Six years in the making: August Wilson's Joe Turner's Come and Gone The Full Production Comes to Life in February

This spring, a six-year partnership between Broadway Center for the Performing Arts, Northwest Playwrights Alliance, The Conversation, and Washington State History Museum will culminate in a full-scale production of August Wilson's Joe Turner's Come and Gone. Under the guidance of Director C. Rosalind Bell, an entirely local cast will perform seven performances from February 8 to 23. Tickets are on sale now at www.BroadwayCenter.org.

Set in 1911, the play centers on the happenings in a Pittsburgh boarding house. Owners Seth and Bertha Holly play host to a makeshift family of guests during the "Great Migration" of the early twentieth century when descendants of former slaves moved North in large numbers in search of new jobs, lives, and beginnings. A testament to the indefatigable nature of the human spirit, the story of Joe Turner's Come and Gone is one of triumph, sorrow, and unyielding hope.
