NOMINATE COMMISSION CANDIDATES FRIDAY

Student Volunteer Conference Coming to LaVerne Friday

REDLAND'S VOLUNTEERS WILL PRESENT A PLAY, "THE COLOR LINE"

Our Responsibility in Making Christ
World-Known Is the Theme for Study

The Student Volunteers are looking forward to the conference of the United Student Volunteers of Southern California, which will be held at LaVerne, April 20th, 21st and 22d. This is to be the big event of the year for this organization. There will be representatives from practically all of the Southern California Schools, as well as a number of prominent speakers.

The theme to be used is, "Making Christ World-Known: Our Joint Responsibility."

The program is as follows:

Friday, April 20

5:00 to 6:30—Registration.

6:30 to 7:30—Banquet in Social Hall.

7:30—Address.

Saturday, April 21

6:30—Morning watch and breakfast at Ganesha Park.

9:00—Address, Dr. Rowe.

9:45—Discussions led by Mr. and Mrs. Stockley.

11:00—Round table discussions.

12:00—Dinner.

1:00 p. m.—Recreational period.

2:30—Executive meeting.

3:30—Report by Doris Smith.

4:30—Foreign students' program.

6:00—Supper.

7:30—Address, Dr. Masely of Occidental, followed by a play, "The Color Line," presented by the Student Volunteers of Redlands.

Sunday, April 22

6:30—Devotions.

9:45—Sunday School.

11:00—Church.

12:30—Picnic lunch, followed by a social time.

Miller Hall Maids Present Play

PROCEEDS TO GO TO PAYING FOR RECENTLY ACQUIRED
FURNISHINGS TO BEAUTIFY
COLLEGE HOME

After the council meeting at the Church of the Brethren, the "dorm" girls will present a one-act play called "The Old Maids' Convention," in the College Auditorium, Wednesday evening, April 18th.

The cast consists of twenty old maids, one man, and various other characters. The old maids have been organized for some time into an association whereby they might plot and plan together how to procure their inestimable object—a husband. The play gives the final solution, where the old maids are saved by a most fortunate circumstance. There is a laugh behind every line.

The proceeds derived from the play will be for the beautiful new drapes in Miller Hall. The girls are very proud of them and wish to finish the year with the books clear. For an interesting entertainment see "The Old Maids' Convention."

"WORDS OF WISDOM"

The day I started on my journey was joyously bubbling over with good things and my hopes were high for the future. The birds were singing in the trees and the blossoms wafted their fragrance to me as I passed, and my pulse beat and throbbed with the joy of living.

But lo, while I traveled came pain and heart-break. Tears dimmed my eyes. I stumbled along, heeding not the beauty of the blossoms nor their fragrance; neither the birds nor their song; not even the brightness of the day. The weight of my sorrow bore heavily upon me until I could not help but cry aloud.

As an answer to my cry came thoughts of the wise man with his halo of white hair and long, flowing beard, who lived a short distance up the hillside. Half stumbling, half crawling, I made my way to his threshold, where I fell at his feet.

Faculty for Next Year Announced

Dr. D. W. Kurtz to Come as Instructor in Bible and Theology
Department

Although the College Bulletins are not ready for circulation, the administration has breathed a few words to inform us that there will be several changes in the faculty and curriculum for next year.

It is quite well known that Dr. Arnett will leave this spring to do further work at Columbia University in securing a degree of Doctor of Educational Philosophy. His place in the Sociology department will be filled by Prof. Ray Cullen, superintendent of LaVerne elementary schools. I. H. VanCleave of Pomona High School will be director of athletics and coach of varsity teams.

Dr. Emmert will be absent on a leave of absence to enable him to travel. His place in the Bible department will be filled by the well known Dr. D. W. Kurtz.

The Education department will be strengthened by the instruction of three professors from the University of Southern California—Dr. D. Welty LeFever, Dr. G. Vernon Bennett, and Prof. Jane Wright McKee. The former two taught courses this year, and Mrs. McKee was in LaVerne during the second semester of last year.

The English department will have the services of Prof. Crawford F. Brubaker, a graduate of McPherson College in 1922, who is now receiving his Master's degree from the University of Kansas.

To the Music department comes Prof. Earle S. Stone, a graduate of the University of Southern California in 1925, being a candidate for a Master's degree next year. He will be an instructor of Piano and Theoretical Music.

Mrs. S. J. Miller returns after three years' absence to take the position of librarian. The matron has not yet been supplied.

Student Body Elections Get Under Way

FORMAL NOMINATIONS TO BE HELD FRIDAY AND ELECTIONS
SLATED FOR FOLLOWING TUESDAY

The annual student body elections to secure commissioners for the coming year are at hand. Nominations will be made this Friday in regular student body assembly, and elections are dated for next Tuesday.

The regular process for presenting candidates for the various offices is this: After a petition has been signed by twenty students, recommending a consideration, the candidate-to-be must be submitted to the faculty (before Thursday at the regular faculty meeting) for approval. This approval granted, the candidate is presented to the student body in formal nomination by the manager (who is chosen by the candidate) on Friday. Campaigning follows until the election.

Although interest has been rather late this year in this affair, it promises to be none the less acute before the week is over. There is a good number of likely office holders, which assures a good race for the various offices. As LaVerne student government is a commission form, the candidates are considered in the light of specific capabilities. This aids in making the campaign programs more concrete and vital.

Leopards Spots

By Alton Clair Kurtz

I respect the faculty members. I also admire them, they are so human. For instance there is the lovable professor who gently counsels more prompt chapel attendance while behind him are scarcely one-third of the other teachers. The rest were tardy, you see, and didn't have time to ascend the platform. They are somewhere down in the audience. Let us rejoice that our instructors are human beings. And that isn't sarcasm, either; I mean it.

* * * *

On the other hand I should really like to see the professor who would be brave enough to sit on the west side of the auditorium.

* * * *

Why can't we have compulsory platform attendance for the faculty? We might allow five cuts per semester. Excuses would have to be obtained from the S. B. commission. What a boon such attendance of the faculty would be for the students on those occasions when we have a speaker who insists on boring us in spite of our best display of inattention. We would then have something more interesting than the perverted dollar sign above the proscenium to speculate about. We could employ our time in estimating the length of time since Professor So-and-so has had a haircut, and in wondering.

Makers of War to Be Presented Friday Evening

FROSH DEBATE

The Freshman orators exhibit their wares for the first time this afternoon when two of the Frosh debaters journey to Los Angeles to meet the Freshmen of the University of Southern California. U. S. C. has a standing reputation for sending out first-class debating teams. However, LaVerne, though small, enjoys a similar reputation, so the debate this afternoon should be well worth while.

The LaVerne debaters will be Everett Calvert and Vernon Weybright. Mr. Calvert took part in two debates during the varsity season this year and is an experienced debater. This, however, is Mr. Weybright's first try on the platform. Other freshman material is found in Charles Manning, Doyle Montz, and Ronald Bessey. Another team will be picked from these three men to meet U. S. C.'s negative team next Tuesday night at LaVerne.

The question will be: "Resolved, that there should be created a department of national defense, with a secretary in the president's cabinet."

Represents LaVerne in Peace Contest

Has Excellent Chance to Win Handsome
Reward and Right to Compete in National Contests

Lorell Weiss will represent LaVerne in the Intercollegiate Peace Oratorical Contest, which will be held at Pomona College on Thursday night, April 19th. Mr. Weiss will deliver his oration entitled "The Eradication of Prejudice."

Mr. Weiss won the right to represent LaVerne by winning the decision of three judges in the tryouts held last night in the college library, in which two other contestants were entered, Harold Hoff and Howard Frantz. By virtue of a close second, Harold Hoff will represent LaVerne in the Conference Oratorical Contest which will be held at Whittier College on April 26th. Mr. Frantz entered the tryouts merely as a matter of alleviating technical requirements, but he did very commendably considering the circumstances.

Mr. Weiss will compete against a dozen or more contestants at Pomona, nearly every college in the Southland being represented. The winner will receive a prize of $60 cash and the right to enter his manuscript in the national contest with the chance of another $60 reward. The winner of second place in each of the contests will receive a prize of $40.

Mr. Weiss has an excellent subject and deals with it in a very fine fashion. His ability at delivery is already well known in LaVerne.

Mrs. Haugh (in dramatics): After you've finished your speech, tiptoe off the stage.

Ruth Bolinger: Why tiptoe off?

Mrs. Haugh: So as not to wake the audience.

PLAY GIVES REVELATION OF WAR FOR PROMOTION OF PEACE

Don Miller, a Student of LaVerne College, Is the Author of This New Drama

"Makers of War," a three-act drama written by Don C. Miller of this school, will be given in the College Auditorium on Friday evening, April 20th, 1928, at 8 p. m.

This play, which deals with the modern problem of world peace is begun with a prologue which cannot help but grip and hold interest. The rest of the play is characterized by its swift, smooth action.

Whether one is interested in the problem of world brotherhood or not, "Makers of War" will furnish him an evening of worthwhile entertainment.

The fact that one of our own students has written the play should make it doubly interesting to LaVerne college students.

The cast will be as follows: Reader, Martha Baer; Satan, Francis Crites; Good Angel, Ralph Fesler; Greed, Don Snider; Ralph Shrock and Ray Farrell, trumpeters; Rodney P. Jones, Ed Cunningham; John Harris, Howard Frantz; Howard Roberts, Dale Stutzman; Aileen Harris, Catherine Crist; Gladys, the maid, Olive Throne; Jose De Soto, Edgar Click; James Roberts, Lorell Weiss; Harold Roberts, Kenneth Deardorff; Mary Roberts, Reatha Rensberger; Bernardino Roberts, Ruth Miller; bandits, Zola Dubois, Dwight Dubois, Glenn Harmon, Leslie Newcomer, and Ezra Crist; soldiers, Vernon Weybright, Ronald Bessey, Earl Longanecker, Lloyd Cunningham, Joe Roynon, Wayne Allen and others.

Y. W. C. A. President Goes to Sacramento

IMPORTANT ITEMS TO BE CONSIDERED WHICH WILL INTEREST GREATLY LOCAL ORGANIZATION

The Y. W. C. A. organization of LaVerne College is represented by Alberta Maust at the National Biennial Y. W. C. A. Convention, which is in session at Sacramento, California, this week. This convention was held in the East two years ago, so it was impossible for the local student unit to send a delegate. Every branch of Y. W. C. A. work is represented, but the type in which Miss Maust is most interested is the work of the student councils.

Several important items of business affecting the local organization will be brought up. Among them is the question of revising the purpose of the Y. W. C. A. For some time the organization has felt that its purpose is too idealistic and general to be effective. The proposed purpose is much simpler, far more characteristic of the most effective work which the

NAME IT TO SUIT YOURSELF—BECAUSE WHAT I CALL IT ISN'T FIT TO PRINT

In the Social Pathology course being studied this semester under Dr. Arnett, there is just now being conducted a study of crime, technically called Pathology of Action or Conduct. I submit the following as some first-hand evidence of very current existing conditions which might well be given thorough study by the class. Remedies would be most beneficial.

On various and sundry occasions one becomes almost persuaded that this institution, our Alma Mater, LaVerne College, must adopt certain reformatory or penal aspects in order to cope with the evils which occasionally arise. But without further commentary generalities, permit me to state a few facts to which I am not afraid to affix my name and other identification upon demand.

"Robbery" is not a very tame word with which to brand an act, nor is "thief" a very complimentary name to affix to personality. Because they are harsh terms, but not because they are any the less true, I shall refrain from their usage and say: There has been entirely too much illegal acquisition of property by certain persons of thieving tendencies in and about the LaVerne College Athletic Training Quarters this year!

There is a certain type of petty larceny which, according to the popular conception, is rather clever, and not at all worthy of much contempt. It is the taking of athletic equipment, such as sweat-jerseys, athletic suits of various kinds, and athletic supplies, such as—BASEBALLS. Now I know that when a fellow sticks a ball into his pocket, there may be a lot more where that one came from, and that it may not be missed. But the peculiar thing is that several of them are missed. And the student body, you know, has to pay for these.

Now a social crime of that kind does not seem so wrong. It's hard to get a group to react to anything which does not mean great individual loss. But when an individual is robbed of property, he jumps right up on his standing propensities and shouts. I'm shouting now, but if you could hear the cries of those not so productive in their protests as myself, my voice would be lost in a maze of vocal expressions. I'm not alone in experiencing the disheartening discovery to find, upon opening my locker, that valuable material has vanished, which even the most optimistic could never hope to see again.

Statistics: From my locker were taken a new pair of baseball shoes, cost $5.50. I can hardly afford to buy another pair, so am using old shoes and doctoring blisters. From the coach's room were taken a pair of baseball shoes which, I presume, were missed considerably. From the locker of another player was taken a new baseball glove which cost somewhere around six dollars. He cannot afford another mitt, so finds that he must give up baseball. And now I'll not try to estimate the amount of cold, hard cash that has been taken from trousers pockets during practice this year. If I have overlooked other anonymous acquisitions, it is unintentional.

This is a pretty small school for such stuff to be practiced. It has quite often been found to be a losing proposition to the guilty person, as the administration can testify. I'm not saying, arbitrarily, that a college student is the guilty one in all of these cases. That isn't known, otherwise this article would have a little different tone. But you remember the old adage—I'll invert it: "If you put the shoe on, it must fit."

I'm not advocating administrative service and conviction. That might cure it to some extent, as it has done in the past. But that won't get to the source of the evil. Student opinion can do more, if it is expressed in no uncertain terms. Now, I'd be tickled nigh to a burial state if the person who took my shoes would drop them in front of my locker one of these bright days, and I wouldn't care to know who it is. It would satisfy me to be assured, by such an act, that he wouldn't be the cause of any more grief such as I've experienced. But if I should catch him with my shoes on, I think I should be willing to remove the shoes and shoot him in the big toe. Can you think of any better attitude to take?

My gracious! To think that there are any such parasites around who cause such inconvenience! For lack of impressive adjectives, I quit and let you draw your own conclusions.

HAROLD S. HOFF.

Freshie: Milk famine, not fed; starvation; encouraged by petting; still existing.

Sophie: Conceited; swelled head; burst cranium; he's dead.

Junior: Love-smitten; no bed; brain fever; he's dead

Senior: Long lessons; hope fled; heart broken; he's dead.

Little rows of zeros,
Numbers very quaint,

Hilda Brubaker: I have one calling tonight.

I don't know who places the flowers in the baskets on the stage, but I wish to make known my gratitude for those pleasing bits of nature. It often seems to me that the worshipful beauty of those flowers sending up their fragrance contains more religious import than all the rest of an uninspiring chapel service.

I have seldom seen more unfairness than the bronze Class Memorial displays. If you will notice it when you next pass by, you will see that some classes have contributed respectable amounts. Others have not, according to the memorial. However, as Shakespeare never said, we shouldn't believe everything we see on bronze tablets. I know of one class which made other contributions both as a group and as individuals. Yet it receives no recognition upon the memorial. Now I ask you, is that fair? Isn't it a bit misleading? To me that bronze plate is a none too subtle attempt to wheedle money out of Senior classes. Yes, I'll be a Senior next year.

Last week I saw the first really clever ink picture on the back of an athletic sweat shirt. Joy welled up in my soul. My tireless search was over. For three long years I have been in the habit of casting critical eyes at the drawings on sweat jerseys. I was seeking a genuine idea-born picture. In the long, long hunt, despair was my dogged companion, for the task seemed so utterly hopeless. But now I have attained the goal. I can again lift up my head and be a man with faith in men. I have found, amidst an innumerable host of insipid sweat shirt cartoons one that shows artistry and originality. Life is just a little brighter now.

If you would study people's mannerisms, select your library chair at a table commanding a view of the library door. As students move down the hall you will see at first a dim shadow on the frosted glass. Gradually this shadow takes on shape and personality. Some of these silhouettes bob up and down as the person in view approaches. Others sway; some lurch; a paltry few move with rhythmic grace. One has an arm bent outward at the elbow. Another has its shadowy head tilted to one side. Still another moves sedately, with little flirts of the hand and wrist. Each has at least one distinguishing characteristic. With a few minutes' practice it is possible to identify each student by his shadow before he opens the door. It is great fun. Try it.

"The main object of a college education is to lay a broad foundation for thought..." So said President Lowell of Harvard in a recent magazine. Yet we too often narrow our foundation by immersing ourselves in one interest. We play through a specialized horde of facts in one particular field. It isn't entirely our fault, either. Some of us would like to be broad, but how can we? We must meet the requirements for a major. Verily we have here a paradox. Why must there be majors in a liberal arts course?

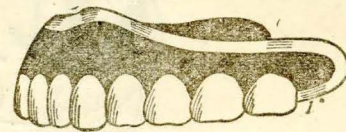

* * * *

Recently I saw a beautiful specimen of Sceloporus Undulatus. He was perched motionless upon a rock, warming his speckled scales in the sun. When we came closer than his keen little brain thought was safe he scuttled down and away, to reappear by peeking curiously over another stone a few paces ahead. Then commenced a ludicrous performance. Holding himself parallel to the stone, he alternately raised and lowered himself with unbelievably comic movements of his legs. Gradually this jerky movement became less and less until only his head with its intelligent eyes was nodding an emphatic "yes." His acquiescence was accompanied by a rhythmic inflation and deflation of the throat pouch. At each distension of the neck the brilliant splotch of cobalt blue came into view on the place where his Adam's apple should have been. He was such a beautiful lizard.

I cherish the remembrance of this bit of natural comedy. Happiness comes from little things like that. It brings an ineffable feeling of well being, of an "at oneness" with the universe.

Leaders are leaders because they do things better than the average person does them and because they do more, considerably more, than is required of them.

STUDENT SOCIAL LIFE

Betrothal of Faculty Member Announced

Mary Messamer entertained a group of girls with a strawberry shortcake feed in her room at Miller Hall after "lights out" time on Tuesday evening, April 10th. In the midst of the muffled revelry occasioned by something good to eat, a matron-like knock sounded on the door and a demure bride and stalwart groom entered the room, the former labeled "Mary" and the latter "Bill." During the confusion which ensued a beautiful solitaire appeared on the third finger of Mary Messamer's left hand, thus announcing her betrothal to William Everhart.

Miss Messamer graduated from La Verne College last year and has been employed as college librarian and instructor in the music department this year.

Mr. Everhart has been attending school at Oregon State College and U. C. L. A., specializing in agricultural education.

The date of the wedding is not definite yet. Best wishes go to them both.

Woman's Glee Club Program at Upland

The Women's Glee Club gave a program at the Mennonite Church at Upland on Sunday night, April 15th.

The program was given as follows: Chorus—a, Morning Invocation. Buck b, I Shall Not Pass Again This Way Effinger

Following the program a short social gathering was held in the basement, with the young people there.

The young people of the Upland church proved to be most delightful hosts and hostesses, and the club came away feeling that they had found some real friends.

The big, surly man stood before frail little Leona Stanley. In his hand was a large, gleaming knife.

"Have you no heart?" she asked, very timidly.

"No," he growled.

"Well, then, give me a dime's worth of liver."

The best charity is to help others help themselves.

With hands of gentle tenderness he lifted me up and set me on a stool at his feet.

"Ah, daughter, what wouldst thou? What are thy troubles?" in a voice of sweet sympathy he asked me. And I replied by telling him all, spreading my troubles out for him to gaze upon. In silence and great pity he stroked my hair, then turning, took a roll of parchment and placing it before me, permitted me to read. The pain was lessened and I was comforted, for this is what I read:

While the LaVerne Branch of the Y. W. C. A. is only a small part of the organization, it is very worthwhile to send a delegate to this conference.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PROVES DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

Monday evening, April 9th, Marie Tingle was pleasantly surprised when a group of friends walked in as she was peacefully studying Spanish, to help her celebrate her birthday.

The first part of the evening was spent in outdoor games. When the guests returned to the house, the rooms were decorated in yellow and white roses. All retired to the dining room, where Mary Platt was surprised upon finding that one of the cakes had her name on it. Much fun ensued as the honored ones extinguished the candles and cut their respective cakes. Ice cream was also served.

Those present were Marie Tingle, Mary Platt, Pearl Niswander, Hazel Rothrock, Jessie Longanecker, Dortha Gans, Lois Rupert, Ellen Edmister, Lloyd Cunningham, Avery Dunning, Dwight DuBois, Earl Longanecker, Daniel Stern, Melvin Rothrock, Whitcomb Overholtzer and Ivan Edmister.

LaVerne Takes Game From Caltech

BEAVERS SLAUGHTERED IN 14-8
SLUGFEST

Leopards Turn Fifteen Hits Into Fourteen Tallies—Tech Garners
Ten Bingles

The LaVerne College Varsity baseball team met and defeated the Caltech nine Saturday, in her first conference game at Caltech. The score, 14-8, is a good indicator of the amount of hitting done. The Beavers garnered ten hits off of Kreps, while the Leopards hit Reed for fifteen safeties in the first six innings. Hillman, who relieved Reed in the seventh inning, allowed the Leopards no hits because of a tantalizing slow ball.

Kreps pitched fairly good ball throughout the game. A general slackening in the team, with a 14-2 lead in the seventh inning, allowed the Tech men to score four runs on one hit. He allowed five bases on balls and was accredited with six strikeouts. He never got into a bad hole but what he pulled out of it all right.

Following is the game by innings:
First Inning—LaVerne: Crites singled to left field on the first pitched ball. Boots struck out. Hollinger grounded to second, where Crites was forced out. Bohn grounded to third and was thrown out at first. One hit, no runs.

First Inning—Caltech: Dickerman reached first on Brooks' error. Taylor took second and Dickerman took third on Brooks' overthrow at first. Muff struck out. Dickerman tagged out trying to steal home. O'Haver struck out. No hits, no runs.

Second Inning—LaVerne: Shirk singled. Lehmer singled. Root sacrificed. Hoff sacrificed. Shirk home and Lehmer came in on an error. Kreps grounded out to third. Two hits and two runs.

Second Inning—Caltech: Reed struck out. Cramer fled out to right field. Pritchett singled. Pritchett scored on Olsen's double. Folckmer grounded out to second. Two hits and one run.

Third Inning—LaVerne: Crites fled out to left field. Boots singled. Hollinger singled. Bohn fled out to center field. Shirk tripled, scoring Boots and Hollinger. Lehmer fled out to third. Three hits and two runs.

Third Inning—Caltech: Dickerman fled out to right field. Taylor

Frosh Win From Citrus Jaysee

Last Friday evening the LaVerne Freshman nine added another star to their crown by defeating the Citrus Junior College outfit to the count of 4 to 3. It was a good game throughout. Very few hits were allowed by either pitcher.

Orville Thomason pitched good ball for the Frosh, although not brilliant nor flashy. The infield functioned perfectly. Hubbell played his usual steady game at first; Farrell played wonderful ball at second, Bessey and Weybright held down their posts at shortstop and third base very effectively.

The outfield, Brubaker, Ferree, and Calvert, had very little to do, but they did their little bit quite creditably. "Peewee" Paul Lathrop, playing behind the bat, completes the lineup and enjoys the reputation of being the hardest hitter and the most experienced player on the team. His playing so far this season has proved his reputation.

Hilda Brubaker: I didn't know I had a crazy bone in my wrist.
Harriet Woody: You have 200 of them.

Following is the lineup:
