ORANGE BLOSSOM

FOREWORD

THE staff has attempted in this volume of the ORANGE BLOSSOM to truly represent those activities and interests which will remain as fond memories to the students of La Verne College. If the reader finds embodied and portrayed in this book the spirit of L.V.C., the ideals of the "L," and the glow and warmth of student life and friendship, then our work has not been in vain.

History of La Verne College

IN THE year 1890, M. M. Eschleman, David Kuns, Henry Kuns, Daniel Houser and Samuel Overholtzer, members of the Church of the Brethren, bought the building and property of the Lordsburg Hotel Company for $10,000, for the purpose of establishing an institution of learning. In the fall of 1891 Lordsburg College first opened her doors to one hundred and thirty-five pupils, a large number of whom were of the elementary grades and none of whom were of college standing. During the first ten years, four men held the office of president, being in their chronological order, Dr. S. S. Garst, E. A. Miller, I. N. H. Beahm and Dr. W. I. T. Hoover.

In 1901, when the ten-year lease of the trustees expired, they were not willing to finance the school any longer, so school was discontinued for the year 1901-02. However, in 1903 there came to the Pacific coast a man with a vision of a great college in Lordsburg, and in this year the property of the college was leased to Mr. W. C. Hanawalt.

In 1908 the building and grounds were given over to the Church of the Brethren and for the first time the trustees were elected by the church. In 1911 the Academy was placed on the list of accredited secondary schools of California, and the following year, for the first time, a strictly college course was offered. In 1914 Lordsburg College granted her first Bachelor of Arts Degree. The men who toiled in the presidential office that the institution might continue during those first six years as a denominational college will be remembered as builders of the school. They were W. F. England, Dr. J. P. Dickey, and Prof. Edward Frantz. In 1914 the constituency of Lordsburg College was very materially increased by the joining of the Northern District of the Church of the Brethren with the Southern District of California in the ownership of the college, and from that time a large number of the students have been from Northern California.

Dr. S. J. Miller, the ninth president, is the man to whom, more than to any one other individual, La Verne owes the first two units of her new group of buildings. The erection of these buildings indicates more than simply material advancement. They indicate the beginning of a new policy for a greater and bigger institution. Along with the new buildings the college received a new name, for when the name of the town was changed in 1917, Lordsburg became La Verne College.

The tenth president of La Verne College was Prof. I. V. Funderburg, and in 1924 Prof. E. M. Studebaker became the eleventh president. The accomplishment for which President Studebaker's administration will perhaps be longest remembered is the erection of the new administration building.

The growth of La Verne College has been slow and gradual, but always the institution has gone on increasing its material resources and building up its educational program. Today La Verne College is taking its place among the other colleges of Southern California, and its Alumni are carrying the ideals of their Alma Mater throughout the world. The new administration building which holds such hope for the future is not solely the work of 1925 or 1926. It is made possible because of the foundations of vision, loyalty and self-sacrifice of all who have labored and who are laboring to make of La Verne College a great institution.

President's Message

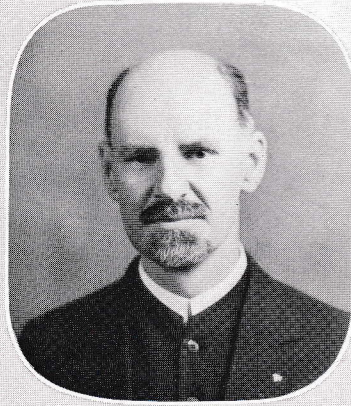

IT IS with sincere appreciation that I address myself to the students of La Verne College for the year 1925-26. The year has been one of forward progress in many respects. There is no movement which has taken place for a number of years of greater importance than the successful execution of a campaign for a new administration building with adequate equipment to offer our students a first class opportunity to pursue a liberal arts education. But the thing of particular interest to me in this connection is the fact that while the officials of the institution have been exceedingly busy with the campaign the students have not allowed the rush to interfere with their work but have loyally and diligently pursued their tasks. During the first year of the operation of the institution in which collegiate grade courses alone have been offered we have had a splendid school atmosphere and the students have in no small way been responsible for the success of the school.

Naturally, we have some feeling of regret when we come to the close of the school year because students who graduate will not be among our number when the next session opens, but we rejoice in the contributions which these young people shall make to the world's good because we believe that they have caught the Christian atmosphere of La Verne College and will carry it to remote parts of the earth. We shall look forward to the return of those who have not completed their work and will give them a glad welcome in September, 1926.

AS MEMBERS of the Y.W.C.A. we purpose to live as true followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. With this goal in view our Y is growing and becoming more successful each year. One of the outstanding aims of the Y is to give the girls a more international outlook, and a broader appreciation for the worth while and beautiful.

The close co-operation of the Y.W. and Y.M.C.A. cabinets made it possible for the organizations to accomplish more than they could have otherwise. Through the joint efforts of the "Y's" a very constructive program was given to the students during the chapel periods of one week, on the World Court.

The chairman of the various permanent committees on the cabinet are: Social Service, Ruth Emley; World Fellowship, Madie Royer; Membership, Marguerite Dickey; Advertising, Vestal Goetze; Social, Lola Shirk; and Chorister, Cecelia Shaffer.

THE activities of the Y.M.C.A. have been greater this year than at any time since the organization. It has made its influence felt among the student body as at no other time. More than two-thirds of the men in school are members of the organization and nearly all of the men faculty members are associate members.

The "Y" has been greatly indebted to Prof. Ray Cullen for his help and his guidance as faculty advisor. His progressive ideas and his knowledge of young people have helped a great deal in working out plans for a real live organization.

The social activities were possibly stressed slightly more than the other phases of student life because the leaders thought these other phases received their just amount of attention in other organizations.

The successful outcome of the year's program has been worth all the effort expended in its planning and realization.

Northern Deputation Team

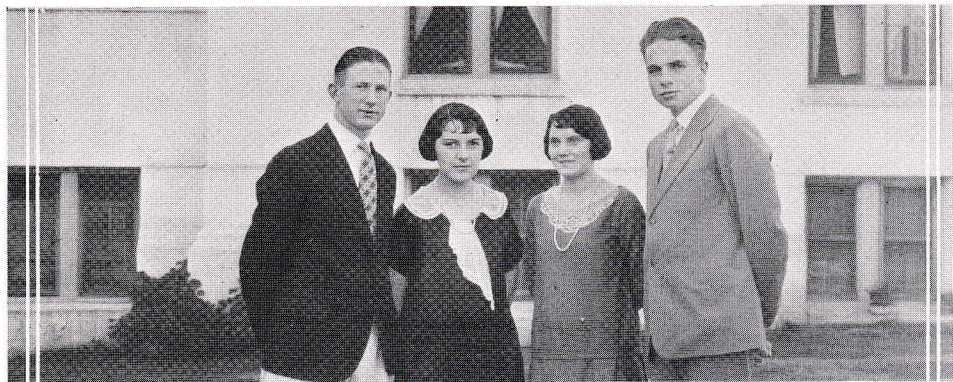

THE Northern Deputation team, Gladys Larimer, manager, Mary Messamer, Pearl Whitcher, Zafon Hartman and Lloyd Emmert, gave thirteen programs during the Christmas holidays. The words of one pastor, "We are behind the college," expressed the spirit of the whole Northern District.

The theme of the program was "Christ and Education," emphasizing the fourfold development of the individual with Christ as the perfect example. An acknowledgment of the appreciation of the students for the sacrifice of the constituency in order that they may be educated was a very fitting climax to the program.

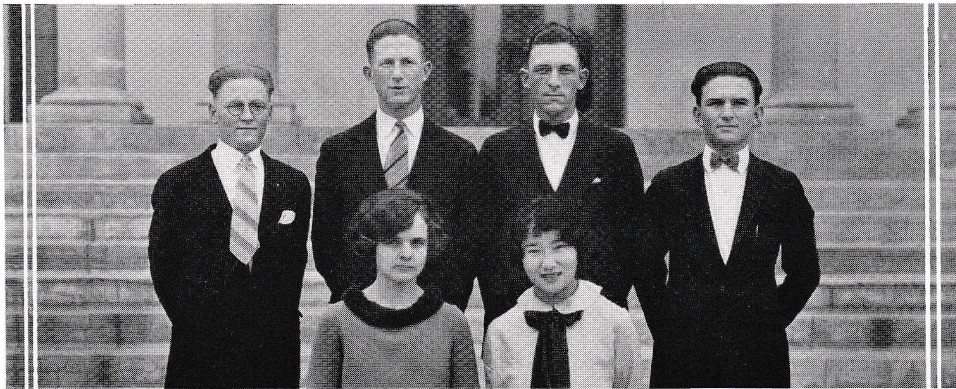

Arizona Deputation Team

A PRECEDENT was set this year when the Christian organizations sent a deputation team to Arizona. Although only three programs were given and the trip did not pay for itself, yet the interest aroused and contacts made, made it eminently worth while.

The program given was of the same general nature as the other deputation programs during the year, the general theme being "Forward with Christ." The team, Lois M. Miller, Florence Landis, Mark Lehmer, Merle Butterbaugh, and Herman Landis as advisor, came back with a greater appreciation of the work and ideals of some of the smaller and farther removed churches.

Merle Butterbaugh ^{Forty-two}

Southern Deputation Team

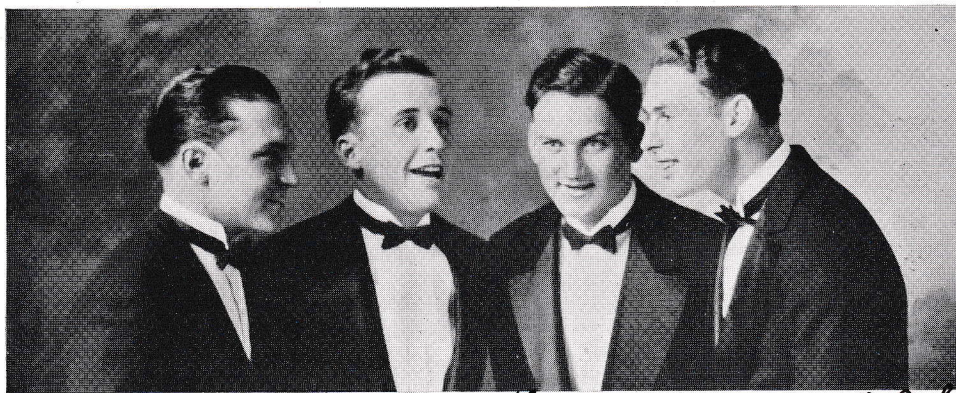

IT IS becoming a habit of the churches of Southern California to expect a visit of a deputation team some time during the year.

It is hoped by another year that the work may be divided so that one team will not be so overworked. The general theme of the program was "Christ and Education." Those who very nobly carried on the work this year were Miss Ramah Maust, manager and speaker; Miss Sarah Yoon, soloist; and the Zello Quartette, whose personnel is Zafon Hartman, Mark Lehmer, Claude Bowman and Paul Blocher.

Clarion Four

FOUR college men, loving good music, having ability to sing, realizing that they have a message for all, and willing to work to put that message across—these are the real reasons for the La Verne College Clarion Four. This is the second year that these men have been organized as a quartette, and they have risen, from being appreciated by only the small community of La Verne, to being known and appreciated over the whole Western Coast.

They have given over one hundred concerts this year, besides being the official quartette at the Asilomar Student Convention during the Christmas holidays. All of La Verne is proud of the Clarion Four, and especially Professor Haugh, to whom they are indebted for coaching and directing.

Student Volunteers

- Secretary* NELLIE HILTON
- Chairman, Practical Service* GLADYS LARIMER

THE declaration of the United Student Volunteers of the Church of the Brethren is, "It is my purpose under God's guidance to devote my life without reserve to a distinctly Christian vocation." Such really defines each member of the Student Volunteer Organization of La Verne College. It is not primarily a recruiting agency for foreign missionaries, but is an inspiration for anyone interested in distinctly Christian service, whether at home or abroad.

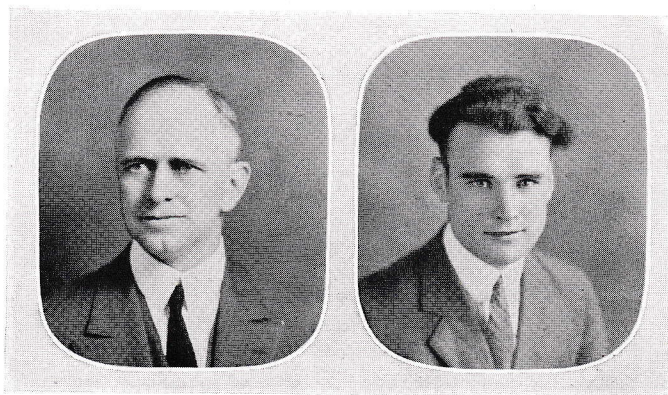

The Student Volunteers had meetings once a week, at which problems relating to Christian work were discussed, either by the group itself, or by an outside speaker.

The most important event during the year was the visit of Mr. Wendell Taylor, traveling secretary of the National Student Volunteer Movement. He spoke in chapel March 5, and interviewed individual students during the rest of the day. He stressed the need of real Christians, not only as ministers, but also as laymen, manufacturers, business men.

"Not to have our organization lead, but to have the leaders of other school organizations vitally interested in our organization, and to have our members leaders in other organizations," has been the motto of the local group this year. They feel that in this way there will be less conflict in school activities and more good will be accomplished in the long run.

FORENSICS

Forensic Coaches

COACHES of any sport, and especially the mental sport of debate, must be devoted to the sport themselves, and what is just as important if not more, they must be able to instill the love of the game into their teams. And then these coaches must be able to see through a situation to the finish and they must also be able to develop in their pupils this same rare ability. This combination would make a successful leader in any line, and it was this combination which made the forensic coaches so successful and well liked by the debate teams.

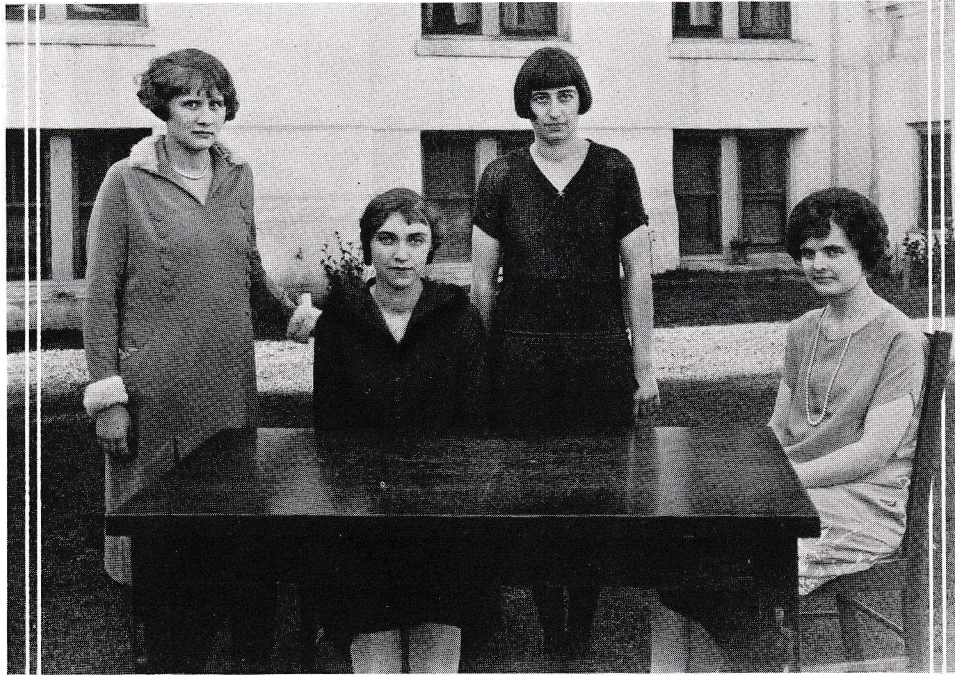

President Ellis M. Studebaker, with his rare ability to see through a difficult problem and his great delight in the game of debate, and Prof. Paul Kurtz, with his organizing ability and love of forensics, formed a coaching staff for forensics this year which could not be beaten anywhere. The interest and enthusiasm of the coaches spread to the debaters, and more interest was taken and better work done this year than ever before.

It was due in a large measure to the persistence and desire for better forensics on the part of the coaches that a debate club was organized at the beginning of the year. The club met once a week, and under the leadership of the coaches, discussed the fundamentals of debating. This proved to be of great benefit when the real debating began later in the season.

Both the men and women organized teams, but because of the conflict with other activities, the men had to call off their scheduled encounters. Consequently, the only intercollegiate debate was in the Women's League.

Not only is credit due President Studebaker and Professor Kurtz for the success of this year's forensics, but also to Prof. Laura Haugh is much credit due. It was because of her interest and effort that the presentation of the arguments by the speakers was so very clear and forceful. Her coaching in delivery was very greatly appreciated.

Forensics are becoming more and more a part of La Verne, and a great deal of this is due to the interest and enthusiasm of the coaches. And what better could be said of a coach than that he instilled into others his love of the game, that he taught others to play with just as much zest and enthusiasm as he did. And this can truly be said of each forensic coach.

Girls' Debate

DEBATE at La Verne this year was monopolized by the gentler, yet deadlier, sex. President Studebaker and Professor Kurtz as coaches met with the Debate Club once a week to discuss and direct the study in the principles of debating as laid out by the Dartmouth system.

The question debated this year in the Women's Forensics League of Southern California caused not a little discussion, and was even the butt of some hilarity. It was a question which carried the debaters into practically every field for research and information, being, "Resolved that this house pity its grandchildren." The affirmative was upheld by the Misses Ramah Maust and Pearl Whitcher, with Miss Reatha Rensberger as alternate, while the team which declined to pity its grandchildren consisted of the Misses Madie Royer and Inez Eshelman, with Miss Verna Cooney as alternate.

A novel method of debate was used, the English system being employed. The debates were held for educational purposes only, there being no judges or decisions as to the winning team. Each speaker was given twenty minutes to divide as she wished between constructive and rebuttal speeches. At the close of the debate, the audience was given the privilege to ask questions.

Each of the members of both of the teams did commendable work this year. The constructive arguments were equal in every instance to those of their opponents, but exceptionally good work was done this year in rebuttal.

The work was interesting and beneficial in all of its phases, and truly, women's debate may be counted among the worthy accomplishments of L. V. C. for the year 1925-26.

MAE MILLER

MADIE ROYER

Oratory

THE old adage, "Speech is silver, silence is golden," could be turned around for several La Verne students this year, who at various times have won oratorical contests.

The first contest of any significance was the Women's Intercollegiate Ex-tempore Contest held at Redlands University, March 5. The general subject given to the contestants several weeks before the contest was "Crime," and then one hour before the contest each speaker was given her particular phase of this general subject. Miss Madie Royer, speaking on the subject, "The Newspaper and Crime," took first place by a good margin, thus winning for herself ten dollars and for La Verne the right to keep the silver loving cup.

The second event of oratorical interest was the Keiser Oratorical Contest. Mr. Keiser offers three prizes of eight, five, and two dollars each for the three best orations delivered in a contest. This year the contest was in the nature of a triple header. The woman who took highest place in the contest would represent La Verne in the Women's Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest which would be held in Occidental May 6. The one whose subject was "Peace" and who took highest place would represent La Verne in the State Peace Contest to be held at S.B.U.C., and the one who took first place would, of course, get the eight dollars. Mrs. Mae Miller was awarded first place, and since she qualified for all three contests, she not only received the eight dollars, but she also represented La Verne in both the State Peace Contest and in the Women's Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest.

Of major importance, also, was the annual Eisteddfod contest, in which Miss Lola Shirk captured first place in oratory on the subject of "The Evils of Child Labor."

For the good showing La Verne has made in oratory this year, a great deal of credit is due Prof. Laura E. Haugh, who not only very ably coached the contestants in presentation, but who also helped them in the content of their speeches. What is most important of all, however, is that she inspired them to go on and succeed.

Oratory is finding its place among the other activities of the school, and the oratorical events of this year have proved that "speech is," at times, "golden."

MUSIC-DRAMA

Lyric Club

FOLLOWING the plan of previous years in widening the scope of work done, the Lyric Club organized itself at the beginning of the year, preparatory to giving programs in various churches and schools in Southern California. This club believes that there should be other phases of school life shown to the constituency than the athletic, and that has been its aim. In this way a more friendly spirit is maintained by both the school and the constituents.

The organization effected last fall made Miss Lois Martha Miller president, Miss Verda Brubaker secretary, Miss Minnie Dickey treasurer, and the Misses Hilda Brubaker and Ruth Stoner joint members of the managerial committee. Membership in the club was open to all women interested in music.

The first sign of life manifested last fall was the rendering of several selections in chapel one morning. Since that time several programs have been given in the different congregations of the Church of the Brethren of Southern California, as well as for other churches and organizations.

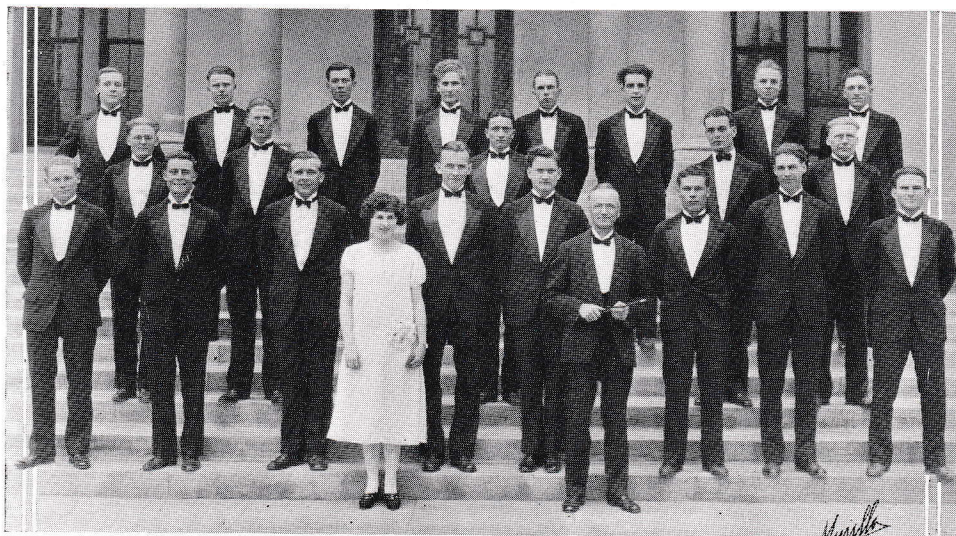

The programs rendered were of mixed character, having both religious and secular numbers. Selections by the entire club were interspersed by solos, duets, trios and quartettes.

The director, Prof. B. S. Haugh, has had a great deal to do with the success of the club this year. His able directing and his untiring effort has done more than any other one thing to inspire the members of the club to further efforts. He may well be proud of the club's accomplishments for the year.

The ORANGE BLOSSOM

Glee Club

THE college men's Glee Club has aroused more interest and has been more successful this year than ever before in the history of La Verne. This was due both to the interest and persistence of the coach, Prof. B. S. Haugh, and to the enthusiasm and willingness to work of the club members themselves.

At the beginning of the year the club was organized with Wayne Bohn as president, Lloyd Emmert as program manager, and Paul Smith as music manager. Although Professor Haugh gave suggestions, the selection and arrangement of the music was made entirely by the club. The program rendered is both secular and religious in nature, and consists of solos, duets, and quartettes, as well as selections by the entire club.

In order to facilitate practice the club was organized into quartettes during the first part of the year. In this way several good new quartettes have been started. A friendly spirit of rivalry is present, thus making the interest higher.

The club's first appearance was on Armistice Day, and it was considered quite a success. Since then programs have been given in various churches and schools in the Southland.

One of the most noteworthy accomplishments of the year was the decision of the club to array themselves in tuxedos when appearing in programs. This puts the club on a par with any other college men's glee club in Southern California, in appearance as well as in music rendered. The first appearance in the new tuxedos was on March 17, at the Church of the Brethren in La Verne.

Apollo Club

"TO FOSTER the advancement of music," is the motto of the Apollo Club. All music graduates of the college are eligible to membership in the club.

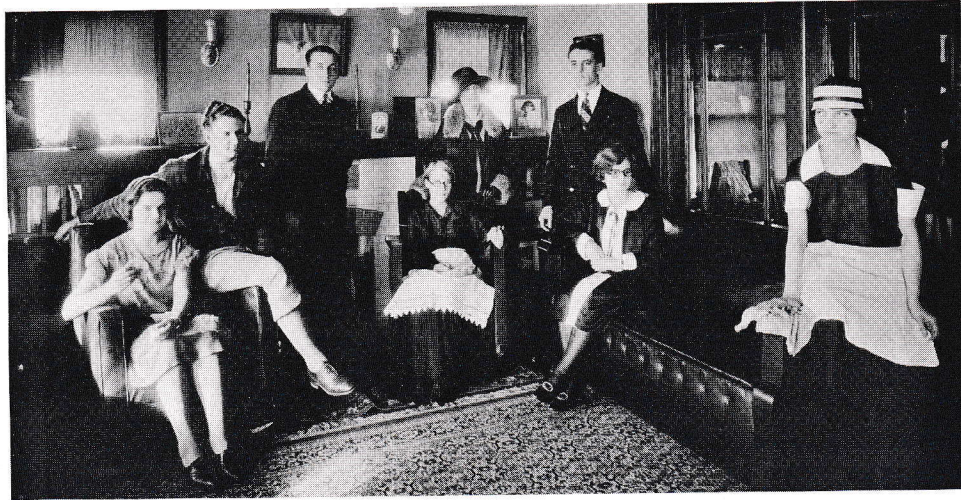

Mrs. Laura Haugh, as president, with her able assistants, Madie Royer, secretary; Marguarite Dickey, treasurer; and Dorothea Dyck, program manager; may well be proud of the accomplishments, both social and musical, of the club this year.

May Day

THE true spirit of springtime and May was shown in the May Day Fete as sponsored by the Y.W.C.A. At this Fete, Miss Marguerite Dickey, the lovely May Queen chosen by the Y.M.C.A., was crowned.

A May breakfast at Ganesha started the day in true spring fashion. The "Y" has charge of the chapel exercises. In the evening, the crowning of the "Queen of the May," made a beautiful climax to the day.

Junior Play

THIS year the Junior class co-operated with the drama class in putting on an evening of entertainment in the form of three one-act plays. The program was free, but an offering was taken, the proceeds going into the Drama Fund for the library in the new "Ad" building.

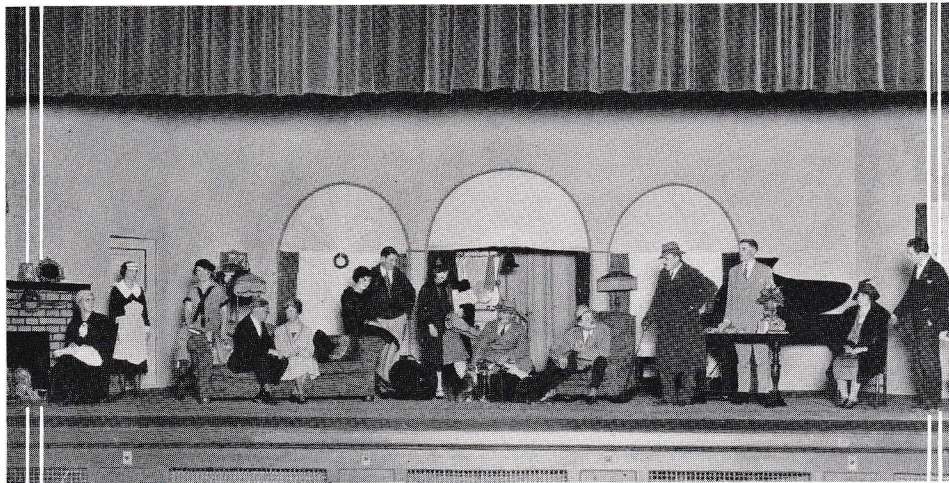

The plays, "Sauce for the Gosling," presented by the Juniors, and "Buying Culture," and "Suppressed Desires," by the drama students, were successes.

Tyndale

THE historical drama, "Tyndale," was presented by the drama class under the direction of Prof. Laura Haugh before the largest crowd of the Bible Institute on February 3, 1926.

"Tyndale," by Parker Hord, was written in commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the translation of the New Testament into the English language, and pictures the sacrifice made to translate it.

Senior Play

LEWIS BEACH'S drama, "The Goose Hangs High," was presented by the Senior class under the able direction of Prof. Laura Haugh. Due to the much appreciated co-operation of Professor Randall of Bonita High School, the play was given in the Bonita Auditorium, the first strictly college function to be given at Bonita. This facilitated the presentation to a great extent.

"The Goose Hangs High" is a drama of every-day life, showing the under-current of truth, loyalty, and love of the seemingly superficial, flippant youth of today. The story depicted the struggle of a father to keep the college "twins" supplied with money. The reaction of the young people to the situation when the crash came is the climax of the play.

A great deal of the success of the play was due to the help and co-operation of the members of the cast who were not Seniors, but who willingly took part in the production. The Seniors wish to express their appreciation of this help and co-operation.

SPORTS

Athletic Coaches

THESE are coaches that are coaches, then there are coaches that are just about as appropriately first national banks. One cannot judge athletic directors by the capacity of their income, nor can one always judge them by the athletic teams that are put out while they are in command. The worth of a coach is determined wholly by what he does.

There are schools that support winning athletic teams in spite of the coach. There are some schools that could never have a winning team with any coach. But there are schools that can co-ordinate winning teams with their coaches.

There are two things which elevate the accomplishments of La Verne's athletics. The first is the fact that our teams come from a student body of less than fifty male students. The second is that our teams are not made up of potential athletes, experienced high school stars.

It would seem that the coaching staff would be involved in such a situation. But in a school that does not provide a coach for each man on the football squad, the honors are somewhat condensed. In our case, they go to two men: Coach Claude Arnett, who instills into the team the fast, shifty, running attacks, and the spirit to execute the same; and to Coach Paul Kurtz, who drills the linemen in the arts of strong line playing and the fight to manipulate the same.

One of Dr. Arnett's strongest points is his strategy. He is a football strategist—working out plays and formations that are so unsolvable that it is hard for his own men to "catch on" at the beginning of the season. With light, fast, shifty athletes he worked these plays to the amazement of other teams and coaches.

Dr. Arnett also coaches basketball and baseball. He very ably whips the material into creditable teams in both of these sports.

"Doc" Kurtz handled the track team. Although not producing a winning team, he developed a team of winners. He faced the handicap of a lack of track spirit, due to the absence of this sport in the past. In spite of this, he assembled and maintained the team through the season.

The secret of our coaching success is not hard to determine. It is a well-known fact that the most essential factor in coaching is personality, generalship, leadership. The tricks of the trade can be learned, but unless a man can handle men, he has no qualities for a good coach. In order to handle men he must be first and foremost a man himself.

Cheer Leaders

THE organized cheering expresses more clearly the spirit of a school than any other one thing. The attitude the rooting section takes toward a team, its defeats and victories, its encouraging moments and discouraging hours, its seeming breaks of both bad and good luck, portrays the attitude of that school in all their activities. There is such a thing as good sportsmanship in cheering as well as in playing, and La Verne can truly be said to possess both.

And then there is another advantage in good cheering. A team, knowing that the student body is divided, half pushing with them to success, and the other half dragging their feet, can never do its best. But a team knowing, by the spirit and pep, that the whole student body is whole-heartedly fighting with them is bound to win. Such is the task of organized cheering.

With Sarah Yoon and Francis Crites to head this department of school activities this year, more has been done in real constructive cheering than ever before.

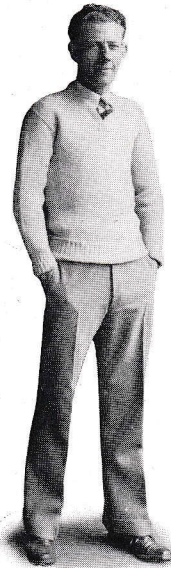

New songs and new yells have been written and made a part of the repertoire of each student, and since variety lends spice, interest was high during the whole year.

The first evidence of a college "gang" in La Verne was the big rally the night before the football encounter with Occidental on Arnett Field. Speeches, songs, and yells were the features around the huge bonfire. The long serpentine led by the cheer leaders around the main streets of town had much to do with the arousing of the interest of the townspeople and increasing the enthusiasm of the student body.

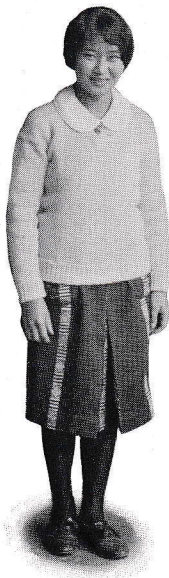

Several other football rallies were held before important games, putting the fighting spirit into the team as well as the rooters. The cheering for football was much improved over last year, and with the coming of more students, promises much for the future.

Not only did the cheer leaders show themselves to good advantage in athletic contests, but in indoor rallies for debate, oratory, new Administration Building, and Endowment Campaigns, they took advantage of their every opportunity. Each individual or organization, upholding the honor of dear old L.V.C., was given the assurance through cheering that the entire student body was fighting for the same cause.

With these two lively Frosh back again next year to help in this school activity, and more students in the student body, great hopes are maintained for better cheering for 1926 and 1927.

Football

THE FIFTH YEAR of LA VERNE'S indulgence in the game sport of football saw the galloping green horsemen, animated Leopards, upset the usual amount of dope, rendering the sport prophets of Southern California as wrong as ever. La Verne proved herself qualified for Conference standing, and has been admitted to full membership in that athletic organization, providing for next season an equal opportunity with the seven other Conference schools.

The past season started out in horrible fashion. Occidental, with her four varsity Tiger elevens, invaded the Leopards' playground, and after four dry, dusty quarters, these four teams overran the La Verne team and a half to the score of 38-0.

The next week, Southern Branch of U. C. won from La Verne in the last quarter in a similar fashion, 16-3. The biggest achievement in that game was the nervous hour that Coach Spaulding spent in trying to solve La Verne's running attack.

The following week at Whittier, La Verne played one of her hardest games. By a field goal in the last minute, the Poets won the game, 9-7. In a good practice game the next week with Riverside J. C., La Verne broke the jinx and won, 27-6.

Cal Tech met her second football defeat from La Verne the following week when the Leopards completely outran the Engineers and won, 23-6.

As a preliminary game to the U.S.C.-St. Mary's game the next Saturday, La Verne rather disappointed herself, and lost to the Trojan Frosh, 19-7.

The Armistice Day game was won from California Christian College, 13-6. The second team started the game in order to afford interest to the spectators.

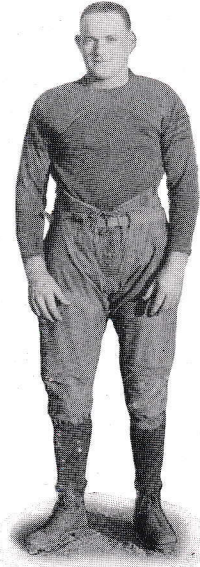

La Verne again defeated the University of Redlands for the third time in three years in one of the best games of the season. Coach Arnett only used eleven men in the game. The score was 7-0.

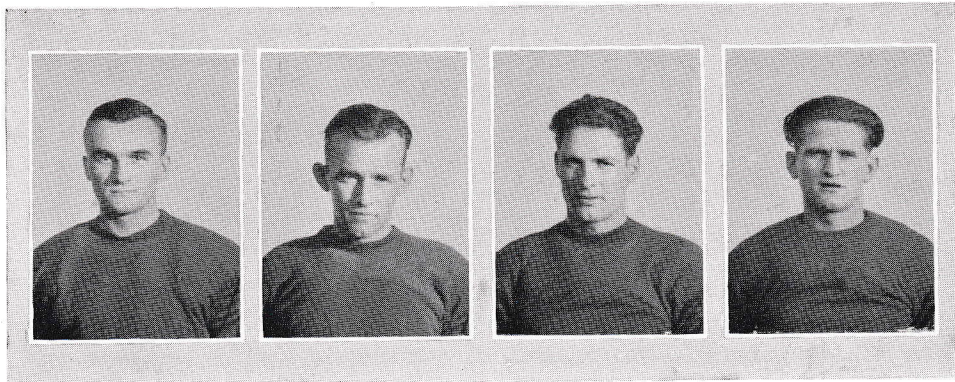

The last game of the season was played with the State Teachers College at San Diego on Thanksgiving Day. After the hardest playing hour of the year, La Verne emerged with a 13-7 victory.

Captain John Brooks, who has completed his fourth year on the varsity, is to be highly complimented for his success in leading the team to victory. He was a triple threat man and the best all-round athlete L.V.C. ever turned out.

Glen Kreps proved a very capable manager for the team.

And now the padded armors and inflated ovals are packed in moth balls, the goal posts folded up, and the weeds have been allowed to inhabit the gridiron till next season, when a better team prepares to pace the chalked rectangle as a Conference eleven.

Basketball

THE LA VERNE COLLEGE VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM, led by Capt. Mark Lehmer, fought their way through a very successful season, only losing five out of the seventeen games played. The first half of the season was discouraging for all five games that were lost were lost during this period.

The Leopard cagers demonstrated their ability by winning four out of five Conference games played by good margins. The team used a fast offensive for a defensive, thereby piling up a huge score against their opponents. Captain Lehmer, playing stellar basketball, set a new season total record for La Verne, his total for the season being 241 points.

The opening game, played with Pomona College, showed the lack of practice on the part of the Leopards. The first Conference win was scored against Cal Tech on the home floor. Two weeks later the Leopards won again from the Beavers by a still larger score.

The decisive games came near the close of the season when the Leopards defeated the Redlands Bulldogs, 38-31, and then, a week later, they finished the season by another victory over the same team.

Not to be outdone by their elders, the Frosh organized themselves as the Kittens, and quite royally helped to uphold the traditions of L. V.

Baseball

WRITING a baseball season's resume for a college annual in mid-season is a task for no less than a first string prophet. The best that any limited sport scribe can do is to stick to history and to use facts upon which to base his guesses for the season's outcome.

Judging from facts just now, this season's results will show La Verne singing the song of the vanquished. Whittier College has been played twice, marking the Leopards twice defeated, 7-1, 10-2. The first game was lost by lack of experienced pitchers due to the earliness in the season. The second was lost on errors made for no reason at all. This is rather a poor start, but the team's potential strength is thereby largely underestimated. Manager Gibble has a schedule arranged, however, which will tax that potential strength to the limit.

This year's team is composed of the best material of any recent past season. Howard Hoff and Glen Kreps would do justice to any college pitching staff. Harold Hoff works behind the bat well enough to keep the position on a team composed of Chet Shirk, first base; Capt. Wayne Bohn, second base; Mark Lehmer, shortstop; and Orville Brooks, first base. It is a significant fact that all of these men except "Howdy" Hoff are underclassmen, the two extreme corners of the infield being held down by Freshmen, the rest Sophomores.

In the outfield, Dale Glick, Marion Boots, John Brooks, Francis Crites, and Ernie Brubaker play catch with the batters who "connect" in that direction. Norval Caywood, Raymond Mahoney, and Ivan Betts are utility men who are working for various positions on the team.

There is one safe prediction, which is this: the team may be entirely different when the season is more advanced. A trophy is again being offered by Coach Arnett to the leading batter of the season. Prediction now would be a crime, the winner will have to feel at home with a bat in his hand.

Thus started the 1926 baseball season at La Verne. It ended, ah, that's the hitch, but it ended.

Track

COACH PAUL KURTZ is to be credited with a splendid work in his attempt to build up a track team, the first one to go out from La Verne College, and completing her round of four major sports. Of course, it would not be expected that the teams sent out the first year would equal the work done in older sports. Manager Brubaker arranged a good schedule for the first attempt in the sport.

In the dual meet with California Christian College we were defeated, but to no discredit of the team's effort. Milton Brownsberger was undoubtedly the greatest surprise of the season, having set a very rapid pace in the quarter by taking second, and again by tying for first in the high jump. He also took first in the broad jump. Otis Brooks, captain of the team, added to the score by taking second in the century. Lehmer, high point man for La Verne, took first in the shot, and second in both the javelin and the broad jump. "Zip" Hartman took third in the mile; Harold Brownsberger, second in the low hurdles; Lloyd Emmert, third in the half; and Boots, second in the discus.

In an invitational meet at Santa Barbara, in which six colleges competed, "Milt" refused to let anyone pass him, and so grabbed first in the 440 and also third in the 220. Mark took his usual first in the shot, while John Brooks threw for second in the discus.

In the Southern California Conference meet, "Milt" was the only victor for La Verne, making one point by finishing fourth in the 440.

The prospects for a track team next year are exceedingly good with such men as the "Brownsbergers," the "Brookses," Lehmer, Glick, Bohn, Emmert, Mahoney and Hartman to form a nucleus. It can be said quite truthfully that La Verne College is an institution to be reckoned with in track as well as in other sports in her coming years of Conference competition.

Alma Mater Hymn

*There's a dear favored spot,
It shall ne'er be forgot
For its memories will linger for aye;
Near the mountains it lies,
'Neath the bluest of skies,
'Tis La Verne with its friends true and gay.
In La Verne we believe,
And a portion we leave,
Of ourselves that shall never depart,
For whate'er may betide
There's a part that will abide
In a dear favored spot in each heart.*

*Alma Mater, to you
Each alumnus is true,
Every heart beats a tribute of love;
As it goes but to give,
And in service to live
For the truest and noblest above.
Ah! we cherish your lore,
And your emblem adore,
We'll be faithful and loyal to you;
With the shield of the right
There is courage and might.
Alma Mater, La Verne, we are true—to you.*

SEPTEMBER

- 8—Students "roll in" for the last year in the old building.
- 10—Students and watermelons intermingle in gay evening affair.
- 11—Apollo Club Musicales, after which Faculty entertains students.
- 18—Frosh follow in footsteps of their learned Junior elders (blindfolded and in the dark!).
- 26—Oxy inflicts first defeat of the football season.

OCTOBER

- 3—History repeats itself: La Verne defeated by S.B.U.C.
- 9—Y. W. slumber party. Sleep? Oh, yes—nothing else but!
- 10—Whittier downs La Verne by narrow margin.
- 13—"L" day. Queer, but this year the Sophs made themselves useful as well as ornamental. Result: the "L" again shines forth in splendor. Evening program consisted mainly of eats accompanied by the gentle patter of rain.
- 15—Jack Wood's Bell Ringers ring in first Lyceum number.
- 24—Leopards win from Caltec, 23-6.
- 26—Faculty women entertain Y. W. with "Rose Program."
- 30—Pomona Frosh score n'er a point from the speedy La Verne Leopards.
- 31—Ghosts, goblins, witches. What?—Halloween, of course!

NOVEMBER

- 2—"Rose Program" proves a repeater. Given for Y. M.
- 7—U.S.C.'s heavy Frosh hitters down La Verne athletes in Stadium.

THREE'S A CROWD

He and she were chatting away nicely about some very important matters. They hadn't seen each other for fully eight hours and were dreadfully behind on conversation. Of course they were in the library and it was Chapel period—but they could talk much better in the library than in Chapel. Isn't it annoying to be interrupted in the midst of a thrilling discourse? Anyway the bell rang and Professor Cullen took charge of the library.

SWELL SOCIETY

Maybe Wayne does go up to Olive's eight times out of seven, but what's it to you? What's it to anybody but themselves if they have been seen together quite frequently for the last four or five years? Sure three of the Clarionettes are wearing diamonds as big as—well—big enough. As we were saying, the weather is fine and it looks like it would rain soon, but what's it to you?

COLLEGE ETIQUETTE

NOTTA THING.

When you're in the library, don't stop talking till someone bawls you out and then whisper.

Don't bother to get to Chapel on time, you'd be the only one there if you did.

Holler at the Prof when he makes an assignment. He'll usually cut it down if you holler long enough.

Don't study unless you have an exam the next period.

Be sure and take all your cuts, that's what they're for.

WORDS WITHOUT MUSIC

You haven't got time? You've got this, that and the other thing to do? Well, get it out of your head that you're original when you sing that song. Everybody knows that verse by heart and several can sing the chorus gleefully. But of course if you won't do it there's somebody else who'll just be dying to and they could do it lots better anyway. Sure, you go ahead and do it, and we'll keep mum.

How to Study

There seems to be a falling out in the congregation of the book-worms. Perhaps it is the dreaded malady. Spring Fever. Kindly postpone the spring fever till May the thirty-first. Now that's removed from the list of causes and effects. The cause must lie in the deficiency of the art of studying. Well, to begin with, when one feels the inner urge so strongly that he feels he must study he should first determine where to study. The library even in its best moments is an undesirable place for deep concentration. The porch rails are unadvisable as a roosting place as one is liable to be mistaken for a blackbird. Suffice it to say that, he who can find a desirable place, let him find it. Next, one must know when to study. One can study when he has nothing else to do. What and which to study we shall leave to the individual's discretion. To make a short story long: if one has a two-thousand word thesis to write and hand in Tuesday morning at seven-forty and is dreadfully rushed for time one should forget about the thesis till the night before the morn-

MRS. MERRITT RECEIVES NEW DEGREE

Institution Put On the Map by English Prof.

We are happy to announce that our English teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Merritt has been awarded two other degrees beside the B.A. and M.A.

It will have been nine months of very hard work when Mrs. Merritt completes her thesis. She has done a great deal of research and reference work in Miller's Hall.

The two new degrees are the B.T.M. (T.M. meaning table manners) and the M.K.A. (K.A. being nothing else than Kitchen Artillery). She has included practical work in her thesis. Cunningham has been taught the value of using a spoon where he heretofore has used a knife—in such cases as eating peas, corn, or gravy, because a spoon holds more. She has actually persuaded Boots to refrain from talking about "dorm grub" no matter how well he likes it. He has, however, been assured that he can tell it to his grand-children. Gib doesn't lick his knife any more 'cause there's plenty more where that came from.

In short, our own Mrs. Merritt has done a very credible work and we wish her much joy and success in her future undertakings.

ing after. One can easily read three or four books and write the thesis and hand it in and collect the A. This is good sound advice offered by—

'Nother Camp'

The other day Milton went into the city and walked off with the four-forty yard dash. How did he do it? Don't tell us he didn't train. We've got some inside dope on it and we know. Doesn't he sprint for at least two blocks every evening regular as clock work? It behooves the rest of us to train in this manner instead of riding around in swell cars (Fords, etc.)—Who knows there might be another Paddock in LaVerne.

Another hero of the Campus is Marcus Aurelius Lehmer. At Santa Barbara he tossed the shot like it was made of paper maché and they couldn't do nothing else except hand over the gold medal. The secret of his success lies in early and continuous training. As a child he was the champion spit-ball thrower of his whole school. His hand hath never lost it's cunning,—he is now the acknowledged prune seed tosser of Miller's Hall—Need we say more?

"Don't hand me strawberries, you'll spoil my taste for prunes."

HARK YE!

"The leaden sky is pouring silver rain into the heart of the orange empire and making gold for the ranchers."

Thus quoth the poet as he slouched against the marble mantel of the fire-place in the northeast wing of the college and stared through the plate glass window at the students gallantly swimming the Hellespont, which flowed through the back yard. Heavily armed with silk parasols, rubber boots and various stout volumes and note-books, they were at a great disadvantage as they battled with the wickedly swirling eddies of the mud puddles.

Half way across the streaming current, some brave youth would shift the ivory handle of his parasol to his mouth. Holding it firmly between his teeth and dividing the weight of his books, half for each arm, he would thus at great hazard maintain his equilibrium. Reaching comparative safety of the bit of cement by the door he would dash madly up the steps only to receive a hostile slap in the face from the water soaked lilac bush that hung over the bannister.

With a gasp of relief he would lower his parasol and dive through the doorway, not however before a great crystal drop of the drip from the eaves struck the exact center of the back of his neck and trickled gently from vertebrae to vertebrae. "Tut! tut!" protested the poet. "It isn't raining rain to me; it's raining violets." (He was dry).

The progress of that dreaded monster, spring fever, has at last been checked. It has swept over our campus grasping many victims in it's angry clutches.

Some symptoms of the ravaging disease are the drooping eye lids, the tendency, on the part of the mouth to fly open at various sundry times, (especially in class) and in general, that tired feeling.

In many cases the disease proved almost fatal but as yet no casualties have been reported.—Look for further announcement on the Bulletin Board.

DON'T HOLLER, I CAN HEAR YOU

Did you ever stop to think that next year, when we move over to the new building we'll have to find a new subject to crab about? We can't say clever things about the old replica of the ark. We can't make fun of the ancient architecture or the relegated wreck. Everything will be new and dignified—but won't it be Gra--nd and GLor--ious?

SNO LIE.

TOO PERSONAL

Mahoney was badly frightened seven times a week (and in between).

Orville Brooks went to the dorm the other day and was duly welcomed by someone—some claim to know who. We wonder!

Harold B. was seen in church last Sunday morning.

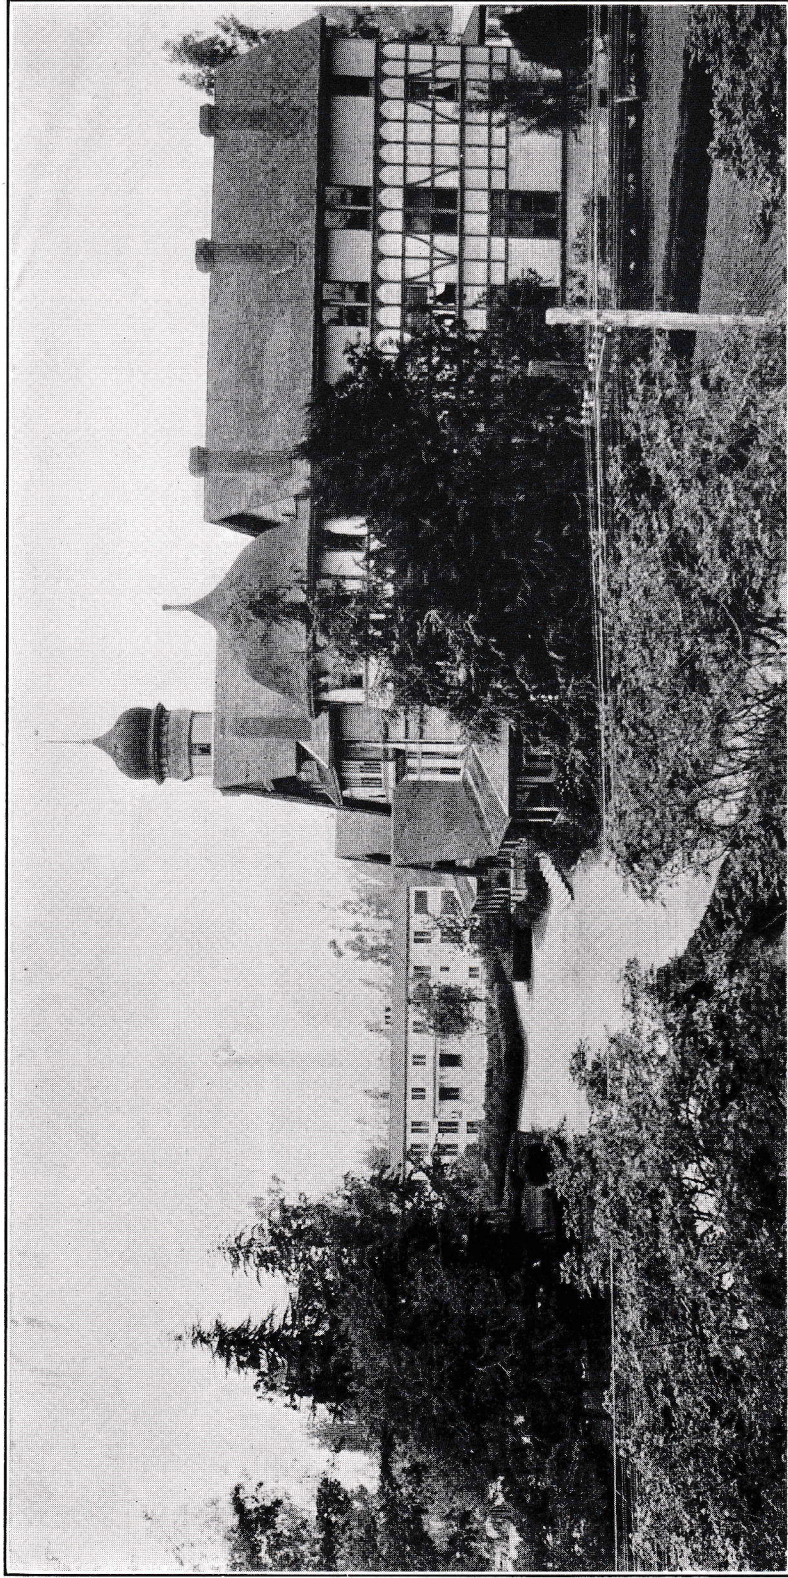

The old fountain would make a swell swimming pool.

Paul and Polly were separated in Milton was on time one day last week to Math class.

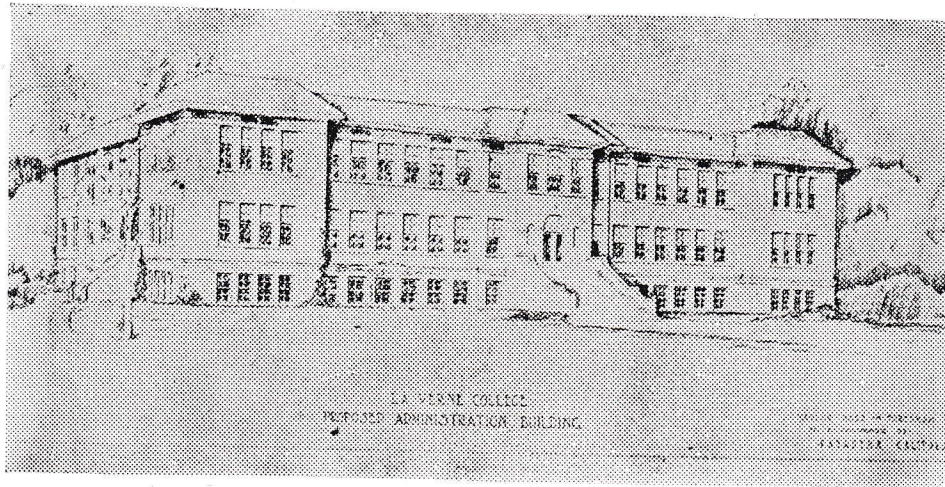

Glenn and June were among those present at the Glendora show last week.

Ivan went up to see Miriam last Sunday.

Not alone TODAY — but TOMORROW!

Your Gas Company plans not alone on today's gas output but upon tomorrow's as well. Our ever increasing army of patrons in LaVerne and throughout Southern California will use a pretty definite volume of gas today, but —

How much gas will they use one year from today?

To plan adequate gas service for our patrons during 1927, your Gas Company is spending $2,000,000 during 1926.
