides, which have been carefully arranged, show the college buildings, the student body in its various activities, the faculty, charts of various statistics showing the growth in numbers of students, the increase in expenses, and what the graduates are doing.

It is the aim to give these lectures in all the churches in California. A good beginning of this campaign was made when Mr. and Mrs. Leland S. Brubaker, Miss Mineva Neher, and President Funderburgh spent the Thanksgiving vacation at the Laton Church holding a Bible Institute. Three meetings were held on Thurs-

Students Enjoyed Thanksgiving Vacation

It is worth one day of double "cuts" to be home on Thanksgiving Day. Thus decided Misses Frances McCahill and Dorothea Dyck when Frances' cousins from Los Angeles planned to spend Thanksgiving Day in Reedley and invited the young ladies to accompany them. The party returned to Los Angeles Friday, December 1, Dorothea and Frances remaining in that city for the week-end. Thinking of rain, snow, a pleasant ride to the beach, a huge Thanksgiving dinner, several good shows, and visiting friends, the girls talk enthusiastically of their vacation.

Harris Moore, Rolland Stutzman and Ora Weddle motored to Lindsay to spend the holidays.

Wanda Carl and Nova Leonard spent their vacation at their homes in Hermosa Beach.

Several other girls also went away over the holidays. Esther Renkel went to her home in Pasadena, Lois Sheller to her home at Long Beach, and Elsie Booth to Covina, Susan Stoner to Inglewood.

Lillian Neher spent the holidays with relatives at Uplands, and Pearl Witcher visited friends in Glendora.

Kathryn Harshbarger was at the C. H. Harshbarger home on Thanksgiving day where she enjoyed a delicious dinner.

Hazel and Martha Brubaker had Thanksgiving dinner at the Beckner home with typical Beckner hospitality. Edyth Bowman spent the holidays at Harshbargers.

Norma Roynon spent the Thanksgiving week-end with Lois Sheller at Long Beach.

Thelma Kuns visited her brother at Pasadena.

Mary Gockley enjoyed Thanksgiving at Larimer's.

Ruth Emley and Ada Moothart were at the Hixon home for Thanksgiving where Ruth and her brother Harvey enjoyed a "family reunion."

Lois Johnson entertained Dorothy Arnold as her guest at the dormitory on Thanksgiving day.

It was on Saturday morning, December 2, that a group of young people started on their way to San Diego. Although the day was rather dreary, still there was merriment in each car. About noon there was a stop of an hour or more when each one refreshed himself with lunch and then explored the beach. After resuming their journey once more they arrived in San Diego about four o'clock. At this place Mr. David Bomberger was our guide and many places of interest were visited such as Tia Juana, Mexico.

The deputation team gave a program on Sunday after which the people had a basket dinner at the church. While here some of the girls stayed with Mrs. Michaels, a former resident of La Verne, and had an enjoyable visit with her.

day, two on Friday, two on Saturday and three again on Sunday. Various subjects were taken up, music being especially stressed. Saturday evening was given over to the illustrated lectures.

CHAPEL NOTES

Don't forget that you are a college student twelve months out of the year, even if you only pay tuition for nine. You are the most noticeable piece of publicity that the college has, and the impression you create upon the people you meet either helps or harms your college. Don't forget that."

The above quotation was used by Prof. Brandt on Monday, November 20. He said that it needed no elaboration; every one should just think about it.

Tuesday, November 21, Dr. J. P. Dickey talked on the value of experience, pointing out that even Adam learned by this means.

Books and libraries are of more value than one might at first think. Wednesday, November 22, Miss Jacoby, of Pomona City Library, addressed the students on the work of libraries and library associations. She told of the service which is being done since the war by the American Library Association in providing libraries in the reclaimed villages of Northern France.

Mrs. B. M. Culley on Thursday, November 23, discussed women in politics. She cited some examples, and closed by reading a selection on the subject from one of the current magazines.

Monday, November 27, Prof. D. W. Lefever spoke on community organization. He stressed its importance and value and told of various types which have been used.

Thanksgiving, its origin, meaning, and observance was the topic of discussion used by Miss A. G. Babcock on Wednesday, November 29. She made each student realize that the coming day meant more to him than merely a gay holiday.

After a short devotional service on Tuesday, December 5, the college department was dismissed. President Funderburgh then addressed himself to the "children."

LaVerne Has Successful Football Season

The La Verne College and Academy both have had a very successful football season this year. The College played a total of ten games and out of these she won 7, tied one and lost two. The games lost were to Chaffey J. C., and Redlands University. La Verne scored a total of 168 points to her opponents 55.

ACADEMY SENIORS STEP OUT

Thursday morning, December 7, the student body was very much surprised upon entering the chapel to find it decorated in the Academy Senior Colors, Gold and White. The Seniors themselves soon appeared arrayed in their class colors. A very clever and interesting program was given, consisting of a piano solo by Lois Miller, devotion led by Mrs. Mae Miller, the class song and a speech by the class advisor, Dr. S. J. Miller. An original roll call which they sang was quite unique.

"Oh, we are the class of twenty-three, A very motley bunch as you can see; We've got all kinds of creatures, From babies up to preachers. Including left-overs, three, We've old maids and flappers, A widow and bachelors, A much mixed bunch you will agree; A mother and son, Now ain't we got fun, This gay Senior Class of '23?"

By far the best number was a short talk by the class president, Frances Arnold, after which she presented a check of $100 to President Funderburgh as a gift from the class for the completion of the gymnasium. The Senior play was very cleverly announced by a girl's quartet who sang "Daddy Long-Legs." The announcement was then dropped from above:

Senior Class Play
December 20-21
"Daddy Long-Legs"

After the chapel hour was over, the class marched about disturbing the students' "studies" and the peace of the town. They collected about $15 from the merchants to use for some unknown worthy cause.

The Seniors certainly should receive the thanks of all for their loyalty to the school and for their liberal, unselfish gift.

ORPHEUS FOUR RENDER DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM

The opening number of the season's Music and Lecture Course was presented Friday night, November 22, by the Orpheus Four, official quartet of the Orpheus Club of Los Angeles. The men rendered some of the most artistic programs that has come to La Verne and was a splendid beginning for a successful Lyceum Course. The quartet lacked the power necessary for heavy music but in soft, delicate singing they were real artists. The program was a wonderful treat for everyone, music lovers and otherwise.

The following numbers of the course promise to be of equal rank and value. The next one will be a lecture by Chester M. Stanford on a worth while vocational subject. Mr. Sanford is widely known as an educator and vocational expert, and is a man whom no one can afford to miss hearing.

"EDITORIALS—WHY"

In the life of every editor of every paper whether it be a great city newspaper, a fashion magazine, or merely a college publication comes a day at regularly repeated intervals when there is the greatest unrest and disturbance. The editorial conscience will allow no peace for back in the far corners of the subconscious mind is the constant refrain; "The paper goes to print tomorrow and the editorial is not written. It must be in tomorrow—tomorrow—tomorrow!"

Let your imagination take you into the inner life and workings of an editor's career. Goaded by the thought of the editorial which must be written he sits down at the eleventh hour with pencil and scratch pad. He thinks over all the questions of the day—politics, war, foreign affairs, and strikes but not being so well read as is desirable for such lofty flights, turns to the consideration of school problems. He decides that every thing is going smoothly and beautifully and rushes to the literary master pieces of other Schools and Colleges vainly seeking for inspiration. His mind remains blank. "If only it were some holiday," he thinks in despair, "if only something would happen; if only I were brilliant and original. Why, oh why, did I ever tell them I would be editor!" He runs his fingers wildly through his disordered hair and when it is nearing midnight and the oil is burning low he plunges into a learned and masterful discussion of "Reasons for going to college" or "American Indians," and then goes to bed happy for another two weeks.

Students consider seriously the question of editorials. Just why do we have them and of what benefit are they? There are three reasons that might be assigned. First editorials are for the purpose of filling space, second, other papers have them, and third, they give the editor something to do. The average student is not in the habit of reading editorials. No editor ever did before attaining that position. They would be aware of it if it were conspicuous for it's absences but if the allotted space is neatly filled all is well. Students of a more serious nature or members of the staff sometimes wade through these products of a youthful pen but as in the instance of this issue find nothing. Therefore editorials are valuable space fillers.

Then other papers have editorials and to keep up our standard we must have them. There is a common saying, much to the editor's sorrow, that a paper is judged by its editorial.

Last of all the editorial gives the editor something to do. It furnishes an outlet for flashes of inspiration and genius. It gives him much needed experience in expressing himself on paper and, greatest of all enables him to prove himself worthy of the honors of his office.

Therefore students, from this editorial on editorials one moral may be drawn. Since editorials are in the college publication to fill a place—and space—they may occasionally be worth reading, for they are not always written by the editor, and in that case may contain words of wisdom which will help and inspire you in college life.

(The above discourse was inspired as the result of a suggestion given by our worthy feature editor, to whom any credit is due.)

A sense of humor is a rare possession which many claim, but few can understand, When suddenly they find in witty lesson The veil of dignity beyond command
Dr. Hoover, in Philosophy:—"Yes, class, there are many more possibilities than probabilities. For instance it is possible that you know more about this lesson than I think you do—but it is not very probable."

More Truth Than Poetry

JUST GOING HOME

(Thanksgiving Vacation)

Everybody talked of home,
That I'd have to stay alone.
That Wednesday I felt blue,
'Cause all the folks I ever knew
Were going home,
Just going home.

A friend stepped in my room,
And calmly said he was leavin' soon.
Mercy! how I envied him!
Wished I'd never seen Old Jim!
He was going home,
Just going home.

Somehow we got talkin';
Told him guess I'd start walkin'.
'Cause there wasn't any use wishin'
But don't tell him I was fishin'
To be going home,
Just going home.

And sure enough you know,
Some way I really got to go.
And, O, it seemed so good to me,
I can't explain now don't you see?
I was going home,
Just going home.

I sure surprised the folks,
It was the best of all my jokes.
They sure gave one grand feed for me,
And you can bet your life tee hee,
It went right home,
All 'cept the bone.

TRIP TO CAMP BALDY

No Thanksgiving could be really complete without an old fashioned snow-storm; so many people think that real thanksgivings cannot occur in sunny Southern California.

Well, kind readers, relieve your minds of that misconception just as a group of L. V. C. students did last Thursday.

Armed with mince and apple pies, fruit salad, sponge cake-that-wasn't spongy, coffee that was too weak to uphold its reputation, and other things too numerous to mention and too appetizing to keep; these aforesaid students embarked for parts unknown the morning of November 30th, 1922. After a heated discussion as to a suitable destination which ranged all the way from Spadra Beach to Tia Juana, Mexico, the beauties of Camp Baldy were determined to be most alluring. Accordingly the sails were set in that direction and up roared the old bus, while down slid the mercury in the thermometer until Camp Baldy was reached. Everything was covered with snow and one could well imagine himself in the backwoods country in the days of log cabins.

Several miles from the camp and a long way up in ice house canyon a fire was coaxed to burn and thaw out those so unused to the cold weather. In the meantime the snow fell fast while the coffee was boiled, and the mince pies heated and then such a dinner, such a hike, such snow.

The trip home over the picturesque mountain road with pine trees laden with snow at first, then lower down the oaks with their autumn colored leaves certainly seemed a fitting close to a real thanksgiving day.

Those who enjoyed this perfect Thanksgiving were Maurine Miller, Viola Neher, and Eva Brownsberger, George King, Dwight Welch, John Price.

FACULTY MEMBERS ENJOY VACATION

Miss Sanger and Miss Babcock spent a quiet vacation in the Ladies' dormitory, catching up with the world in sleeping, reading, sewing, and eating.

Miss Brubaker spent the best part of her vacation visiting in San Diego.

Miss Gillett enjoyed a splendid time in Los Angeles, at her brother's home.

Miss Gladys Muir went to her home in Pasadena and declares that she had all she could eat for Thanksgiving dinner.

Why do they call Welty Sparkey?
Because he belongs to Barney.

P.S.—If you don't catch it, brush up on your funnies.

John P.—The girl I marry must be an angel.

Eva B.—You'd look nice, now, wouldn't you, standing up with an angel.

A GAME PARTIES' GAME

One Studebaker, a box of grub, ten guns, many rounds of ammunition, four old tires and six dauntless sportsmen left the old home town recently, and set out in the direction of Salton Sea; or as Levi would say, "the beach." So intent were the hunters, on sighting game that they could not wait for the morning of Thanksgiving day to begin their vacation but left home and "friends" behind; and journeyed as far as Palm Springs the evening before. Four of the determined party had previous "experiences" along the line of duck hunting. These were Coach Arnett, Jake Garber, John Brooks and Howard Beckner. The two rookies in the bunch were Ray Root and Levi Dickey.

Great Was the surprise of the 'Vets' to find that Ray had awakened long before day light, contrary to his usual custom.

As the journey was resumed the expert marksmen began to limber up their practised ocular muscles by attempting to shoot the rabbits who were brave enough to show their heads.

The sea was sighted at last; and a valiant attempt was made to snuff out the lives of the feathered creatures which made the sea their home. A bunch of snipe were shot as they were an especial delicacy to Ray and Jake. Altogether the outlay of meat secured was small in quantity, but the variety was large. Some quail, nine snipe, two rabbits, three ducks, and one goose were bagged. Though short on game, the trip was long on fun. The return was made with one Studebaker still intact, ten guns, a few rounds of ammunition, the same four tires, and six mud-covered sportsmen. One of them, Jake by name, returned with the title of "champion hunter of the cans."

Nothing is improved by anger except the arch on a cat's back.

DORM GIRLS ENTERTAINED

All of the girls who remained at the dormitory over Thanksgiving vacation were invited to spend the evening of November 2 at the home of Marguerite Dickey.

The evening was spent in playing games during which time much chatting was going on. Baby Martha, one of the most noticeable members of the party seemed to do a great deal of entertaining which everyone enjoyed. Especially was this true when she helped her older sister, Marguerite, play the piano while the rest joined in singing.

Refreshments of delicious hot chocolate and real chicken sandwiches, fruit salad and cake were served. After this the young ladies who were none too brave in venturing forth in the dark, began their journey homeward.

Those present were, Lois Johnson, Martha Brubaker, Ada Moothart, Ruth Emley, Kathryn Harshbarger.

HI-JINKS

On the eve of Saturday, November 25, at the dusky hour of seven, some queer looking duck-footed specimens collected themselves and a corked bottle at the home of Fern Griggs. The slow moving, solemn procession of the A. W. S. clattered down the sidewalk and ended in the depths of Dr. Miller's cellar which had been attractively decorated with paper flowers and upholstered with various quilts. The scenes lined along the wall looked like a set of rummage sale models. Some of the fellows must have been deprived of some of their belongings as well as a good time that Saturday night. The bottles were an important feature of the evening. The group assembled in long lines for the purpose of creating something within the said bottles. Slowly the mixture oozed into the implements. The recipe for the delicious beverage is a secret to the A. W. S., but after putting a few "hops" into the bottle rendered by enormous pedestals and adding a vicious "kick," which could not be left out, the bottles were filled.

Judges pronounced Ramah Maust as the possessor of the most substantial and largest footdress and Fern Griggs the highest and most original hairdress.

Prizes were then awarded accordingly. Maurine Miller and Ruth Barnhizer were excluded from the contestants as being too variegated. Apples and mysteriously flavored candy were served continuously. The evening was devoted entirely to stunts. Every girl was involved in some clever stunt which no one knew about except those in the group and those on the program committee. Mystery reigned. "A B C D—E F G H" to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march sounded on the air and a fully equipped wedding procession entered. The entire ceremony was conducted in letters of the alphabet variously grouped. Needless to say all rushed to kiss the bride which was greatly appreciated by the actors. Vera's calisthenics proved that some are not so agile as they think they are. The ghost of Enrico Caruso appeared in the person of Ruth Barnhizer as Ishriek Caruso. The cold cellar walls shook with the vibration of the deep rich voice in several grand opera selections. Dorothea, with the assistance of Esther's arms, made a complete survey of La Verne gossip in general with nations,—but oh, the gum! Mina then called up a spirit which moved the brethren present to do strange and unusual things. The magpie quartette made a decided hit with their harmonious voices blending in a number of thoughtful selections, including "The Bullfrog on the Bank." What funny little creatures the two Gummy Hops were! They consisted mainly of heads on wee tiny bodies which bowed and hopped as cunningly as any little fairies. "The House That Jack Built" was the tenet playlet directed by Fern Griggs. The characters were far from amateur and were well suited to their parts. The costumes were extremely life-like and the good old story was thoroughly rehearsed. The only puzzle was the house which was small for such a grand menagerie. It was growing late and a dream appeared in the vein of "A Freshie's Dream" in which things were considerably reversed. Thelma succeeded remarkably well in exhibiting her gymnasium class in a realistic way. Our capable yell leader then led in three ringing cheers for the Hi-Jinks.

FRANCES HAS DOUBLE BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Miss Frances McCahill was very much aware of the fact that her birthday had arrived, November 22, when she was the honored guest at two birthday surprises(?)

First of all she was escorted by her room-mate, Lois Johnson, and Dorothea Dyck to the home of Mrs. Grace Miller where a jolly party composed of Reedley-ites were waiting for her. At the close of a bountiful dinner, the birthday cake revealed many interesting secrets. That they had a good time was shown by the remarks of the girls "who never laughed so much in all their lives."

At nine o'clock they departed to their homes. Frances thought her birthday was over but when she walked into her room what should she see but all the college girls of the dorm who greeted her with more cries of "Happy birthday!" After a little while Lois and Dorothea, the hostesses of the evening, brought in hot chocolate and cake. "Sometime" after ten the girls left for their respective rooms and another birthday celebration was over.

The eats committee certainly produced a variety and enough for everyone. The bottles were again brought into play and coffee filled them this time. The town wondered what had been turned loose as the mysterious crowd dispersed shouting left over laughs from the first Hi-Jinks given by La Verne College. This is the beginning of a custom which will be observed in years to come and which the women hold as a sacred secret which must ever remain a deep mystery to the gasping public. Here's to next year's Hi-Jinks! May it be high class and jinky.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for San Francisco. They will be at home on Mr. Root's ranch near McFarland after December 10.

WEDDING OF FORMER LA VERNE STUDENT

A very pretty wedding took place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Davis of McFarland when their daughter, Wilma, became the bride of Walter G. Root.

The bride was becomingly attired in ivory charmeuse with pearl and silver lace trimming. She wore a flowing bridal veil of tulle.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for San Francisco. They will be at home on Mr. Root's ranch near McFarland after December 10.

Those who went away for Thanksgiving were not the only ones who had a good time. The remaining ones at the dorm had a splendid chicken dinner, such as almost made them imagine they were home.

LAVERNE DEFEATS SANTA BARBARA AGAIN

On December 25th La Verne College football team defeated the Santa Barbara S. M., for the second time this season by a score of 14 to 0. The Santa Barbara fellows arrived on Friday afternoon and were “formed out” to the La Verne fellows for the night. The game was called at 2:30 Saturday. Mr. Schott of Pomona refereed the game. Neither team gained anything in the first quarter as Santa Barbara had developed a pretty good defense for our end runs this time. Hepner replaced Beckner at left half in the second quarter and succeeded in bucking the ball for a touchdown in the last of the period. John Brooks kicked goal. The half ended with a score of 7-0. In the third quarter John Brooks made a 30-yard end run for the second touchdown. At this stage in the game, the Santa Barbara coach took his team from the field for some reason unknown to either team. The final score was 14-0. Saturday evening both teams had supper at the College dining room. Speeches were made by Cooper, their captain, and also John Price. From the dorm the fellows all went to the Sweet Shop and were treated by Mr. Wright. The Santa Barbara fellows left about seven o'clock.

BASKET BALL PRACTICE STARTS

College and Academy basket ball practice started Tuesday, Dec. 5. There are about 20 fellows on each squad and the coaches should be able to develop some good teams. With the Academy men that are out, Coach Byrl Harper should develop a championship team this year. Only one man from the College squad graduated last year and with the addition of John Brooks and Levi Dickey from the last year's Academy team and also some other new material Coach Arnett has a good chance to develop a wonderful team. If the student body will back basket ball as they did foot ball, there is no doubt but what we can put out a winning team.

ACADEMY LOSES TO CLAREMONT

The Academy lost their last league game to Claremont by a score of 20-7 for the championship of the “C” League. The game was played Friday, November 24, on the Pomona college field. Altho' the La Verne team was outweighed ten pounds to the man, they were never outfought at any time during the game. Otie Brooks and Paul Blocher, playing their last game for La Verne Academy, did exceptionally good playing. Virg. Brooks played his best game of the season, smashing through the heavy Claremont line with exceptional speed.

The whole team deserves a great deal of credit for the fight they put up.

La Verne had two chances to score in the first quarter, but only used one of them. In the first five minutes of the game La Verne took the ball within Claremont's ten-yard line but were held on the one-yard line. Claremont punted out but a 15-yard run by Bohn and a 20-yard pass Bohn to Otie, brought the ball again within Claremont's 10-yard line. It was bucked over by Hartman. Bohn kicked goal. The first quarter ended with La Verne 7, Claremont 0. In the second quarter Claremont started bucking the ball down the field and never stopped until they made a touchdown. The half ended with the score 7-7.

The first half looked good for La Verne, but in the second half the line bucks and end runs of the heavy Claremont backs began to wear out the La Verne line. The loss of Root in the third quarter also weakened the La Verne offense greatly. Claremont scored a touchdown in both the third and fourth quarters. Mason and Miller started for Claremont. The final score was Claremont, 20; La Verne, 7. Substitutes for La Verne: Gillett for Kreps, Frantz for Hanawalt, and Kreps for Root.

Thanksgiving Vacation Trip

On Monday morning the group started for LaVerne. Several stops were made on the way home but the one of special interest was at La Jolla caves. The tide was up so one was all that could be visited but it was very interesting and beautiful.

A tired but happy group arrived in LaVerne about six Monday evening. Those who enjoyed the trip were, Mr. Woody, Harriet Woody, Mary Gockley, Hazel Brubaker, Wanda Carl, Byrl Harper, Wayne Bohn, Jesse Frantz, Alida Larimer and Estella Landis.
