IDENTIFYING THE CHURCH BY Isiah Williams III

If you read the Old Testament carefully, you as I have, I am sure, will come to the conclusion that since day one, man, women, and, their offspring has had a problem doing things the way God want them done. In the New Testament we soon learn that the Gentiles lost their relationship with God Because, to begin with, they knew God, "but glorified Him not as God" (Rom. 1:21). One thing let to another....The first mistake they made was to try to do everything their way.

Some time ago some people started the saying that God was dead. He is not dead yet and according to His Word, God is from "everlasting to everlasting" (Ps. 90:2), and His Word shall stand forever. (Isa. 40:8); those who do things His way shall live forever (John 6:47).

They are trying to say now that God is female. The radicals like Dr. Mary Daly, see no hope for Christianity and advocate its abolition. Dr. Daly wrote an essay entitled "Theology After The Demise of God the Father: A call for the castration of Sexist Religion." In her essay, Dr. Daly expressed the idea that Christianity was too far gone that there be any hope of reformation, and that the idea of a unique male Savior may be seen as just another legitimization of male superiority. She therefore rejects the idea of worshipping Christ, advocates a new type of worship lacking a male image. I hope you, the reader, will remember that I am talking about the Preacher being God's man, that is man called of God, used by God to do the will of God. The preacher, according to God's Word, is not God's women.

The less radical feminists believe that we should not give up Christianity completely, but we should stop calling God "He" and "Him" and try to use those Words which represent all of mankind. Well, that sounds reasonable. But the question is, is it Scriptural? Is it God's way? Is it profitable to salvation? Is it of God? Is it sound doctrine? And finally is it so bad to do things God's way? We shall see.

Refined In The Fire Amid Suffering And Persecution In Uganda!

Through the centuries since Christ's death, and resurrection, His church has been battered time and again by waves of opposition from demonic forces and ungodly men. In the darkest hours of persecution, dedicated saints of God have taken on God's strength and found it greater than all the power of the evil one. Their testimony is a shining example for us to follow as we enter a time unparalleled in world history -- a time for supernatural cataclysms, great deception, demagoguery, and persecution. For those who stand strong in the Lord, it will also be a time of unprecedented revival.

For John Lukyamuzi, the battle has already waxed hot. From his early childhood in Uganda he was surrounded by witchcraft and demonism. During his teens, drunkenness and false religion were snares in his path. God preserved him through these dangers, and at age eighteen, he found Christ as his Savior. However, as a Christian, he was to face a still greater trial.

Idi Amin took power in 1972 and was hailed as a liberator by many in Uganda. However, dreams of new freedom and prosperity soon turned into a nightmare. From 1972 to 1979, Amin's regime brought suffering and terror to the East African nation. More than 500,000 were brutally killed, tortured, and dismembered. Some made to eat their own flesh. Many thousands more fled into exile with nothing more than the clothes on their backs.

Men of God lived in constant jeopardy as they ministered the faith of the Gospel to the scattered and bruised flock of God. Many surrendered their lives for their faith in the Savior. But God had a further purpose for John, who as a young minister yearned for more of God's Word so he could better reach his people for Christ. After filling him with the Holy Spirit and using him to win souls and found prayer groups at great risk, God then led him with a high hand over impossible barriers in the United States, there to realize his dream of receiving in-depth teaching in the Word. The Spirit of God will truly challenge your faith as you learn how John Lukyamuzi became persuaded that, "In all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us."

At your invitation, John and his wife Gladys, who plays accordion and sings, would be more than glad to come and share with your group. They can bring an exciting testimony of the suffering yet victorious Christians in Uganda and of the mighty miracles God performed for their family. A film entitled "Some Through the Fire" is also available for viewing to those who would like to help the people of Uganda, E.A.

Copies of John's faith inspiring testimony "Victory Over Satan in Uganda," are also available on request.

Five Keys To Business Success

Just as we have a different key for the house, car and other objects, we have a different key to business success. However, placing a key in the keyhole is of little value unless the key is turned to the proper position and clicks to open the door.

Likewise, it is of little value in a business operation if one does not put the key into the keyhole and turn the key to the right position to open and complete a business transaction.

The first business key is knowledge. Knowledge is the acquaintance with acts, truths, or principles as from study or investigation. Knowledge is obtained through experiences, books, seminars and other people.

Interrelating the latter will keep a businessperson aware of not only his business, but other related and unrelated businesses as well.

The second business key is application of business knowledge to your business. Knowledge is of little value if the businessperson does not apply all applicable ideas and conform to the particular business industry. And of course, this may mean that the one way you may have started out with your business is not presently the best way.

The third business key is none other than change. There are times when the key of knowledge must be changed to a new key of knowledge in keeping abreast with today's changing marketplace for survival. And only the businesspersons who are flexible and willing to change the old key for the new key will survive.

The fourth business key is turning your business knowledge into profit. There are three kinds of profits that one can earn in the business world: an honest profit, under-profit and over-profit. Each one takes its toll on the business world.

The honest profit of course, is the best profit because the businessperson is neither over or under pricing his product or service. The under-profit, just to make a sale, will usually end up with a business loss. And the over-profit normally will leave the businessperson looking for sales when customers discover that that he is overcharging.

The fifth business key is common sense. If one does not mix common sense to know what knowledge use, where to use it, when to use it and how to use it, all the knowledge in the world is of little value.

The clock of the business door of course is the stability of your business and its profit.

How knowledgeable are you about your business? How did you obtain your knowledge?

Working Youth

Education and employment are combined for seven central area youth this summer, through their work with the Summer Youth Project and Paul Robeson Community Theatre Group. These youth are thoroughly exercised in body and mind, some of them from nearly dawn until dusk. They do both floor exercises and calisthenics as well as dance and movement exercises for good musculature and coordination. For their minds they are doing things such as visiting major universities in the city; major media companies, questioning and receiving advice from local entertainers in the Robeson Theatre and they are scheduled to meet and talk to world renowned stars such as Diahann Carroll, Ernestine Anderson, and Third World. Some of these youth are also rehearsing nightly for their parts in the up and coming show Good Black Music.

This section of Summer Youth Project participants will be a very healthy and aware group of young people who can assist and support their community. The community should also support them in their endeavors. Come out and see them in Good Black Music opening August 6th at the Langston Hughes Cultural Arts Center, 17th & Yesler.

Mann Bits and Pieces

Sports Editor

The all-star baseball game was over last week and that means that the season is half over. It also means that starting this week the Seahawk rookies will report to Cheney to start busting heads for positions--Next week the vets return to push the rookies around and show them whose boss--Seahawk quarterback Jim Zorn promised that this year will be totally different for the Seahawk Fans. Zorn said that after six years of futile trying, it's about time that the 'Hawks' made their move and become a threat in the NFL. Zorn also stated that teams like Buffalo, Kansas City, San Francisco and Tampa Bay have reached success during their six years of existence and there is no reason that the Seahawks cannot emulate these teams and come up with a winner--Big golfing field showed up for the East-side men's annual golf tournament at Jefferson Last week-end--The Championship division was an old fashion shoot-out between Jessie Allen and David York, with the steady Allen winning out on the last day. The "A" Flight winners were Al Robert, Robert Woodward and Fred Johnson--"B" Flight Roy Jernigan, Ron Taylor and Hamp Allen--"C" Flight Joe Toney, F. Beaver and L. Bowman--Ladies Flight was won by A. Cunningham, followed by J. Chess and Donna Berry. Over-all Low Gross for the field was won by Jessie Allen while Low Net went to Roy Jernigan of Portland--Even two months before the Season begin, most of the so-called experts are rating the University of Washington Huskies the number one team in the country. Nor did they stop there. Huskies Coach Don James is predicted to be the coach of the year.

Q. Can you tell me how much money a first-round draft choice in the National Football League makes? --Dino Jackson, Atlanta, Ga.
A. It depends on the position. A runningback picked on the first round might command a signing bonus of $250,000, and a three-year contract calling for salaries of $125,000 the first year, $150,000 the second year and $175,000 the third year. There are also incentive bonuses that will be paid to the player if he attains certain goals, such as being named to the All-Pro team or being named the league's most Valuable Player. These awards can be worth as much as $5,000 to the player. But while running backs and quarterbacks command the largest salaries in football, linemen collected the lowest. A lineman picked on the first round might get half what a running back or quarterback would.
Q. What does it mean when a team "loans" a player some money? Janice Johnson, Jacksonville, Fla.
A. It means exactly what it says. Many times players have deferred contracts, meaning they sign, say, a million-dollar contract, with the money to be paid in, say, equal 30-year installments. In a case such as this, the player may develop financial problems and wish to "borrow" some of the money he is to receive down the road. Often this loan is interest-free.
Q. I heard Nike tennis shoe company is suing one of my favorite players, Daryl Dawkins of the Philadelphia 76ers. What is this all about and do you think it will cause Dawkins to be traded?--Jerome Miller, Jacksonville, Fla.
A. Sources say Dawkins, the 76ers' 6-foot-10 center, failed to live up to some contractual obligations with Nike. The firm agreed to pay him about $10,000 a year to wear Nike shoes while playing with the 76ers, but the suit alleges that Dawkins failed to do that recently. This shouldn't cause Dawkins to be traded.
Q. Is there any truth to the rumor that Rudy Hubbard is leaving Florida A&M for a job in the United States Football League?--Marcia Smith, Atlanta, Ga.
A. Nope. A wild rumor did surface that Hubbard was under consideration for the head coaching job at Birmingham of the United States Football League. However, this apparently was just a rumor. Hubbard said he has yet to be contacted.

Hi Boxing Fans--It's going to be a little short again. You know we have moved into a new place after twenty years and I'm still unpacking. I have seen some things that have been in boxes for ten years, but you know Martha, she is trying to find a spot for all of it. Between Martha and the dog, I'm going crazy ducking them and all the boxes that are scattered around. I don't think we will be completely unpacked for another week. In the meantime I did move some stuff from in front of the TV to watch the fights last Saturday--Davey Moore retained his title by stopping Ayub Kalule in the tenth round, this was Davey's 11th fight and he did beat a very good fighter in Kalule but you could see that Kalule was not the fighter of three years ago. He was very slow and was really a target for Moore. The most sensational fight of the week was the knockout of Kevin Morgan by Marion Starling in the first round. I had hopes of seeing a very good fight in this one, but Starling caught Morgan with a terrific left-hook in the first minute and Morgan just could not recover from it to go any further. This fight reminds me of a story for you, Willie Ketchum a great fight manager who had five world champions happened to be a friend of mine, one time in Oakland, Calif, he was there with one of his fighters and I was also there with one of mine. There was a young fighter on the card having his first fight. His manager was also a first time manager so he asked Willie if he would work the corner with the boxer. Willie asked me if I would help and we were in the young man's corner, Willie had never seen the kid fight before so we just was going to wait until the first round was over to see what we had. You know what happened? The kid got stopped in the first minute, we walked back to the dressing room and the young man's manager was there and a little mad at both Willie and me. He asked Willie what the hell happened? That made Willie a little mad too, and he told the new manager, "You saw what the hell happened, the bum didn't make it back to the corner so we could tell him what to do." I thought that I would crack up, but I can understand how the cornermen in Morgan's corner felt. That's it for this week, I hope that we will be unpacked by the next time I write you a little note. --CI BON

The Dunk Kings Summer Classic Tour August 1-18

The Dunk Kings leave August 1 for a twelve game road trip to the Midwest and East Coast. Invading the homecourts of twelve top high school powers will be no easy task but the Dunk Kings were counted out last summer and returned from the tour with a 7-5 record.
This summer the Dunk Kings will face the toughest schedule of teams in the tours five year history but the Dunk Kings feel they can be up to the test, especially with the players the Dunk Kings were able to get for the tour. So far in 7 pre-tour games in Washington and Oregon the Dunk Kings are 5-2 including 20 point thumpings of Benson Tech one of Oregon's finest and the Seattle AAU Seattle Junior Olympic Team. The Dunk Kings two losses came against college players but helped quicken the Dunk Kings feel they have best kinds of players for this type of tour. Players with guts, talent, mental toughness, the heart, skill, desire and ability to play hard every day. Their job is to put forth a good and positive impression of the Northwest, to show their is equal talent here.
The Dunk Kings top players are guards: David Knox of Garfield, Vernon Torrey of Kent-Meridian and 6-4 Kenny Luckett of Benson Tech in Portland. Two freshmen David Melton of Garfield and Matt Weaving of Columbia River in Vancouver will see valuable learning time and should greatly benefit from the experience.
The Dunk Kings hope to add one more experienced guard Craig Jackson of Roosevelt.
At Forwards the Dunk Kings have the best in the country in Ulf Spears 6-6 swingman from Benson Tech of Portland already named to high school A-A teams and reputed to be the best in Oregon. Spears made the tour last summer and was the Dunk Kings leading rebounder and number two scorer. As good as Spears is, he may not be as good as either Kyle Harris of Garfield and Joe Harris of Yakima Davis High who are vastly under rated. Jeff Woods and Kevin Johnson of Garfield 1982 (18-2) Metro JV Champions will see most of their action at quick forward along with Larry Cade of Tacoma Mt. Tahoma.
At center the Dunk Kings will have the best when he joins the tour one game late due to another tour. Van Beard 6-8 of Garfield has to be one of the best high school centers in the Northwest. Another center would be 6-6 Steve Adams of Benson Tech who will see time at center in some role and at power forward as will 6-5 John Koslovsky of Kent-Meridian.
The team can be seen during their last pre-tour tuneup game to be played upcoming in Seattle.

Kabby Mitchell's 'Urban Renewal' Overwhelming Success

by A. Young

Some of Seattle's finest dancers played their energy, excitement and engaging styles to personify the renewed energy of urban dwellers in Kabby Mitchell's new show, URBAN RENEWAL, which was presented July 2 and 3 at the Langston Hughes Cultural Center. Mitchell who recently left Pacific Northwest Ballet, and his workshop dancers clearly announced to Seattle 'we are indeed a part of the renaissance.'

Urban Renewal is really a show about Kabby's renewed energy. He seductively and charmingly shares himself--his motivations, his sources of creative energy and dreams with his community. The first part of the show is devoted to 'Renovation of the Spirit'.

'God's Grace' opens the new show, thereby presenting the original and primary source of Kabby's spirit as a dancer. It is a thankful tribute in which Kabby sets jazz dance movements to Jerome Jackson's soul stirring rendition of 'God's Grace.' The workshop, costumed in bright blue choir robes, executes pirouettes, extensions and pique turns which send our spirits soaring with Black dance deeply rooted in the Gospel music tradition.

Attention to the spirit is shifted to a satire of the Supremes titled, 'Who Will They Look To'. Technically focused, there are body rolls and magnificent extensions of legs. Gwen Banks, Anita Kuroiwa and Maureen Hara are superb in this hilarious satire in which Mitchell incorporates a very technical pas de deux.

'Taking it to the Streets', a transition dance with the workshop, takes pedestrian, everyday movements and sets them to dance forms. Walking, skipping, rope jumping are presented as art; however, little technique is displayed.

'The Worker Works To Live', is particularly well performed by Reuben Bryant. Others in the dance, Marcella Boyd, Emma Jackson, Safiya River and Gwen Banks are good. Here, African dance movements abound. The worker has a constant and driving movement where, not a single beat is missed. Bryant moves as swiftly as a gazelle and when he has completed these ritualistic movements, he picks up his leather satchel and boogies on off to work.

'Dark Days' inspired by James Baldwin, is important because it is Kabby's first attempt in choreography (1980). Kabby, like Alvin Ailey and Arthur Mitchell felt the need to insert classical ballet into the show. However, unlike them, he lends context to this piece by juxtaposing it with highly spiritual dances. In so doing, he startlingly reveals the absence of passion which characterizes most classical ballet.

The second part of the program is titled, 'Love X4! The first dance in this movement is 'Dawn'. It is Kabby's tribute to Black family. Danced to Bill Withers' music, Kabby's own immediate family of two women and one man is, at once, mirrored. Raven Complanter, Beverly Hughes and Antonio Terry present familiar relationships in beautifully executed movement.

If you have heard Aretha Franklin's 'Dr. Feelgood' and have been moved by it, the you would be transfixed by Gwen Banks' dance to the song. She projects enormous personality and sense of character in her dance. Using jazz movements, Banks presents all of the sensuousness of the piece in striking and controlled movements. She is joined by Mitchell who lends something Mitchell then takes the audience to the intimacy and beauty of the love of a man and a woman in 'Makin Love.' Danced to Roberta Flack's classic, Anita Kuroiwa and Kabby Mitchell are flawless in their execution of tombes, grand lifts and penche arabesques. It is a dance which evokes tenderness--a Black man and a woman dancing to a tender love song.

Part III, 'Sounds of the City' is a musical interlude which could have used more polishing. They should have been more of an intrinsic part of the production. Instead, they were more of the frosting on the cake rather than an organic part. Sharon Cappelle, La Tonya Ausler and Alice Campbell Hughes have fine voices of varying qualities and timbres -- something magical in a singing group.

Part IV, 'Urban Phantasy' reflects those characters and images which occupy Kabby's dreams. Making their entrances into his dreams are assembly line workers, actually automotons; Egyptians, who create human hieroglyphs on the stage; pedestrian types who boogie, the Supremes

GOODWILL GRADUATE EMBARKS ON PROMISING CAREER!

Valarie Gordon is a recent Goodwill graduate who has successfully embarked on her career.

Gordon has been working as a teller/clerk at a Seattle credit union, since the beginning of March. In addition to her teller's duties, she fills out loan applications, interviews loan applicants and does some filing and typing.

The classes I took at Goodwill gave me an introduction to the type of work I'm doing now," she said. Gordon completed the typing and bank teller training classes and the job dynamics course, which stresses resume writing and interviewing skills, while working as a dish grader in Goodwill's plant.

She credits the job dynamics course for a lot of her success. "The class helped me a lot. I used to get very nervous in an interview and I wouldn't look people in the eye," she said. After taking the course, she felt her interviewing skills improved drastically.

Gordon's initial contact with her present employer was a bit out of the ordinary. A KOMO television news reporter filmed a story about Goodwill's training program and during the process interviewed Gordon.

The credit union manager saw the news broadcast and was very impressed with Gordon. He asked the assistant manager to call her and set up an appointment. After an interview and a typing test, she was hired.

Gordon likes what she's doing but she has plans for the future. "I want to be a bank teller and this is just like it. I'd like to advance to a loan officer and the possibilities here look very good," she said.

and a hooker type. Through movement these characters re-image themselves. Assembly line workers turn into musicians who later turn into robots. Finally, all become hieroglyphs. The characters fade and Mitchell awakens and dances to 'It's My Turn'. Kabby appears to be flying through the air. It is a passionate collage of fouette turns, technically perfect.

Marcia Tate does superb interpretation of Nikki Giovanni's 'Ego Tripping.' Kabby's dancers, some seasoned and others' new to the arts community, all have one thing in common -- an abundance of talent! For those who were unfortunate enough to miss the premiere of Kabby's workshop, another concert is scheduled for September 4. See you there!

this week it's time to travel to the English style city of Victoria on beautiful Vancouver Island. A great way to arrive is by the four hour cruise on the Princess Marguerite. It makes its way from Seattle up the Puget Sound and across the Strait of Juan de Fuca to show its passengers seventy-three miles of some of the most beautiful scenery in the country.

Once in Victoria, this majestic Canadian City with "Old English" charm is just about the right size to explore by foot. Old town sports renovations designed to bring back the atmosphere of turn-of-the-century Victoria. Visit the Parliament Buildings, where one beautiful sight to behold at night are the lighted parliament buildings. Stop for a rest and have tea at the Empress Hotel. This is a popular English custom.

Victoria is renowned for her multitude of beautiful gardens. The Butchart Gardens are known throughout the world for their incredible beauty - 35 acres, six gardens named Fabulous Sunken, Rose, Italian, Japanese, Lake and Stage Show Gardens. The shopping scene is one of the reasons for visiting Victoria. The city is noted across the continent as being the next best thing to a European trip for imported goods.

Exotic foods and delicacy are imported. If you enjoy antique shopping, Victoria is the capitol of the world antiques.

Though Victoria has a reputation for being a quiet town, there are many night spots that come to life when the lights come on.

Exciting food at top restaurants, outstanding educational and cultural facilities, beautiful gardens and scenery can be in romantic Victoria.

Hello There--
Today I am going to relay some potent information to you which I feel has for some time been tucked away in your closet, and needs to be revealed before it's too late.

When is the last time you told your child that you care and love him/her? Don't you realize that due to the harshness of times; the state the world is desperately in along with the dope, alcohol, sex, T.V. and all other vices which are so out in the open now; that your child needs to be told on a continuous basis that you care. Unlike our generation where a child was afraid to commit such a treasonable act such as Rape, Cursing, Smoking of Marijuana, or even suicide, for fear of being beaten nearly half to death, the children of today cannot but deal with society as they see it to their senses of judgement. They endeavor to cope while they witness the degeneration of a maddening world with the only means at their disposal. And while they are coping in that almost impossible way (for their way sometimes leads to death or something worse) we sit on our haunches and completely give up or surrender to their desires and whimsical practices for fear of being rejected.

Well parents, don't think that you are doing them a favor, for you aren't. All you are doing is placing more fat in the fire.

Love hasn't ceased to exist. It has only been suppressed, and not only by a sick and troubled world, but by the parents also.

The responsibility of being a parent is astronomical in its quest, but you accepted the position, so live up to it as best you can, and that doesn't mean surrendering to your rebellious child.

Tell that child you care for him/her once in a while. Gain their confidence once again as you possessed it when they were infants depending upon you for everything. Make them feel loved and needed. Give them encouragement now and again, and be aware that if you fail to do this, you and only you are to blame, not the child.

I have a 13 year old son who has been brought up on the word love, and nurtured on it so that he can also use the word and its meanings when he has his own children. If I cannot afford to send him to a movie or a dance, I simply tell him so, and in the process, I tell him I'm proud of him, and love him immensely.

I guarantee you that the results I see him achieving are proud results and I'll do anything to continue his happiness.

So tell them you care, and watch the rewards. If you feel that your child has failed you--look in the mirror, and check out your mind.

The Pleasures Of Walking!

If you do not care for sports or games and cannot bear to commit yourself to even five minutes of daily exercise, all is not lost. A brisk, regular walk will do a great deal for your muscle tone, circulation, and general health. Instead of driving all the way to work, you might park a mile or so from your office and take your walk at the beginning and end of your workday. If you must use the parking facilities at your place of work, park in the area of the lot that is farthest away from the entrance to the building. In short, create your own opportunities to walk. This is only a modest amount of exercise, but it will give you a chance to relax a little before and after the pressures of the day.

We'll continue next week with a discussion on avoiding back trouble. See you then!

Looking At Cancer Insurance!

The fear of cancer and concern over the high medical costs involved in treating the disease, have led many Americans to purchase cancer insurance. However, cancer insurance is generally not a Dollar Wise purchase for most people.

Insurance helps families and individuals deal with a financial loss they could not handle otherwise. But buying insurance, probable risk, costs of policies, potential loss and coverage should be considered.

The risk in this case is relatively low. In one year, one in 220 Americans develops cancer. For older persons, there is a greater likelihood of incurring larger medical expenses from accidents, strokes, heart attacks and other common illnesses.

Dr. Richard Carkner, Extension economist for Washington State University, recommends you first consider a good comprehensive policy which includes major medical. Major medical insurance provides protection against extremely expensive medical care regardless of the type of illness or accident.

When examining cancer policies, be sure to check for exclusions. Many cancer policies will pay nothing for ailments which are side affects or a complication of cancer. They may not pay for diagnosis, pathology reports, rehabilitation or check-ups after treatment. These expenses are often covered by a comprehensive policy.

If it is found that a cancer policy buyer had the disease when the policy was purchased, benefits will not be paid. In addition, a person with two or more policies probably will not collect full benefits from all the policies for the same illness. Usually one policy with good coverage is more beneficial than several small policies.

When buying insurance, compare the coverage of a comprehensive health policy with that of cancer policies. Consult with a reliable insurance agent when making this purchase.

Off The Corner

Toms, cringe and hide your cowardly heads. Poison pen is back. Mounted upon his noble white steed, sword in hand, he searches for kinky heads to lop. Thought I had faded into the sunset, did you not? Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men? The Shadow he do. That's a colored joke. Why don't you laugh the way you did when your white buddies told it to you. You rascal be forewarned that the time left is reduced. Things are looking up.

Old habits die hard. Think back to the time when black employment was confined to a white kitchen and wages were a few dollars and all you could tote. Who was it that grinned, scratched, and got over? Why you old chronoclast doesn't it make your heart bleed with longing? No wonder you spend so much time talking about the good old days.

My partner told me about a Tom he met in a bar who was drowning his sorrow with cheap whiskey. It would appear that the Klan held a meeting and he wasn't invited. How could they be so cruel and thoughtless?

A Tom is a Tom is a Tom. You should have heard that conversation that I listened to between a white sales woman and a Tom. Grinning and agreeing was the order of the day. In my mind's eye were visions of Butterfly McQueen and Scarlet O'hara. Stephen Foster may have been right in his thoughts on "Old Black Joe."

Some courageous fellow ought to coordinate an Uncle Tom convention. Wonder how many would show up? Identification could be simplified by drawing up a questionnaire showing what most white people thought and concluding with the statement; do you agree, or do you disagree.

Cheer up, Toms, all is not lost. Grapevine has it that a new pill is about to hit the market designed to combat the neurosis associated with Uncle Tomism.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who always to himself has said
I hate this kinky head

E.R.A. FALLS SHORT

A ten year battle has finally rested the proposed Equal Rights Amendment was just three states shy of ratification and many people are still fighting to keep E.R.A. alive. And many of the amendments backers will strive to get the votes for the approval of this nation wide cause. The E.R.A. is equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex. Now that is just a small sample of what the amendment is about, however, most people don't understand what E.R.A. is about and most of the people that I have talked to were not in favor with the Equal Rights Amendment. A new ratification of the amendment began last week and many House Representatives and members of Congress will reintroduce the bill which hopefully will be more successful the second time around. Even with the help of national organizations like: AFL-CIO, YWCA the amendment was still in trouble because the last state to ratify was Indiana in 1977. So what caused the E.R.A.'s downfall? Well some say that men had a lot to do with it, the fear of a E.R.A. Amendment made some men break out in a cold sweat and some were confused about the whole thing not knowing if E.R.A. was for women only. And even to my surprise a lot of women are against E.R.A. saying that the amendment in a "sense" was trying to put women above men and not equal to men. This issue by itself has brought a lot of attention for women, but their victory has yet to be won. Now if the new ratification of E.R.A. falls this time around the chances of it ever passing are very slim. Commentary of this article are welcome--write to George Burney c/o FACTS 2765 E. JUNETEENTH BANQUET IS A SMASHING SUCCESS!

On June 12, 1982, the Black Prisoners Caucus at the Washington State Reformatory sponsored its Annual "Juneteenth" Banquet.

As always this event was a smashing success. Black residents and their families from all over the State were in attendance, with one thing on their mind - to CELEBRATE.....

The festivities began at 10 a.m. and lasted until 3 p.m. The program had many highlights including disco by our own D.J. Mr. Tony Wheat, & live entertainment by our highly professional resident band "Silk & Steel". We were also fortunate enough to have special guest speakers from the Operational Emergency Center (OEC) to come up and show their concern and support. Ms Susan (Sneed) Love recited a most captivating monolog regarding the Black struggle. Mr. Fordie Ross spoke to us on the continuing problems we have endured over the years. As Director of OEC, and a man of great wisdom, Mr. Fordie Ross is well aware of the problems that befall us. We were also honored with the presence of Ms. Betty Sneed, who has assisted us along with Ms. Bernadine Salsbury and Ms. Dorothy Moore from OEC; they were all here in a show of concern and support of our people. But let us not forget to give a warm thanks with our hearts to the "Ladies of Zodiac" and Ms. Pat Peters for their offerings of food and the upmost support as they have this time and the years past.

Ms. Janet Williams, acting Community Resource Coordinator, did a beautiful job as the Institutional "Hostess". We (BPC) greatly appreciate her efforts.

During the program we held a Dance Contest which concluded with two winners; Mr. Robert King (Resident) and Ms. Patricia Coleman (Guest). The first place prize was a beautiful handmade Statue, done by our resident ceramics Director, Mr. Frank Sneed, Jr.

On behalf of all the members of the Black Prisoners Caucus and all the residents, we extend our appreciation to them and, all our honored guest and family members.

They made this day "Juneteenth" a day to be remembered....We would like to give a special mention to Mr. Gary Grimes our Executive Secretary & Treasurer, who did all of the proposal packages and prepared the necessary documents by bringing all materials up to date so that we could begin our function. Our thanks to Mr. Donald Ross, Chairman - Mr. Tony Black, Vice Chairman - Mr. Wayne Simmons, Inmate Services - and the rest of the Black Prisoners staff. We also thank Donald Zackery -Vice Chairman/and Leslie Chatman - Sgt at Arms Chairman.

Again, we thank all of our guest and family members because "Juneteenth" would not be without you.

Little Things That Mean A Lot

The world will little note nor long remember what was said there, but it can never forget what we did there on a quiet hillside in the city of Olympia last week. It was the Annual Meeting of Prince Hall Masons of Washington and Jurisdiction, who, in these times of economic difficulties, went about their business of pooling their limited resources and sharing them with the NAACP, the United Negro Colleges and High School graduates in the form of a half dozen scholarships. The few thousand dollars we were able to share with those institutions and youth are among the Little Things of which I speak. This money represented the equivalent of but a couple of dollars from each Mason in the State and Jurisdiction, and reminded me of just how wonderful and significant it would be if each Black person in this state or nation, if possible, would give a similar amount for the same purposes. Better still, suppose this giving of just two dollars could be duplicated also by the millions of White Citizens of good will and humanitarian concerns? Such Little things could enhance the educational and human rights programs of Blacks a thousand-fold. Few would deny that such enhancement is needed. Just as Black folks had begun to be accorded their rightful places in Governments, Businesses, Churches, and their communities, we find our Leaders devising every kind of scheme and excuse to threaten and otherwise undermine their very existence through their limitation of jobs and opportunities, and rendering it virtually impossible for some of us to entertain any thoughts or concerns other than that of sustaining life itself. This Nation's Leaders must never forget that we occupy this nation together. We must not let them forget that we are here and intend to remain here. They must constantly be reminded that those things which harm one race is also harmful to the nation as a whole. They must not be permitted to make this One Nation, Under God, without Liberty and Justice for all. Although we did not dwell to heavily on the negative when we met last week, Masons are never unmindful of man's inhumanity to man and often rededicate themselves to efforts to bringing meaning and purpose to more of this nation's Black families.

Stay with us.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR AND READERS:

July 14, 1982 I, who for 15 months have proclaimed my innocence of the unarmad Chuck's Market robbery, was finally granted a new trial by the Hon. Judge C.V. Johnson. Judge Johnson ruled substantial justice had not been done in my case, that is, I was not allowed to cross-examine the witness against me. Judge Johnson's ruling was based on the fact that witness Tina Hopkins lied throughout the prosecution.

The immediate issue is how soon Prosecutor Norm Maleng will dismiss the prosecution for insufficient evidence and help me secure my rightful freedom. Because Tina Hopkins was led into and thorough her perjured testimony by prosecutor Fred Yeatts, I can never be fairly tried on these facts. Recently Hopkins told prosecutor Becky Roe Hopkins told Yeatts before trial Hopkins was using drugs, though Yeatts has continually denied such knowledge.

Though I have been legally exonerated, I still am in prison indefinitely and must convince the Washington State Board of Prison Terms and Paroles of the error against me. Obviously, I need and appreciate all support of people in the community to assist in undoing this wrong. My falsely-suspicious parole officer with the robbery detectives, in fact, began this long negative chain of events in my life.

Again, I am grateful beyond words to Mr. Beaver for publicizing my writings, and for the assistance of people who believe in me and understand the prejudices of the criminal "justice" system.

Sincerely,
Robert Grover

A Report To The People

This is True:
Prior to and after 1870 Black men suffered, bled and died in pursuit of a right to vote in America. The addition of the 15th Amendment to our Constitution which declared that,"the right to vote shall not be denied by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude." This erected new hope in the hearts of millions of Blacks throughout this nation, but this within itself was insufficient, and did not guarantee voting rights to every Black American due to States Rights. Many of our Southern States immediately began to set up road blocks, consisting of strenuous voter registration requirements for Blacks. These requirements set forth by some states were so rigid and ridiculous, they drew the attention of some just and honest men of Congress, who in 1965 authorized what is known, as the 1965 Voters Right Act, granting broad and expansive Voting Right to all American Citizens, outlawing the ungodly State's restrictions. But during this 97th Congress, Mr. Jesse Helms, A Republican Senator from North Carolina, with the aid and assistance of some of his Bollweevil co-horts, tried desperately to weaken this act with a watered down version of the 1965 Act. It had the blessings of Mr. Reagan, but there arose such a cry of opposition from the constituency that he, Mr. Reagan, had to back off!

And as a result, America still has a strong extension of the 1965 Voters Right Act. Now let every single individual prepare themselves, come November, to use this instrument (Vote), to nominate, and elect those candidates whom you know to be free of racial bigotry, remembering full well, that with your VOTE, you too, can strike a death blow to racial bigotry.

Until Then,
This is True.--See you next week!

Let The Youth Know

by Charlie James

I wish I knew her name..you see she stopped me one day, when I was 18 years old. I was walking pass her house on the way to class at the local Junior college in Michigan. She said, "Son, I don't know where you're going, but I've been watching you every day as you walk by, and you look like you are serious about doing something, and I like that."

I said,"thank you mam" and I walked on to class. That moment sticks in my mind because it was a special one of those many times in my youth, when an older person took the time out to say something positive. Especially to someone that they didn't know, but it gave me some inspiration to strive even harder for an education.

It's important for us to take a few moments with the youth and not just turn our heads and ignore it when they are doing something negative or positive. Let them know that their negative actions aren't cool or appreciated, but at the same time let them know when they are trying to do something positive.

It wasn't long ago, that the concept of the extended family was a major part of most Black Communities. Now we are at a point where parents don't chastise their children and don't want anyone else to do the job for them. Then when they do try to develop themselves and don't get any encouragement, they rotate towards the things that do get them some positive re-inforcement from their peers, and we are appalled when we find our children involved in teenage sex, drugs or shoplifting, and they are punished without us fully understanding the roots of the problem.

When a young man or woman is at that critical stage of thier development a positive remark can make all the difference in the world. Whether it comes from a stranger or someone you know doesn't really matter, what matters is that someone else recognizes what you are trying to do and give you some positive feed-back because of it.

I could have turned out differently if it wasn't for older men and women who sat me down at crucial junctures in my life, and re-inforced what my parents were trying to teach me. I owe a lot to a lot of nameless people, and maybe I can pay them back by carrying on what they started with me....This is Charlie James with the bottom line....Say Young Blood, Can I talk to you a minute!

THE BLACK HOLLYWOOD GOLDEN ERA LIVES AGAIN!

The location shot of the cast and crew of Rosebud Film Corporation, 'Absent', taken in 1928, is one of the 12 sepia toned photos used in the 1983 Black Hollywood: Yesterday wall calendar, which celebrates the roots of Black Cinema achievement.

Stepin' Fetchit wasn't the only Black movie star in Hollywood during the twenties. Black movie stars have been in Hollywood ever since movies began. But their past accomplishments in the American cinema go largely unrecognized. Since 1920, hundreds of black-cast films have been produced - most of them obscured by history. Yesterday's Hollywood featured celebrities like Noble Johnson, who appeared in over 200 movies, and Nina Mae McKinney, the silver screen's first black love goddess. Between 1920 and 1950, over 150 pioneer companies produced films with all black casts.

Sylvia Keys and Valerie Shaw, co-founders of the L.A.-D.C. Connection, Inc. feel the time has come to recognize these accomplishments. Keys working out of Washington, and Shaw, in Los Angeles, have produced the first wall calendar, depicting scenes from black movies during Hollywood's early years, to commemorate black contributions to the American cinema.

The "BLACK HOLLYWOOD: YESTERDAY" 1983 calendar reproduces 12 original photographs that celebrate black cinema. Keys and Shaw expect the calendar to "serve as a tremendous educational tool - inspiring film festivals, serving as a catalyst for classes and lecture series, and providing a fund-raising tool for black organizations."

The "BLACK HOLLYWOOD: YESTERDAY" calendar is on sale now for $6.98 (plus tax) from the L.A.-D.C. Connection, Inc., P.O. Box 38815, Los Angeles, CA. 90038, or L.A.-D.C. Connection, Inc., P.O. Box 60681, Washington, D.C. 20039.

The Essence of Being African-- American

by Makel Spencer

Many centuries ago in a land surrounded by crystal clear azure waters, and blessed with an abundant supply of natural resources; a people ruled and controlled their own destiny. They lived in a land where man's destiny was married to nature. Ancient kingdoms and empires flourished such as the Sudan, Mali, and Dahomey. Loving wisdom, the people of this land believed the elder's opinions were primary and utmost under any circumstances. Being close knitted, all the children were a part of an extended family structure. The woman's place was to rear her family and tend the land. The man was responsible for hunting and protecting his family and the families of his tribal brothers and sisters. This land is called Africa.

As time progressed and Africans encountered Europeans, the rape of a large segment of the African population was borned. This treacherous act of barbarism was called slavery. Slavery in the Americas was the most cruel and inhuman system ever instituted. Africans of differing cultures and languages were taken from their land; children were kidnapped and sold into slavery, husbands and wives were separated from all family structural ties and literally whipped into submission to be slaves in the Americas.

While crossing the Atlantic Ocean on slave ships and packed like sardines, many of Africa's daughters and sons succumbed and died under such brutal and heinous force. Only the strong survived and made it to the ocean shores of America. It was on the East Coast and in the state of Virginia whereby the first Africans arrived in America.

African women were physically raped by their European slave masters, consequently producing offsprings who were neither black or white, but Mulatto. Mulattos were not accepted as being white rather they were considered light complexioned Blacks. In essence, all Black people were subjugated to the same treatment regardless of skin complexion.

Today in America, the Afro-American has been borned. The Afro-American is one segment of the millions of people who compose the African diaspora. The roots of the Afro-American have been sown. Those roots go all the way back to ancient Africa, but can only be traced to slavery for a few and after slavery for the vast majority of Afro-Americans. It is this stigma which makes Afro-Americans different from all other nationalities in the United States. Being a descendant of a huge continent is one thing, but lacking the tools and knowledge of your family heritage is another thing. Many Afro-Americans still suffer from a slave mentality which was non-existent while in Africa. The vast majority of Afro-Americans still carry the last names of their former European slave masters. It is a lack of knowledge of self which restricts many Afro-Americans from realizing their total human worth.

Until the Afro-American realizes he is African regardless of skin complexion--there will be no peace in the minds of the African Diaspora in America. You cannot appreciate another's culture if you know nothing about your own culture. Knowing another's culture and not your own is sheer hypocrisy and ignorance.

"Salt Addiction" Can Be Cured-- Taste For Salt Can Be "Unlearned"

A number of groups concerned with keeping Americans healthy are stressing the importance of cutting down on salt, and a famous high blood pressure specialist, Dr. Edward D. Freis of Washington, D.C. suggests that in order to reduce sodium consumption people should avoid processed foods as much as possible. "Even some frozen vegetables have sodium added," Dr. Freis and his co-author, Gina Bari Kolata write in their The High Blood Pressure Book. "It is safest to buy fresh vegetables and fruits, as well as fresh, rather than canned meats and fish, they suggest. "You should also avoid lunch meats and processed cheeses or cheese spreads, because these foods are high in sodium." Reducing sodium consumption may require a change in eating habits, but the authors state that it need not be a painful change. In general they suggest people stop adding salt to food and restrict intake of very salty foods.

Although most of us suspect pretzels or potato chips, foods such as pastries, cat-sup, packaged breakfast cereals, cheese, and ice cream may also contain a great deal of sodium.

Consumer groups, government agencies and industry are currently cooperating in efforts to encourage companies to list sodium content on packages of food and medications, and many are already co-operating. Some companies such as Ayerst Laboratories were already formulating products to contain very little salt. The antacid Riopan and Riopan Plus contains no more than 0.3 mg per teaspoon or tablet which is a fraction of what other popular antacids contain.

The taste of salt is an acquired one and can be unlearned, according to the authors. Other spices can be used and a little lemon juice may help keep food from tasting flat.

Robin Hood of story-book fame was the inspiration for this sprightly short bootie on a flat heel. In soft split suede, it's worn with a rolldown cuff or straight up with no cuff. A perfect partner with skirts or pants, it's one of the boot bounty at BURT'S Shoe Stores.
