and discharged from all control on the part of the said Thomas H. Dickinson, or liability for any debt hereafter contracted or heretofore contracted by him, the said real estate and personal property, such use and enjoyment by her of said trust property to be as full, absolute and unrestricted as if she were a feme sole, and not a married woman, with power to sell or otherwise dispose of said personal property as she pleased, and should the said Clara E. during such coverture desire a sale of such real estate; then upon the further trust, that he the said Stephen J. Blaydes, shall when thereunto by her requience(?), sell and convey the same and appropriate the purchase money, as she shall be deed or other writing direct. Should the said Clara E. die before the said Thomas H., then upon the further trust to appropriate whatever shall remain of the trust subject, as she by her last will and testament, or wirting in the nature of a last will and testament, executed in the presence of two subscribing witnesses, shall appoint and in default of such appointment, then to the said Thomas H. Dickinson, the husband of the said Clara E. . . Witness the following signature and seal (Signed by Albert G. Smith). Recorded April 15, 1856."

Thomas H. and Clara E. Dickinson to Stephen J. Blaydes estate - Deed Book "R", PP. 134-136, dated June 2, 1860. In this deed, Albert G. Smith and Clara E. and her husband, Thomas H. Dickinson, relinquished all of their rights to land on which Elizabeth Crist resided, so that the land and slaves could be sold by the executors of the estate, John H. Wallace and John M. Herndon, and the proceeds be divided among all the descendants of Elizabeth B. Crist, the said Albert G. Smith and Elizabeth B. Crist having died. The said Albert G. Smith died intestate and without descendants, but leaving a widow surviving him. Thomas H. and Clara Dickinson granted unto the said John H. Wallace and John M. Herndon, executors of Stephen J. Blaydes, dec'd, all the estate right, title and interest of them the said Thomas H. Dickinson and Clara E. Dickinson in and to the tract or parcel of land in the County of Spotsylvania, on which the said Thomas H. and Clara now reside and where Elizabeth B. Crist lived prior to her death.

(Note: The two above records prove that Albert G. Smith and his mother, Elizabeth B. Crist, died after the death of Stephen J. Blaydes and before June 2, 1860. If they had died sooner, I am sure this would have been mentioned when the codicil was drawn on March 18, 1858.).

Issue of Elizabeth Blaydes and James Smith, Jr.:

a. Clara E. Smith (b. 1808), probably the oldest child, married Thomas H. Dickinson (b. 1803). They first lived in Caroline County and later in Spotsylvania County where they both died. She died about 1887 at the home of her son, Hiram B. Dickinson. She did not leave a will but the names of the children may be learned from the division of her estate. In some of the records the name is changed to Dickerson (See Deed Book "ZZ", P. 432; also Deed Book "AD", Pages 114, 305, & 306; and Deed Book "AE", P. 195. For issue see 1860 Census Records:
