The Medium, TTC Win National Awards --- Again!

The National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) has awarded Tiloben Publishing Company, which publishes The Medium and Tacoma True Citizen Newspapers, two national awards for excellence in journalism.

A first place merit award for top news story in the country went to the Tacoma True Citizen (The Medium's sister publication). The story was co-authored by Chris Bennett, publisher of both papers, and Connie Bennett Cameron, managing editor of both papers. Bennett is also president of Tiloben Publishing Company.

The other award was given to The Medium for "Best Typography and Make-up" (layout). Typography consists of everything from selection of news articles, headline-writing, advertisements and typesetting, to screening of pictures, graphics and printing. Alberta Anderson is layout specialist for both papers.

The awards were presented at the NNPA's 41st Annual Convention in New Orleans, Louisiana June 24-27. The story dealt with a series of articles about the choking death of a 36-year-old Black inmate in the King County jail last fall. It appeared in both papers, but was submitted under the Tacoma entries.

The Medium has won several awards for top news stories in the country through the years, as well as awards for excellence in journalism for "Best Original Advertising" and others. W. Larry Williams is advertising director of the papers. He and Publisher Bennett attended this year's convention, and stated Williams, "It was the best yet. It was very informative. We all learned a lot by exchanging ideas."

Also at the convention, Publisher Bennett was elected to the NNPA's Board of Directors for a three-year term. He is one of the youngest publishers ever to serve on the distinguished board.

The NNPA consists of over 300 newspapers and magazines from across the country, including JET and Ebony.

Protestors Attend "Funeral" For Out-Foxed KYAC

Eddie Rye, Jr., center, addresses crowd at last Thursday's "funeral services" for KYAC Radio. Demonstrators were out in full force to protest the lack of Black oriented radio and the lack of public service programs in Seattle. Additional scenes from the rally are on Page 11A, as well as responses to The Medium Wants To Know which dealt with the lack of Black radio here.

by CONNIE CAMERON

The Medium and its sister newspaper, the True Citizen in Tacoma, have been bombarded with calls about the now defunct KYAC. Most simply want to know — what happened?

Many of the calls have been directed at the KYAC replacement station, KFOX, which swept most of Black Seattle by surprise with its "soul-less" programming format aimed at a broader 25-to-44-year-old audience.

These are some of the things that has the community upset: The gospel music has been cut from its four-hour prime-time slot of 6 — 10 on Sunday mornings, to a 90-minute slot from 6 — 7:30 on Sunday mornings.

The live church services also heard on Sunday mornings from Mount Zion Baptist Church, have been moved to 10:30 Sunday nights. Public service programs, including the Sunday evening talk show, have been clipped. So has the Black news network.

There's also growing concern of KFOX's music format, which many say, leaves a lot to be desired. The music doesn't cater to any particular audience. It's well-mixed with oldie-goldies, a little soul, and yes, even country-western — the whole gamut. The music is taped and played back-to-back.

Voices are seldom heard, other than during news announcements from United Press International, an occasional mention of the time, and a few commercials mostly about "The Fox."

But while there are numerous complaints about not being able to get through to the station to complain or to hear that a number for a request line has been disconnected, some are concerned that the community can't be all that upset. One caller asked if there was true, down-to-business gut concern about the station, or was it just a bunch of rabble-rousers who want to hear only soul music to "shuffle their feet to," or others who were in it for their own personal use.

To answer that question, a huge group of demonstrators showed up for "funeral services" for KYAC last Thursday to show strong community support. Father O. J. McGowan of Seattle University presided at the demonstration, which was staged outside the offices of KFOX at Third and University.

The large, but orderly group followed a "funeral march" equipped with a mock casket from Evergreen Funeral Home. Elbowed Out, a local singing group, acted as pallbearers.

Group organizers said the purpose of the demonstration was, among other things, to draw attention for the need for Black radio in Seattle, which they claim, "was born in 1964, and died on May 16, 1981.

"We're tired of the tapes. We miss the voices and we're tired of that disgusting music," stated one angry demonstrator.

An elderly protestor wiped sweat from her brows as she nervously perused the crowd "looking for my people."

"A bunch of us who are still able to get around decided to come down and show our support. We have friends who are sick. Some are bed and wheelchair bound. We want the gospel music and sermon back on at a decent time, like they used to be," she said.

There were several of those types of conversations at the demonstration. But one of the most interesting was that "KYAC had been outfoxed. And the negative image of a fox — the sly, the slick, the wicked — seems to be well-lived up to."

What is KFOX's commitment to this community --- if there is one? What does the FCC have to say about the situation? Were all the legal procedures followed in the sale of the station?

Who is the mysterious Lloyd Edwards, the Black banker from California's Bay area, and the president of North Star Broadcasters, Inc. who bought the station for $1.5 million from a bankruptcy court last May?

(Mr. Edwards has been unavailable for comment.)

The answers to these and other questions will appear in upcoming editions of The Medium. Meanwhile, as it stands now, KFOX is like any other station --- it can play what it wants to and program the station the way it wants to. It does not have to cater to any person or group --- other than its advertisers. And station officials have bluntly stated that there are not enough Blacks here to support its potential advertisers who, of course, spend the money and keep the station going.

Rev. Patricia Hunter: A New Image For Seattle

by GILLIE HAYNES

Career areas once dominated by men are now being shared with their female counterparts. Over the years, society almost never allowed women to portray any role, other than the shadow of her mate.

Highly skilled and intelligent women are no longer walking in the shadows but are creating and maintaining their own images, despite society's verbal rejections.

Rev. Patricia L. Hunter. ordained into the Christian ministry, June 7, at Mt. Zion Baptist Church, will serve as assistant minister to Rev. Dr. Samuel B. McKinney, pastor of Mt. Zion, beginning July 1.

Rev. Hunter, the daughter of Deacon Julian Hunter and Deaconess Ernestine Hunter, was baptized at Mt. Zion and was actively involved in many church activities, including the choir, youth department and young adult activities.

A 1978 business administration graduate of Seattle University with an emphasis in management, Rev. Hunter wanted to get into an occupation dealing with the management of banking.

She decided in November, 1977, to attend Divinity School and with encouragement from a friend, she enrolled at Colgate Rochester-Bexley Hall-Crozer Theological Seminaries in Rochester, New York where she received her Master of Divinity Degree in May, 1981.

Rev. Hunter's ordination was approved and recommended by the Ordination Council of the American Baptist Churches of the North Puget Sound area.

REV. PATRICIA HUNTER

"I'm looking forward to working at Mt. Zion with Rev. McKinney and Assistant Minister Rev. Frank Byrdwell, although we haven't gotten together yet to figure out what will be the duties of each person," stated Rev. Hunter.

"I'm glad to be starting at Mt. Zion," she continued, "It's a real opportunity for me to learn a lot. I may even decide to go back to school and get a degree in Black Church History."

Rev. Hunter stated she is grateful to the church and her family who were extremely supportive of her.

"I was fortunate to have this kind of backing, because a lot of Black women at the seminary didn't have the backing of their family or their church and they were having a rough time," she said.

Rev. Hunter attended Tyee High School in the Highline school district. She is single and has two sisters, Teressa who works for the city and Cynthia, a student at the University of Washington. Rev. Hunter's pasttime activities include singing, guitar playing, racketball, cooking and traveling.

Since returning to Seattle. Rev. Hunter says she has received a great deal of attention and many interviews.

"Everything is so new to me," stated Rev. Hunter, "I'm not so sure what I'm supposed to be doing, because there aren't a lot of Black women ministers in the area to serve as role models. But I really enjoy being a woman."

She continued, "There are ministers in this city that accept me as a minister and they have been extremely supportive. There are others that aren't sure if they like women in the ministry and they seem to have problems with my ordination, but I'll just continue doing what I've got to do."

Judge Killien Announces Campaign Kickoff

The campaign to retain Judge Phil Killien on the Seattle District Court bench began with an "important and well received" mailing to the King County Bar Association. The campaign announcement letter included an extensive list of leading lawyers and retired judges who made early endorsements in the effort to retain Judge Killien.

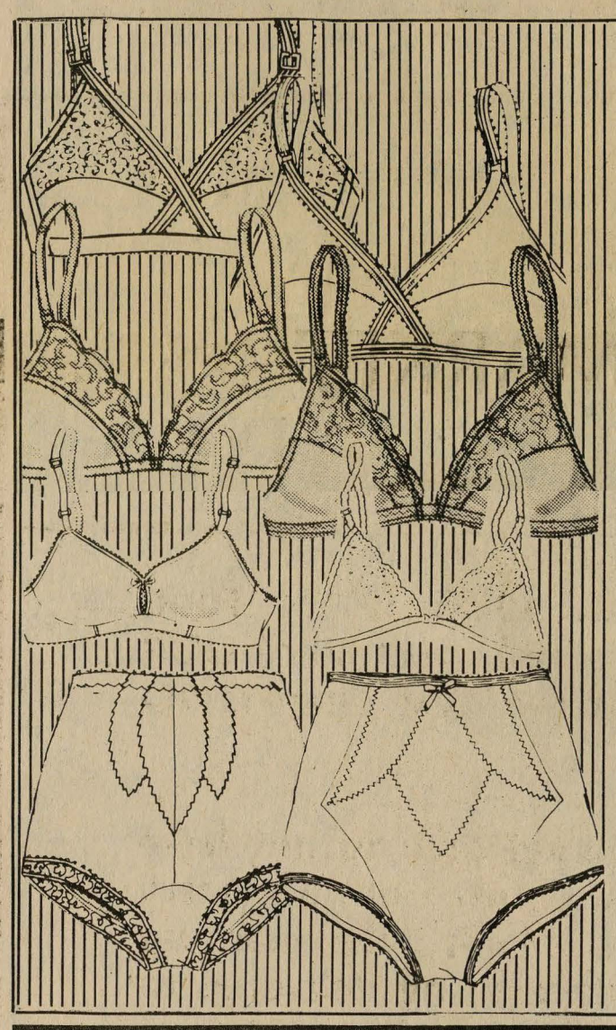

Judge Killien, 37, has been a member of the Bar for more than 12 years. Born and raised in Seattle, he attended the University of Washington where he received his law degree, as well as a Bachelor of Arts in history. He also earned a noteworthy reputation in track and field.

He has been active in his first year on the bench, serving as Chairman of the Special Inquest Procedure Committee and as a member of the Judicial Committee working on King County Jail Policy.

Prior to his appointment as District Court Judge, Phil was a Senior King County Prosecutor for more than ten years. In his capacity as a Senior Prosecutor, he was actively involved in a reform of the laws concerning accident investigations. He was also a key member of the Seattle Arson Task Force which won national recognition as a model project.

He and his wife Marcia, a graduate student in nursing, reside in View Ridge.

Ideas That Work For Cities At CityFair, July 3-12, Seattle Center

While there'll be parades in New York, barbeques in Atlanta, and rodeos in Omaha, Seattle will greet the 4th of July with a new tradition appropriate for the 1980's — CityFair.

Slated for July 3-12 at the Seattle Center, CityFair celebrates innovative ideas for better urban living in the areas of Energy, Food, Health and the Environment. CityFair's many exhibits, workshops and commercial products demonstrate how people can take matters into their own hands to improve the quality of city life.

"What I like about the project is the philosophy beneath it: that we can do things for ourselves," observes Ann Carlson, chairwoman of the CityFair executive committee. "It's the best spirit of citizen activism."

This year CityFair assembles some 50 exhibits that highlight community projects from the Puget Sound area and across the country. Each project stresses low costs and self-reliance to solve urban problems.

For example, the Northend Housing Rehabilitation Co-op neighbors together to refurbish each other's homes as they share tools, knowledge and time on the job. The Wallingford Wellness Project aims at maintaining good health among the elderly through preventive measures integrating physical, mental and environmental awareness.

The Western Sun Solar Design Winners show how solar technologies can be adapted to new or remodeled homes for a moderate price. The Boeing Company demonstrates how it heats the largest building in the world by burning its garbage. These are just a few of CityFair's ideas, along with neighborhood gardens, crime prevention block watches, homesharing for seniors, and much more.

CityFair also introduces the Pacific Northwest to citizen-action projects from all parts of the United States. Exhibits will show how the entire city of Davis, California, reduced its energy use by 35%; how the elderly poor, youth offenders and the handicapped operate a solar greenhouse in Cheyenne, Wyoming; how private citizens in the South Bronx, New York, are working with an insurance company to reclaim their neighborhood from urban blight.

Each exhibit is the work of volunteer designers working under the overall direction of Seattle designer David Strong, who has created the CityFair superstructure and this year's central theme exhibit. U.S. Navy SeaBees, from Reserve Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 18, will build CityFair in the Seattle Center Exhibition Hall. CityFair exhibits will include computers, video, informative displays, and art, all designed to involve visitors actively in the fair.

Along with exhibits, CityFair offers almost 150 workshops over the course of the exposition. The workshops consist of practical, "hands-on" instruction on subjects ranging from Stress Management to How to Avoid Consumer Rip-offs.

A new aspect of this year's event is the CityFair Trade Fair, a trade fair that marches to the tune of grass roots self-sufficiency. Staged at the Flag Pavilion, the Trade Fair features commercial products that help people help themselves, reduce the cost of living, and enjoy life more. Trade Fair visitors will see do-it-yourself aircraft, electric cars, toys, tools, kites, kits, boots and books. 90-100 businesses will participate in the Trade Fair.

In the spirit of a county fair, CityFair offers ten days filled with fun and entertainment, too. Concerts, dance, theatre, mime troupes, sports, games, a city-wide relay race, and an electric car rally are among the scheduled highlights that run non-stop from the opening ceremony to closing time on the Center Stage in the Exhibition Hall and around the Seattle Center grounds.

CityFair represents a great volunteer effort of individuals and local groups working together to stage a civic event. Some 2,000 volunteers — carpenters, artists, actors, ticket takers, broadcasters, cooks, bankers, shopkeepers, lawyers, on and on — have contributed their talents to CityFair.

Central Area Housing Alliance At First AME Church

The First AME Social Concerns Committee will host another exciting forum on Wednesday, July 1 at 7:30 p.m. Central Area housing is this week's topic.

The Central Area Housing Alliance will be the featured group, and Horace Foxall, program chairman, commented, "Displacement has been a hot issue for some time, and we feel that we should look at this issue in a form that not only discusses the problems, but proposes some realistic solutions.

"We know that we cannot solve all of the problems, associated with housing, its a long process, but it's important to continue the dialogue until we put together the right combinations."

The specific topic will be "The Housing Crisis: Problem with no solution?". A 25-minute slide presentation will be featured on the conversion of inner-city neighborhoods (largely minority and low-income) into middle and upper-middle class communities (largely white), a practice known as "gentrification".

Two aspects of gentrification in the Central Area will be addressed: the rapid conversion of the community from largely single-family units to condominiums and luxury apartments; and the phenomenon of a comparatively large amount of vacant urban renewal land in the neighborhood, which is slowly being sold off to private developers.

Leroy McCullough, Concerns Committee Chairman, also mentioned, "What's happening to the Central Area in Housing isn't as obvious as something like police brutality, but the affects of it has an enormous impact on where and how Blacks and other displaced people live. We must begin to be astute enough to recognize all of the various forces that can destroy a community, whether subtle or blatant."

First AME is located at 1522 14th Ave. The meeting will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m.

ASK WENDY

I would like to volunteer in a women's programs office. Where can I locate one that needs me? (K.C., Shoreline)

United Way has a Volunteer Bureau with listings for agencies throughout the county. There is a Volunteer Bureau in the Lowman building in Downtown Seattle and one in the Good Neighbor Center in Renton.

You might call the Shoreline Community College Women's Center to find out what programs are offered in your area and where the various women's service offices are located. Sometimes there are programs for women offered through the YMCA. The Shoreline YMCA provides child care services.

There is a YWCA located near Northgate, and a Senior Center in Lake City. The services of capable volunteers are always needed. It may take you a while to find just the right place for your work, but it will be worth it.

With the economy in flux, finding jobs has been hard for everyone in the past few months. Women, especially, may find barriers to their own employment. A recent report on the State's Displaced Homemaker Program included interviews with 500 of the women in the project.

The following nine barriers were noted by a majority of those questioned: (1). lack of vocational training; (2). lack of awareness of the woman's own marketable skills; (3). lack of a clear employment goal; (4). lack of knowledge on how to go about looking for a job; (5). lack of knowledge of resources available; (6). lack of self confidence; (7). lack of recent paid work experience; (8). lack of formal educational; and (9). lack of funds for training.

You might consider some step by step problem solving in your efforts to find work. First, begin reading the jobs listed in the classified ads to understand where areas of high demand are and which companies are hiring. Then, read the business page in your paper to note which companies are expanding. Use local Chambers of Commerce for listings of successful corporations. Make a list of all of your friends, where they work, and ask each of them for contact names.

Keep a card file for each individual person you see.

Look at retraining in technical areas such as drafting, computers, or accounting. Try to get a contact name from each person you see. Use the Yellow Pages to get names of industries in particular business areas. Think of your talents and skills in the broadest areas possible. For instance, if you have been trained as a social worker, you might be a good sales person.

Think of corporations as small cities where there are print shops, cafeterias, media centers, in-house publications, managers, production people, custodians, and marketing types.

If you have a question for Ask Wendy, write to King County Office of Women's Programs, 420 Smith Tower, Seattle, WA. 98104.

Oil And Gas Heated Homes

The Urban Development Action Grant Loan (UDAG) is a low-interest loan to finance home insulation, caulking and weatherstripping. The loan is available to both homeowners and landlords with tenants who meet certain home requirements.

The income requirements are: for a household of 1, an annual income between $5,388 and $12,000; for a two-person household, you must have an annual income between $7,113 and $14,550; a four-person household must earn between $10,563 and $18,150 per year. (The larger or smaller your family, the higher or lower your income range can be.)

The terms of the UDAG loan are particularly attractive. After your loan amount for weatherization improvements has been determined, you receive a 15% cash rebate and pay the balance off within 5 years at 11% interest. The cash rebate in effect lowers your interest rate to 4.2%!

To find out more about the electric, gas or oil weatherization program, call either 324-0500 or 625-3800.

Storing Extra Gasoline At Home Not Wise

The extra gallon or two of gasoline stored in your garage or car trunk is an invitation for trouble, says Joanne Ross, Washington State University's Pierce County Extension agent.

Most containers used for gasoline don't seal very tightly. Even in an upright position, the gas cans leak explosively flammable vapors. Trapped in an enclosed space, vapors need only a small spark to set off a tremendous explosion.

Storing gasoline in the car trunk has even more hazards, Joanne says. A hard turn or stop will make the can tip over; gasoline can spill out. Liquid gas turns to vapor very quickly; it can soon fill the trunk compartment and even the passenger area. Again, only one small spark is all you need for an explosion.

If you must store gasoline, keep it in a cool, dry spot, away from direct sunlight. Also, be sure there is plenty of ventilation so vapors can't accumulate. You may need to build a small, locked, well-ventilated special shed for flammable materials.

The current gas shortage means lines at the pumps, uncertain supplies, and rapidly rising prices. It is tempting to try to beat the shortage by storing some extra gas. Don't do it, Joanne says. The saving of time and money won't mean much if the gas explodes.

Who Gets Those Housing Subsidies?

by VERNON E. JORDAN, JR.

High on the list of the budget cutters are housing subsidies for the poor. Washington seems to be walking away from the unmet housing needs of low income families just when those needs are mounting.

It is estimated that some mix million households live in seriously substandard housing--leaky roofs, hazardous electrical wiring, and faulty floors and walls. A third of those are minorities, and over half live in metropolitan areas. Four out of five families living in substandard units are eligible for federal housing aid.

Many others living in standard housing are paying more than they can afford for rent or for mortgage payments. Many face the cruel choice of paying the landlord or skipping meals.

The poor pay more and the poorest pay the most. Millions of poor families pay over half their income for shelter.

All of this takes place in the face of a long-standing national commitment to produce 600,000 housing units annually for low income families. But only once has that goal been met -- in 1976. The Administration's current budget would provide only a third of the annual goal.

Housing is a basic necessity, like food and health care. A humane society has the responsibility to assure that the basics of life are available to all. That is the rationale for federal housing programs. And the failure to meet the housing needs of the poor underscores the need for more, not less federal housing aid.

Many will object that the government already spends billions on such housing aid. True enough. But what it spends is not enough to meet the needs for adequate shelter. And it spends far more on housing subsidies to the non-poor.

Those subsidies to the well-off are neglected in the debate on housing policy, but they are real and they are massive. They are buried, however, since they are not spending items but revenue losses that don't show up in the budget.

Homeowners can deduct local taxes and mortgage interest payments from their tax bill. The cost of this subsidy amounts to about $30 billion, and is expected to reach almost $80 billion by 1986. Most of the huge subsidy goes to the affluent; the top ten percent of taxpayers get the lion's share.

They differ from low-income subsidies in another important way too: howeowner deductions are entitlements taken by all who qualify; low-income housing subsidies only go to one out of ten families who qualify.

It's hard to understand the attacks on low income housing programs based on so-called budgetary restraints. If you add up the total cost of all of those programs, going back to their beginnings in the 1930s and continuing to the present, they amount to less than the cost of housing-related tax expenditures on homeowners in 1980 alone.

Those tax breaks are also fueling the high inflation in today's housing market. Affluent people use them to shelter income from taxation, and so there is a flurry of home-buying and condominium conversion, driving up housing costs.

The nation's housing needs would be better served by putting a cap on the growth of homeowner deductions, either through a limit on how much an individual could deduct, or conversion of the deductions to a tax credit.

Such a move would benefit low and middle income families while stemming the unrestrained loss of federal revenues from the few who can benefit from the present system.

At the same time, funds would be available for a renewed effort to decently house America's poor, many of whom now are forced to live in substandard housing conditions.

A Way To Cut Mortgage Interest Charges In Half

by WILLIAM R. MORRIS

It's not generally known but there's a way to cut mortgage interest payments in half, or as much as you like, just by following a simple procedure that's neither illegal nor immoral. Despite the record high mortgage rates of the last year, home buyers need not be burdened for 20 or 25 years with 14-16 percent interest payments on their home loans.

During the early years of a loan, the major portion of each monthly payment goes toward interest, with very little applied to reducing the principal balance of the mortgage. You can pay off a mortgage twice as fast by doubling up on that part of the monthly payment applied to the loan's principal. For example, with a 30 year, $50,000 mortgage carrying an interest rate of 13 percent, the monthly payment to principal and interest is $553.10, an amount that remains constant over the life of the loan. In the first monthly payment, $541.67 is interest. Only $11.43 is applied to the principal. It is not until the 24th year of the loan that the payment to principal exceeds the interest payment. Over the life of the mortgage, the borrower will have paid $149,115,82 in interest (that's right!).

If, however, along with the first monthly payment the borrower also paid the $11.56 due on the principal for the second month, he/she would accomplish two things: shorten the loan by a month and save $541.54 in interest! If, to the next monthly payment of $553.10, the borrower adds the $11.81 due on the principal for the following month, it will eliminate that month's interest payment of $541.29. Continuing that process for six months, the borrower will have reduced the mortgage to the same balance had 12 regular monthly payments been made. And in the process, the interest payments due with every other payment that year would be saved.

Applying this pre-payment method over the life of the loan, the borrower would pay off the loan in just 15 years and save $74,424.25 in interest. You're not limited to paying one month's additional principal at a time. You can pay for any number of months and cut the interest charges accordingly. This will not be difficult to do in the earlier years and even if you should decide to discontinue prepayments at some point and resume only the regular payments, you'll have saved thousands in interest charges. Lenders which made loans when rates were extremely high won't be too happy to have borrowers prepay their mortgages.

If you should decide to proceed, you'll need an amortization schedule for your particular loan. If your lender didn't give you one, they can be ordered from financial publishing companies for less than $5.00. They're free, upon request, from the Federal Housing Administration and Veteran's Administration -if they insured or guaranteed your loan.

Once you make a prepayment, remember that it does not eliminate the need to make your regular payments each month. You cannot skip a month. And always advise your lender of the breakdown of each monthly prepayment of loan principal. Some lenders will be happy to accommodate you, some will be unfamiliar with the prepayment strategy, and others will try to play dumb. Those who don't want to cooperate may try to charge a prepayment penalty. Such penalties are illegal in some states and FHA or VA loans can be paid off at any time without a penalty.

So, if the mortgage on your home is less than 10 or 12 years old and you want to cut-down on the interest you are paying, it may pay you to take a second look at your amoritization schedule. If you can afford to prepay the amount allocated to principal every now and then it could save you quite a sum of hard-earned money and accelerate the build-up of equity in your home. For each monthly prepayment you speed up the date for a debt-free home.

Cutting economic ties

By Julian Bond

In 1960, U.S. corporate investment in South Africa totaled $286 million. Last year, U.S. investment in the apartheid state topped $2 billion, making the United States the second largest investor in South Africa after Great Britain.

American dollars are fueling a South African economy in which 4.5 million whites dominate nearly 20 million blacks, Asians and "coloreds" of mixed races.

Black South Africans are foreigners in their own land. They are prohibited from voting, owning property or deciding where they will work, live or die. They are allowed in "white areas" only to perform menial tasks.

Those "white areas" encompass 87 percent of the land and include all major cities and industrial areas. The black majority is restricted to 13 percent of the land.

The average monthly wage for a white miner in South Africa is $727. The average wage for a black miner is $103.

The infant-mortality rate is 25 times greater for blacks than for whites. More than half of all black children born in South Africa die before their fifth birthdays.

More than 300 U.S. companies now operate in South Africa, and U.S. banks have recently tendered more than $2.2 billion in loans.

When the U.S. Chamber of Commerce opened a branch office in Johannesburg, South Africa, in 1977, the president of the organization's international division argued that the business community could disagree with the wishes of politicians and trade with whomever it chose.

But that premise is being tested by the growing coalition of U.S. trade unionists, local officials, anti-apartheid activists and church groups that has stepped up its campaign to halt the flow of American money into the South African economy.

In the past several years, colleges and universities have divested more than $50 million dollars from corporations that support apartheid. On more than two dozen college campuses, student groups have pressured trustees to divest and to offer educational programs aimed at building an anti-apartheid constituency.

The AFL-CIO, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, the United Auto Workers and other unions have withdrawn support from banks that make loans to South Africa or have divested pension funds from that country's corporate collaborators.

The United Methodist Church, the American Friends Service Committee, the Reformed Church of America and the majority of the Lutheran Church's regional districts have voted to use their funds to protest South African racism.

State and local governments have required the divestiture of more than $125 million. Pending actions could push this total to $300 million.

Political entities — including Berkeley, Calif.; Gary, Ind.; and the state of Nebraska — have passed bills and ordinances to break economic ties with South Africa. In Seattle, a coalition of unions and civic and social organizations has pressured local banks to refuse loans to South Africa.

"I'd much rather lose business with Nebraska than with South Africa," said David Packard, the chairman of Hewlett-Packard. But Nebraska's may not be the only business that his company and others like it will lose if they continue to support South African racism.

The Psychological Dynamics of Racism: Part I

by DR. CHARLES W. FAULKNER

One of the questions that Black people ask most often is, "Why are white people so cruel to me when I have done nothing to hurt them?" Failure to find a readily available answer to this question has caused more neurosis and hypertension in the Black community than any other factor.

My next four columns will focus on the psychological issues surrounding this question. In order to understand the dynamics of racism you must understand the psychological structure of yourself, the nature of the problem of racism, the future prospects for elimination of the problem and a method that you can use to cope with the problem of racism.

Black people fulfill a very important pscyhological need for white people. Black people allow white people to maintain a sense of pride and self-respect--even when they are in the depth of depression and are suffering the greatest attack upon their pride. Whites can always rely upon the feeling of psychological comfort that they receive when they compare themselves to Blacks.

They may not be as good as a white businessman. They may not be as intelligent as a white college graduate. They may not be as clean as a meticulous white scretary. But, they are always more competent, more intelligent and cleaner than any Black person-- at least in their minds. This gives them a feeling of pride that would, otherwise, not exist.

Without the existence of Black people, it has been said, many white people would develop acute neurosis because of the depression that would result from the absence of self-esteem and the need for a basis for personal pride.

Blacks occupy the bottom rung in society because of the psychological need that whites have which is deeply ingrained, traditional and found in every institution of Western society. Blacks are the psychological "whipping boy" for this reason. Several important implications flow from this fact:

1. Most whites react rudely to Blacks in an almost instinctive manner.

2. Whites are often unaware of the psychological reasons for their own behavior. Their behavior is almost automatic. In many cases, whites react discourteously to Blacks because it makes them feel good and allows them an opportunity to release stress that would not have been otherwise released.

It is similar to the disregard that one gives to a pet animal when discussing important business. Blacks are considered insignificant: "who cares what they hear, they are not intelligent enough to understand it, so let's just forget that they exist."

3. Blacks have been accorded such an inferior role in every aspect of society -- radio, television, education, jobs--that many even believe themselves to be inferior to whites. This feeling of inferiority or self-hatred is a conditioned, subconscious, habituated, deeply-ingrained response.

Blacks have been "psyched" into regarding themselves as inferior and, because skin color is the basis for this determination, they regard other Blacks as inferior, also. Thus, Blacks are treated rudely by whites, foreigners and even each other.

HAPPINESS THROUGH HEALTH

Weight Control Affects Diabetes

by OTTO McCLARRIN

If you're still searching for motivation to rid yourself of fat and flab, consider what "Off Diabetes Pills" has to say. Published by Public Citizen's Health Research Group, this book is more than an eye-opening expose of unsafe medicines. It also tells why and how weight control prevents as well as treats the symptoms of diabetes that develops in adults.

Diabetes is no minor illness. It is believed that more than 10 million Americans now have it (half of them unaware that they do) and that the number afflicted may double in the next 15 years. What's more, diabetes kills about 300,000 people each year, making it the third leading cause of death in this country.

In many cases, what kills is not the ailment itself but its complications which include kidney disease, heart attack and stroke.

The book focuses specifically on the overweight adults who comprise the vast majority of diabetics. (A small number are children and normal weight adults; both groups require insulin injections).

Apparently the latest scientific knowledge holds that overeating triggers the disease in mature people having a hereditary tendency to it. They may or may not develop symptoms of dry mouth, excessive drinking and urinating, or occasional dizziness.

What happens in their bodies is a breakdown in the mechanism by which insulin, a hormone secreted by the pancreas, helps sugar (glucose) reach the cells where it's needed for fuel. Too much sugar accumulates in the blood, a condition called hyperglycemia, and there is often too much insulin as well. As a result, the person overeats. Overeating, in turn, reduces the number of cell receptors where insulin takes effect, thus making the cells less capable of responding to the hormone. When the person starts to eat less, the insulin receptors return to normal and the hormone is then able to do its job.

As the book explains, "The effects of obesity on glucose metabolism is not due to the excess fat but to the overeating needed to maintain the obese state."

Nevertheless, many physicians have been prescribing oral medicines. These may increase the risk of heart and blood vessel disorders and worsen the diabetes by ignoring the basic problem of obesity. One such drug, phenformin (DBI, Meltrol), was banned by the Food and Drug Administration in 1977.

Four others - tolazamide (Tolinase), chlorpropamide (Diabinese), acetohexamide (Dymelor) and tolbutamide (Orinase) -- are being taken by 1.75 million patients, most of whom only require dietary controls, according to "Off Diabetes Pills."

When physicians do rely on reducing diets as the treatment for diabetes, many sufferers go off insulin as well as oral medications. Since calorie counting is a must for almost everyone, here's how to calculate your needs:

First, determine how much you should weigh. A woman of medium build should allow 100 pounds for the first five feet of height and five pounds for each additional inch. Subtract 10 percent of the total for a small frame; add 10 percent for a large frame. A man should allow 106 pounds for the first five feet and six pounds for each additional inch, also subtracting 10 percent of the total for a small frame and adding 10 percent for a large one.

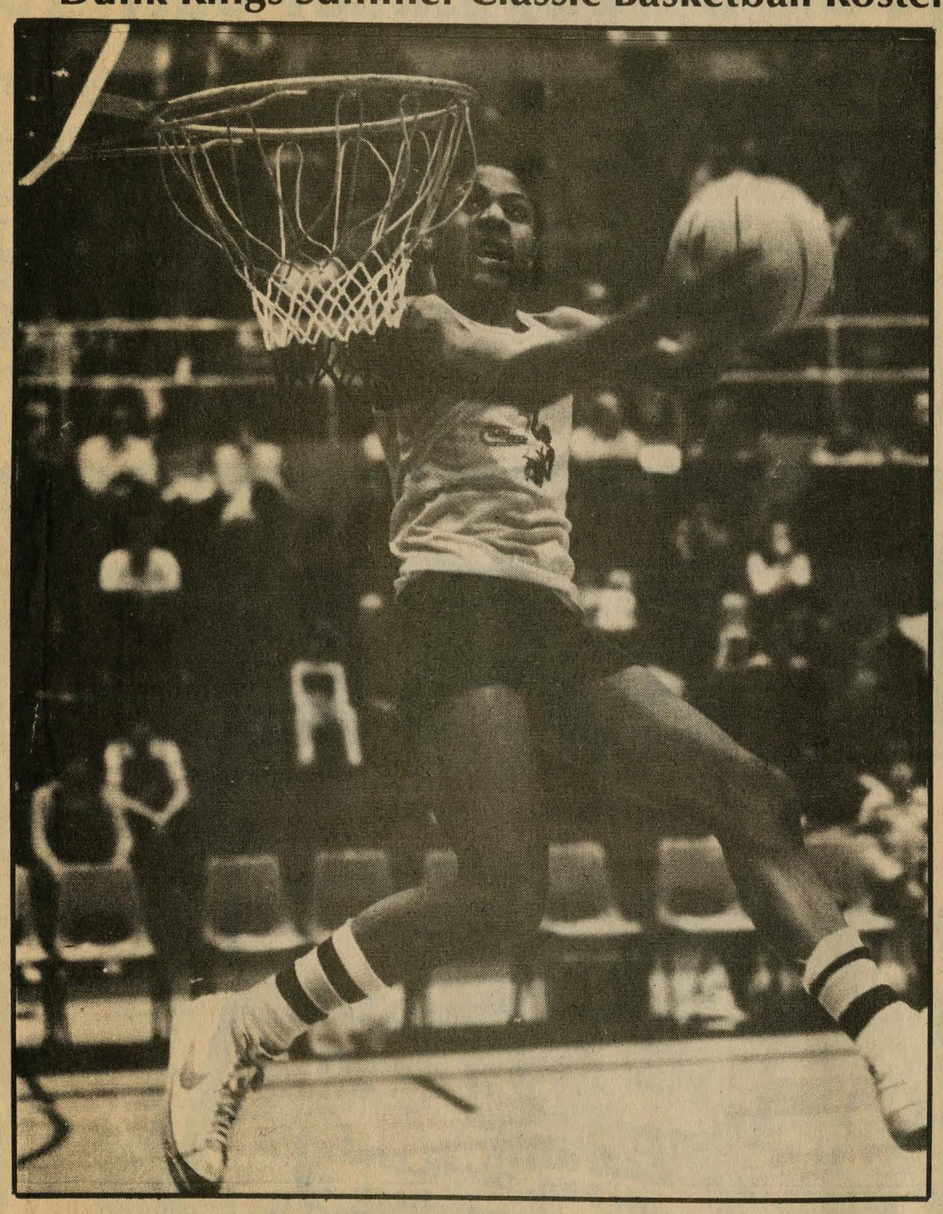

Second, figure out how much to eat to maintain that ideal. Your so-called basal requirements (what you would need if you didn't move around at all) are 10 calories for each pound of ideal weight. (For a 130-pound woman, the basal requirements are 1300 calories). A sedentary person then adds 30 percent; a moderately active person adds 50 percent and someone who engages in strenuous work or sports adds 100 percent. A 130-pound woman would need either 1690, 2535 or 3380 calories.

Now, if you want to lose weight, subtract 500 calories a day (35) calories a week) and you'll shed one pound a week.

Dunk Kings Summer Classic Basketball Roster Selections

Twelve players from Washington and Oregon were selected for the Dunk Kings Summer Classic Tour Aug. 1-15 to the Midwest and East Coast. David Barton, Assistant Coach at Philander Smith College in Arkansas will coach the team.

The Dunk Kings will travel east by train and play a schedule of 20 games against some of the finest teams and players in Chicago, Philadelphia, New York City, New Jersey, Delaware and Washington, D.C.

A strong guard corps is the heart of the three guard offense the Dunk Kings plan to use a lot. Brad Evenson 6-0 of Bremerton High is the teams best guard all-around.

Ulf Spears 6-6 sophomore starter on Benson Tech, Oregon State Champs, has two years varsity experience at guard but can easily swing to forward with great rebounding ability.

Keith Cooper, a 6-4 Morton High junior has three years varsity experience and will be making his third straight summer tour with the Dunk Kings. Cooper repeatedly drew raves for his playing last summer on the east coast.

Other guards are 6-3 Glenn Stump of Stevenson and 6-0 Chuck Frost good freshman prospect from Morton High. Stump averaged better than 31 pts and was the states number two scorer at Class A Stevenson High. Joe Joe Buchanan 6-3 O'Dea standout is also on the roster.

In the frontcourt the Dunk Kings are led by two centers from Garfield High in 6-7 junior Morrow Day and 6-8 Frank Wilson a sophomore this past season.

Frank will join the team a few days late but has promised inspired ball the rest of the way and says he could thrive on good eastern competition.

Day is originally from Washington, D.C. and is expected to play well, especially against his old teammates at D.C. powerhouse Dunbar High.

International Little League

The championship playoffs of the International Little League will take place this Saturday (July 2nd) between 10:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at Garfield Playfield. The title game will be between the Frontiersmen and the Pirates who sport 11-1-1 and 12-1 records respectively.

The Frontiersmen have rode the season behind unbeaten hurlers Roy Busch and Kelly Jefferson and the clutch hitting of Shaun Hagler and Ben Hattrup. Eight of the Frontiersmen starters are hitting .300 or better.

The Pirates also have a pair of unbeaten aces in Jody Buckner and Jeff Walker. Walker has posted a 0.00 ERA. Alfred "Boobie" Quinn leads the Pirates hit parade with a .475 average.

Ronald Hodge, a local schoolteacher and assistant high school football coach manages the Frontiersmen and Bob Tinsley is the Pirates veteran mentor.

Despite the weather, the season has been a success and the league welcomes support from fans at all times. After the playoffs, the league will start preparing for the District 7 Little League tournament and the West Seattle Pee Wee Invitational for ten and unders.

Mariners Set Summer Tryout Camps

Tryout camps for amateur baseball players have been set by the Seattle Mariners. Northwest Scouting Supervisor Jeff Malinoff announced that the second of four camps has been scheduled for Portland on Monday, July 6 at Skavon Field starting at 9 a.m.

Malinoff will conduct the tryout camps which include a 60-yard dash, infield and outfield workout, batting practice and intersquad game. At the end of each of the camps, some of the participants will be asked to attend an individual Camp later in the summer.

Malinoff stressed that these camps are not just for players who want to sign now. "We'd like to see high school, junior college and college players, too," he said, "It's a good chance for us to get an initial look at players so we can follow them through their school careers."

The Mariners' minor league Rookie Club in Bellingham has two players on this year's roster who were scouted out of tryout camps in 1980. Righthanded pitcher Jeff Eldridge was drafted in January of this year and signed following his Olympic Community College baseball season. Another righthander, Curt Towey, had graduated from Shoreline C.C. and was working when he attended a tryout camp last year, participated in the Invitational Camp and was signed.

All players attending a tryout camp must be 16 or 23 years of age, and should bring their own shoes and gloves. American Legion players must bring written permission from their coaches.

In addition to the tryout camp set for Monday, July 6, 9 a.m. at Skavon Field in Portland, the two remaining camps are: Seattle - Saturday, July 18, 10 a.m. at Graves Field at the University of Washington; and Spokane - Saturday, July 25, 10 a.m. at Spokane Indians Baseball Stadium.

HORSE IDENTIFICATION - A TWO-PART SAGA

Cattle rustlers are still active, particularly where large herds exist and a few animals are not so easily missed.

Once-rampant horse stealing is gradually being phased out but it still exists almost universally. The self-appointed vigilantes with convenient nearby tall trees took care of that.

A recent survey by the late Dr. R. Keith Farrell, Washington State University Veterinary Medical Officer, indicated that "20-30% of the horses registered in the United States do not match their (identification) papers." He recommended that definitive permanent identification of foals be made at a very young age, when they were still with their dams.

There are many ways a horse can be marked for future ownership identification. Their reliability has been sorely tested and has failed in many instances. Some methods are: Hot iron branding used mostly on calves at cattle roundups; ear clipping in a distinctive way used on both horses and cattle; acid branding similar to the hot iron method; hoof brands with a sharp instrument; hair whorles (hair patches) generally on the head (best for young animals), corresponds to cowlicks in humans. These can be imprinted in a mold or cast for permanence.

Others include the lip tattoo (really an indelible ink imprint on the inside of the horse's upper lip similar to a social security number - originated by the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau in 1946. This requires constant verification at every track before racing. A photo of the brand is a part of the horse's official papers. The imprints can be altered by a laser beam.

Still another method of identification is using the "chestnuts", often referred to as "night eyes". Several of these are found on the inside of the front legs but experience has shown these are too easily altered and don't match the foolproof photographs.

Another method is the implanation of an electronic device under the horse's skin and emits an identity code. This has not proven satisfactory as it is easily altered and/or removed without a trace.

Next week: "Freeze Branding". It is proving successful.

Major Change In Driver License Renewal Cycle To Take Effect July 1st

OLYMPIA--Anyone issued a driver license prior to June 30, 1981 will receive one good for two years. However, starting July 1, 1981 the Department of Licensing will begin to implement a law passed by the 1981 Legislature changing the need to renew driver licenses from once every two years to once every four years.

In order to minimize inconvenience to the motoring public, Department of Licensing Director John Gonsalez announced today that the changeover will be made in two stages:

Stage 1: If you are renewing your license on July 1 or after, and if your birthdate falls on an odd-numbered day of any month (e.g., 1st, 3rd, 5th, etc.) you pay the regular $7 fee and receive a license good for two years.

If you were born on an even-numbered day of the month (2nd, 4th, 6th, etc.) you pay $14 and will receive a license valid for four years.

All original licenses issued after July 1, 1981 will expire on the driver's fourth birthday after issuance. The first period may be less than four years.

Stage 2: In 1983, when those drivers with two-year licenses need to renew, those licenses will be good for four years.

"Once the changeover is complete," said Gonsalez, "all Washington's drivers will be spared the inconvenience of the two-year renewal, without an increase in the renewal fee." The basic seven dollar renewal fee remains the same, but instead of seven dollars for two years, drivers will pay fourteen dollars for four years.

It is anticipated that long waiting lines will be substantially reduced and overload pressures in high-volume driver license examining offices will be relieved.

The department will continue to mail drivers a customary reminder notice 60 days prior to license expiration. However, it will arrive in the form of a post card instead of the perforated form used in the past. This change is a minor detail but it will save the state over $65,000 per year.

Gonsalez concluded with a reminder that all drivers are legally required to keep their current address on file with the department. According to state law, drivers must notify the Department of Licensing within 10 days of an address change or a legal change of name.

Apartment Owners Needed For Pilot Study

Are you an apartment owner looking for low-cost ways to enhance the value of your property?

Seattle City Light is currently looking for three apartment buildings whose owners will participate in an apartment energy conservation pilot study.

The pilot study will offer zero-interest loans to owners of electrically heated apartment buildings. The loan requires no payment for the first five years and repayment in 60 equal monthly payments for the next five years.

The amount of financing offered each building will be based on an energy audit, and only energy conservation improvements determined through the audit to be cost-effective will be financed.

The apartment pilot study is a part of the city's Residential Weatherization Program, which offers homeowners no-interest and low-interest loans and free grants for conservation improvements. Owners of rental units of four units or less are also eligible for loans.

For more information on how to participate in the pilot study, apartment owners can call Judy Aranda at City Light at 625-3863.

VIVA VICTORIANA

If one were to classify the distinguishing characteristics of the Victorian era of decorating, they would include: meticulous craftsmanship, quality materials, and unusual architectural detail.

These basic components are expertly used and charmingly personified by Thomas Hills Cook in an outstanding Great Room in the current issue of Good Ideas for Decorating magazine.

Using old and new elements in a thoroughly up-to-date setting, Cook brings sweet nostalgia into an unexpected area of a contemporary home.

The Armstrong designer makes unconventional use of decorative moulding. Beyond enhancing fireplace mantles, shelf edges and wall surfaces, "vintage" moulding available in today's marketplace can work beguiling magic in a kitchen and adjoining family room.

A favorite technique of Cook's is to use material usually found on exteriors indoors, so authentic reproductions of ornate grille and medallion millwork are delightful when they appear here as interior trim.

Ornamentation works best when an integral part of the design, so Cook uses turned woodposts structurally to set off the work space from the rest of the area. Heavy carved wood spandrels support the snackbar covered in easy care laminate.

Another low maintenance, thoroughly modern, "must" in the kitchen is the Designer Solarian floor that shines without waxing far longer than ordinary vinyl no-wax floors.

Two paint colors — deep khaki and piquant orange — are used to coordinate with the English print wallpaper. The paper's geometric pattern echoes the floor's geometric design and introduces curlicues to repeat the wooden "gingerbread" in the room.

Glass-door cabinets with tightly shirred curtains and porcelain knobs are edged in the same orange paint color used on chairs. A Tiffany-style light fixture illuminates while interesting shadows are cast by the room's lacey fretwork, textured grass-cloth walls, and Goldern Era cane-back chairs.

The parlour grouping is defined with a Trustmark area rug in coral. Window shades are the same cream fabric as the sofa slipcover but stiffened with fusible shade backing and banded in orange to match the sofa trim.

Finishing touches in this sentimental room are represented in open cupboards and subtle accessories, e.g. family portraits in gilt frames, terra cotta pots of flowers, and slick enamelware.

Decorating in the mood of Victoriana is increasing, rather than diminishing in the 1980s — almost a hundred years later.

Strawberries Galore!

For the next two weeks, you can enjoy an abundant supply of fresh local strawberries. Compared to California berries, which have been in the grocery stores until now, local strawberries are unbeatable for sweetness and juiciness.

After wet, cold weather delayed the harvest and caused some berries to rot, there are lots of ripe strawberries available in King, Snohomish and Skagit counties.

Picking your own berries will save you about half the store price. "U-Pick" farms are listed in the 1981 Farm Guide available free at libraries and the Inner City Farmers Market at 24th and Yesler (Sats. 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. and Weds. 2-6 p.m.).

Call the Produce Hotline, 344-7988 for an up-date on local fruits and vegetables in seasons.

Seattleite to Attend Harvard

by GILLIE HAYNES

Beatrice Sampong recently graduated from Lakeside High School. A lot of students just graduated from high school, so what makes Beatrice Sampong so different.

Beatrice has been accepted to attend Harvard University in the fall. She hasn't decided what she will major in yet, but her interests are business administration and social sciences.

Beatrice scored exceptionally high on the college entrance examination and won a four-year scholarship from Shell Oil Company for $750.

While attending Lakeside, Beatrice played volleyball for three years, basketball for four years and lettered in both sports.

She was a staff member of Lakeside's literary magazine, Hornings and during her senior year she was captain of the girls' basketball team, co-editor of Hornings and tutored juniors in pre-calculus.

Her extra-curricular activities included assisting the girl scouts in different projects, vice president of finance for junior achievement, president for junior achievement, a member of the committee for the Presbyterian of Seattle Church, a member of the Orchestra and a member of the glee club.

Beatrice, although born in Seattle, is of direct African descent. Her parents, both from Ghana, came to Seattle so that her father could further his education.

After completing his undergraduate and graduate work, her father died before he could complete his dissertation for his Ph.D.

Beatrice and her mother remained in Seattle so that Beatrice could finish school.

Three years ago, Beatrice and her mother went to Ghana for a visit and Beatrice met her 26-year-old sister for the first time.

Beatrice's mother, a Seattle Head Start worker, has decided to return to Ghana once Beatrice is enrolled at Harvard.

Beatrice stated she intends to stay in the United States to further her education, but would one day like to go to Ghana and use her skills to help her people.

Deniece Williams: 'My Melody' Has Something For Everyone...

"If you observe my musical career closely, you'll see constant change--the distinct evolution and constant growth of Deniece Williams, and that I am proud of!"

Her fourth solo album, simply titled My Melody, is, at once, her most courageously ambitious and aesthetically satisfying work to date. Every song, penned by Ms. Williams and produced by her in collaboration with Philly studio wiz, Thom Bell, caresses her voice with haunting ease.

My Melody has something for everyone. "Suspicious" is a beautiful song that boasts a mix of subtle reggae, a touch of symphonia and European Calypso. Ms. Williams calls her "Sweet Surrender" cut a mini-opera, yet its soaring grandeur is never so overpowering that is eclipses the simplicity of this 3 minute-plus masterwork. The title song is the crimson ribbon that binds this neat package.

"My Melody is a song about life, being up, being down, being happy about life and being angry with life. I'm saying that regardless of what happens in my life, it's mine, and I'm going to live it my way!

"You see, we're all individuals. God gave each one of us a melody that belongs to no one else. On this album I'm singing about the melody that belongs to just me. My Melody is the essence of me."

She submitted a tape of her materials to Earth, Wind & Fire's Maurice White, but it was that indomitable Deniece Williams voice that initially swept Mr. White off his feet. He produced her debut album This Is Niecy, which not only certified gold, but contained the hot charting single "Free" and garnered the talented lady "New Female Vocalist of the Year" nominations from both Record World Magazine and the Rock Awards.

Deniece's second album was also produced by Maurice White and aptly titled Songbird.

Shorlty thereafter Deniece recorded a duet with the legendary Johnny Mathis. Their hit single "Too Much, Too Little, Too Late" introduced her to an even broader market and resulted in a second Mathis-Williams teaming on the 10 incredible cuts that compile the That's What Friends Are For lp.

Her next solo album, When Love Comes Calling, strengthened Deniece's grip on success. The single "I've Got The Next Dance" discoed in the top ten for weeks while the hauntingly beautiful "Touch Me Again" dared to defy the commercial trends of the time and bravely hinted at the Deniece Williams-yet-to-come--the ever changing, ever growing artist.

My Melody truly belongs to Deniece. She is the singer, composer, and the co-producer.

"I used to think that because I wanted to do it all that maybe I was wearing too many hats, but working with people like Stevie Wonder and Maurice who do so many things at once made me realize that it can be done. A great part of the excitement is in the challenge of doing it all and making it better and better.

"And, of course, working with a genius like Thom Bell was absolutely inspiring. Watching him work is fascinating because he has an incredible imagination. There was a constant energy flow between us which made for a fulfilling collaboration."

Deniece Williams

Industry hub-bub has deemed Ms. Williams a studio slave driver and an unrelenting perfectionist.

"I'm guilty as charged!" she laughs. "When I undertake a project I never give less than my best. I don't like to cheat. I have an obligation and a responsibility to a lot of people I may not know personally but who take me into their homes to live with them, to sing to them and to provide pleasure for them. That is an obligation and I must not fall short of that."

First AME 95th Anniversary Draws to an End July 5

Sunday, July 5, marks the end of the First African Methodist Episcopal Church's (First AME) observance of its 95th Anniversary. The six-month celebration began January 18 with the theme "Cornerstone of Faith: 95 Years of Serving God". This theme was officially introduced to the city by Reverend Dr. Fred E. Stephens, Minister of First AME, at that time. The church is Seattle's oldest and largest predominately Black congregation.

The celebration took many forms during the past six months. In February, the church held its Founders Day Observance; the 57th Church Usher Anniversary; and the traditional Zodiac Tea Gala. In March, there was an exciting and informative workshop on Afro-American History and Health Care. April brought a spirited city-wide Youth Revival that warmed the hearts and souls of the young and old alike; and a well received Laypersons Seminar, teaching the principals of the AME Church. Intermixed, were the traditionally observed Holy Days and outstanding musical tributes by the Chancel and Young Adult Choirs and others.

May and June ushered in Womens Day and Mother's Day; Men's Day and Father's Day, respectively. Judge Charles V. Johnson and Mrs. Dorothy Johnson have served admirably as Chair and Co-Chairpersons, respectively, for the celebration.

First AME church is proud of its 95 years of serving God and its community through a warm, open environment of worship; its active sponsorship of three low-income housing units; its voter registration/education program; its prison outreach program; food bank participation; and in a host of other ways.

The public is invited to join us in our re-Dedication as we bring to a close the Cornerstone of Faith: 95 Years of Serving God" Celebration, July 5. The sermon will be delivered by none other than the challenging Pastor, Reverend Dr. Fred E. Stephens.

The church is located is located at 1522 14th Avenue in Seattle.

The Medium Wants To Know . . .

QUESTION—
How do you feel about Seattle not having a radio station that caters to the needs of and informs the Black community?

I think Black people should get together to voice our opinion. Where can we go for help? Blacks should get together and buy the station back. I don't get to read the newspaper often, so I depended on KYAC to let me know what was happening in the Black community.

It's a shame. KYAC had been on the air since I was eight years old and I'll be 27 next month. I don't know what the circumstances were, but maybe they were having financial problems. Someone should make an effort to do something about it.
Marsha Mobley
SOIC Student

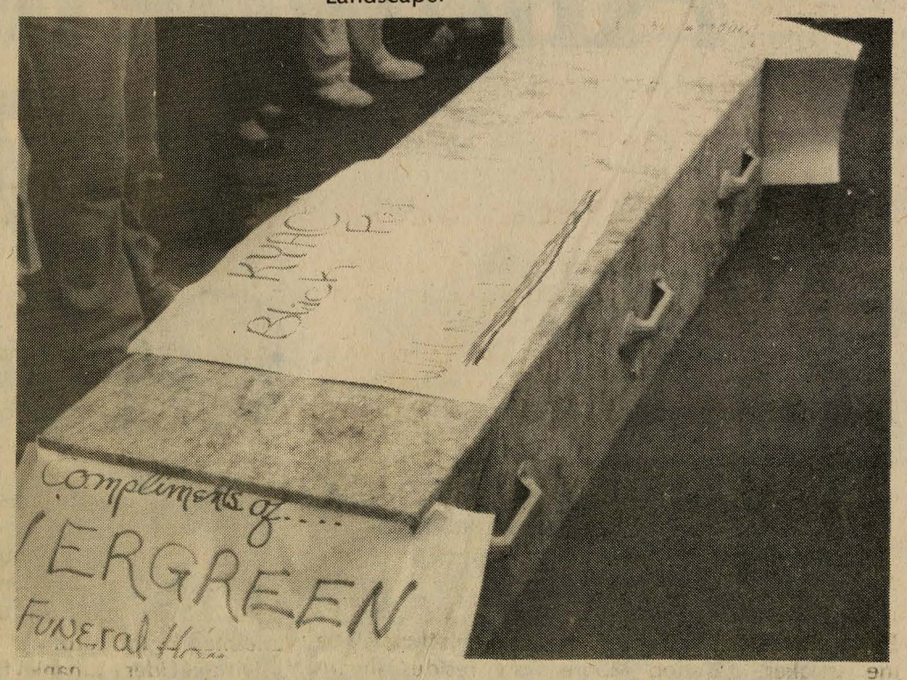

I don't feel good about it whatsoever. We need a station to fulfill the needs of the Black people. I don't understand. There are too many Black people here in Seattle not to have station that will inform us.
James Harris

Aw man, we hate it. Before, when we got home from school and there was nothing to do, we listened to KYAC. But the new station plays a lot of old records, records that were around when our mothers were little girls. Also with the new station, you can turn on the radio and you hear something howling.

Health Department Investigates Measles Outbreak

Three outbreaks of rubella (German Measles) have been investigated by the Seattle-King County Department of Public Health during the past month. These three outbreaks occurred at the University of Washington, at a private group home for developmentally disabled persons, and at a state institution for the mentally retarded.

These outbreaks are an important reminder of the need to quickly stop rubella outbreaks from spreading, and to investigate their origin so others can be prevented.

Rubella itself is usually a mild illness and only moderately uncomfortable to the patient. But the real danger lies in its potential for harming the unborn fetus of a pregnant woman who catches the disease. Women who catch rubella early in pregnancy could bear a child with one or more birth defects, including cataracts, deafness, heart disease, and mental retardation.

That's why rubella vaccination is very important, and any woman planning a pregnancy should get a rubella vaccination if she is not already immune. Women of child-bearing ages can now safely get a rubella vaccination, although this was often not recommended in the past.

A myth is that all rubella patients get a rash on the skin. In fact, almost one-third of rubella cases do not have a rash, but can nevertheless be contagious to other people.

Any pregnant woman who comes in contact with someone who may have rubella, or any pregnant woman who develops a rash, should consult her doctor. Rubella cases should also be prompty reported to the Communicable Disease Office of the Health Department at 625-2131. Among the rubella outbreak cases mentioned above, two women were pregnant at the time they caught the illness and chose to terminate those pregnancies.

At the University of Washington, twelve rubella cases occured, and more than half were among students enrolled in one class. The private group home was the site of eight more cases of rubella. At about the same time, another outbreak of 12 cases occurred among staff and residents at the state institution.

Because of the possibility that these latter two outbreaks were related through common contact at a work site for the handicapped, the Health Department, with assistance from the Centers for Disease Control, Atlanta, GA, and the Washington State Immunization Program began an intensive epidemiologic investigation.

Actions from the investigation included: 1) All residents and staff at the group home were screened for rubella immunity. Those without record of immunity were immunized. 2) A mass immunization clinic was held at the worksite for the handicapped for those unimmunized against rubella. 3) It was recommended that employees and residents at the state institution be screened for rubella, and vaccinated if there is no record.

Understanding The Psychology Of Racism: (Part II)

by DR. CHARLES W. FAULKNER

This series of columns could have been titled, "Why they don't like you and why you don't like them either."

Interviews with many white people indicated that they had almost as much of a problem as Black people in answering the question, "Why do whites dislike Blacks?" Jim, who is a young, white government administrator provided the following answer to the above question: "Oh, I don't know exactly why I dislike Blacks except that it sort of makes me feel good to be 'better' than they."

Jim, whose comments are typical, continues, "I have never really thought seriously about it. It isn't something that you can put into words, it is more of a feeling or an emotional thing rather than a consciously predetermined plot. It is more of a reflex. I do not consider myself to be prejudiced. And, I couldn't give you a logical explanation for my behavior or, even, support any kind of white superiority. My behavior towards Blacks is, now, kind of a habit; a pleasant habit. Frankly, I can't ever remember having a different behavior toward Blacks. It is just a conditioned reaction. I never seriously think about it although I would miss it if the opportunity did not exist to release my stress. If Blacks weren't around, I would probably abuse a lower class white. It's a matter of maintaining my sanity.

"It is probably like the feeling that you get after you have an argument with your wife or have been pushed around by your boss. Pushing a Black around, restores my self-esteem. Everybody needs a psychological lift after a depressing day. Even Blacks need it. The big difference is that I can take my frsutrations out on Blacks because I can be 'better' than they. But, they cannot take their frustrations out on me because they feel inferior to me. I really don't know how they get rid of their frustrations.

"It makes me feel good about myself again. You know what I mean? It is similar to the feeling that bully gets when he beats up the weakest kid on the block. You can't really describe the feeling but I know that it makes me feel good. Treating them like non-people or handicapped people is like a narcotic. I get so used to doing it that I need it. I look for an opportunity to get the psychological high. If the opportunity does not exist, normally, I sometimes create it. Sometimes, I want to get together with my buddies and find a couple of Blacks to abuse. I have never beaten one up and don't know if I could. If Blacks didn't exist, I don't know what I would do. I mean, who else is there to abuse and restore your manhood? I'm used to abusing Blacks and it will probably always be that way.

"Sometimes it becomes a little game; a challenge, like checkers. Sometimes I don't speak to them when they speak to me. Sometimes I act as if I see them and, then, bump into them without excusing myself. Sometimes, I throw their money at them in a store. Sometimes, I act as if I don't want to touch them. It's the little things like this I enjoy doing. They get uptight but can't do anything about it. I must admit, I do feel sorry for them sometimes but my sorrow doesn't last long because I have too many other more important things to worry about. And, even when I feel sorry for abusing them, I feel better."

The above interview is one of many that I have conducted in the recent weeks in to get an in-depth understanding of racial sentiments. My next column will be a continuance of the analysis of the Psychology of Racism.

Junior Drill Team "B" Wins First Place

The Renaissance Junior Drill Team "B" was organized in 1963, and is noted for its quick time steps and military marching techniques.

They have participated in countless parades throughout the Northwest and Canada, winning numerous honors including 15 first place trophies. The team is composed of girls between the ages of 8 and 13.

The Renaissance Drill Team became a member of the Seattle Drill Team Association in 1965. Every year this association holds an All-City Competition which every drill team that is a member of the association, performs for a maximum of eleven minutes. Every team is judged on their performance, repertoire, coordination and showmanship.

With a score of 73.2, the Renaissance Junior Drill Team "B" was awarded FIRST place in the Junior Division. The teams' drillmaster and drillmistress, David and Darlene Bowman, were very proud of the girls' performance and the outcome of the awards.

The team's captain, Sharon McMillon, did an excellent job in the competition and has inspired good team spirit.

The team members' goal is to work together and become the best drill team, one of which Seattle can be proud of.

PRIOR REDEMPTION

The District has reserved the right to redeem any or all of the bonds prior to their stated maturity date as a whole, or in part in inverse numerical order, on August 1, 1991, or on any semiannual interest payment date thereafter, at par plus accured interest to date of redemption.

Notice of such intended redemption shall be published in the official newspaper of King County at least once not less than 30 nor more than 45 days prior to the call date, and a copy of such notice shall be mailed within the same period to the main office of the principal underwriter or account manager of the successful bidder for the bonds, or its successor. In addition, such redemption notice shall be sent to Moody's Investors Service, Inc., and Standard & Poor's Corporation at their offices in New York, New York, but the mailing of such notice to such New York firms shall not be a condition precedent to the redemption of such bonds. Interest on any bonds so called for redemption shall cease on such call date upon payment of the redemption price into the bond redemption fund for the bonds.

The District has further reserved the right to purchase any of the bonds on the open market at any time at a price not in excess of par plus accrued interest.

SECURITY

The District has, by resolution of its Board of Directors and by vote of the electors therein in the manner required by law, irrevocably pledged itself to make annual levies of taxes without limitation as to rate or amount upon all taxable property within the District in an amount sufficient, together with other money legally available and to be used therefor, to pay the principal of and interest on the bonds as the same shall become due.

BIDDING INFORMATION

Bidders are invited to submit proposals for the purchase of the bonds fixing the interest rate or rates that the same shall bear. The bids shall specify either (a) the lowest rate or rates of interest and premium, if any, above par at which the bidder will purchase the bonds, or (b) the lowest rate or rates of interest at which the bidder will purchase the bonds at par. No bid will be considered for the bonds for less than par and accrued interest, or for less than the entire issue. The purchaser must pay accrued interest, if any, to date of delivery of the bonds.

Coupon rates bid shall be in multiples of either 1/8 or 1/10 of 1%, or both. No more than one rate of interest may be fixed for any one maturity. The maximum differential between the lowest and highest coupon rates named in any bid shall not exceed 2%.

For the purpose of evaluating bids only, the coupon rates bid being controlling, each bid shall state the total interest cost over the life of the bonds and the net effective interest rate of such bid. Only one coupon will be attached to each bond for each installment of interest thereon, and bids providing for additional or supplemental coupons will be rejected.

BID DEPOSIT

All bids shall be sealed and, except for the bid of the State of Washington if one is received, shall be accompanied by a deposit of $134,750 by cashier's or certified check made payable to the Comptroller of King County which shall be promptly returned if the bid is not accepted; and if the bonds are ready for delivery and the successful bidder fails to complete the purchase of the bonds within forty-five days following the acceptance of its bid, the amount of its deposit shall be forfeited to the District and in that event the Board of Directors may accept the bid of the one making the next best bid. Such good faith deposit of the successful bidder shall be retained by the Comptroller, shall be applied upon the purchase price of the bonds upon the delivery of the bonds to the successful bidder and, pending such delivery, may be invested for the sole benefit of the District.

AWARD

The bonds will be awarded to the bidder whose bid produces the lowest net interest cost to the District to be determined by computing the total dollar interest cost from the date of the bonds to the respective maturity dates and deducting therefrom any premium. If there are two or more equal bids and such bids are the best bids received for not less than par and accrued interest, the Board of Directors shall determine by lot which bid will be accepted.

The District reserves the right to reject any or all bids submitted and to waive any informality in the bidding or bidding process, and if all bids are rejected, the bonds may be readvertised for sale in the manner provided by law. Any bid presented after the time specified for the receipt of bids will not be received, and any bid not accompanied by the required bid deposit at the time of opening such bid will not be read or considered.

DELIVERY

The bonds will be delivered to the successful bidder within forty-five days after the sale date at the office of the Comptroller of King County, Seattle, Washington, at the expense of the District, or at such other place as the Comptroller and the purchaser shall mutually agree upon at the expense of the purchaser. Settlement shall be made in federal funds immediately available at the time of delivery of the bonds.

CUSIP numbers will be printed on the bonds, if requested in the bid of the successful bidder, but neither failure to print such numbers on any bond nor error with respect thereto shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal by the purchaser thereof to accept delivery of and pay for the bonds in accordance with the terms of the purchase contract. All expenses in relation to the printing of CUSIP numbers on the bonds shall be paid by the District; but the fee of the CUSIP Service Bureau for the assignment of those numbers shall be the responsibility of and shall be paid for by the purchaser.

It is understood that if, prior to the delivery of the bonds, the interest receivable by the holders thereof shall become taxable, directly or indirectly, by the terms of any federal income tax law, the successful bidder may at its option be relieved of its obligation to purchase te bonds and in such case the deposit accompanying its bid will be returned without interest.

The bonds will be furnished by the District and will be sold with the legal opinion of Roberts, Shefelman, Lawrence, Gay & Moch, bond counsel of Seattle, Washington, approving the legality of the same, all at the expense of the District. Bond counsel's opinion shall express no opinion concerning the completeness or accuracy of any official statement, offering circular or any other sales material issued or used in connection with the bonds. A no-litigation certificate will be included in the closing papers.

Further information regarding the details of the bonds may be received upon request made to Marshall and Meyer Incorporated, 1705 Norton Building, Seattle, Washington, the District's financial consultant.

Royal Treatment For Hot Dogs

Many people are content to broil a frankfurter fast, slap it between a bun, slather it with mustard or catsup and let it go at that. But since hot dogs are uniquely American, they deserve special treatment on the Fourth of July. The addition of zesty bottled all-purpose barbecue sauce lends a subtle yet spicy flavor to the franks and blends beautifully with the cheese and bacon. And for guests who like their hot dogs "real saucy," have a small bowl of the same sauce ready and waiting.

CHEESE-STUFFED FRANKFURTERS

1 lb. frankfurters (8 to 10)
Open Pit barbecue sauce
2 to 3 slices process American cheese, cut in thin strips
8 to 10 bacon slices
8 to 10 frankfurter rolls, toasted

Slit frankfurters lengthwise to ¾ inch from each end. Spoon ¼ teaspoon barbecue sauce along slit in each; add 2 cheese strips to each. Wind a bacon slice around each frankfurter; secure with wooden picks at each end. Place on grill away from glowing coals. Brush with additional barbecue sauce and grill, turning and basting until bacon is cooked. Remove picks. Serve on rolls. Makes 4 servings.

California Blackeye Beans Star In Creole-Style Dish

A city rich with tradition and fine cuisine, New Orleans, the true melting pot of the best of French, Spanish and American cooking, is famous for its Creole dishes.

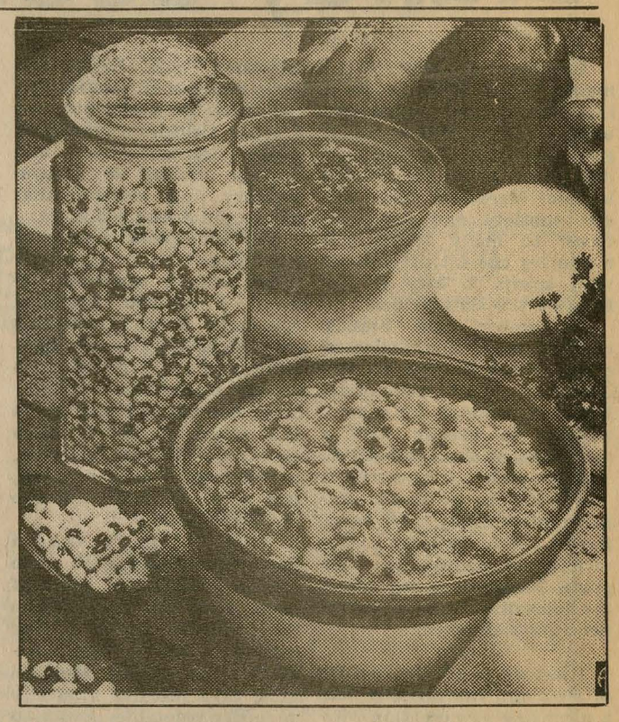

Creole-Style Blackeyes, a spicy, tomato-sauced dish features California blackeye beans. Distinctive in their look, blackeye beans have a mellow flavor that combines well with many other ingredients. The blackeyes are simmered in a well-seasoned sauce of onion, green pepper, stewed tomatoes and chicken broth. Creole-Style Blackeyes is an excellent accompaniment to chicken, ribs or fish.

CREOLE-STYLE BLACKEYES

½ cup chopped onion
⅓ cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon butter
1⅔ cups drained, cooked or canned blackeye beans
bouillon granules
1 can (8 oz.) stewed tomatoes
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon chicken
¼ teaspoon celery seed
1/8 teaspoon each salt and pepper

Saute onion and green pepper in butter several minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Simmer, covered, 20 to 30 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Makes 4 servings.

Serving Tip: Serve with rice and chicken, ribs or fish.

Pudding Stars In Fruit-Topped Cake

Once upon a time a pudding cake was about the moistest and richest cake you could make. Now it's even more! Here's one with stripes of pudding running through it for added taste, texture and eye appeal.

The method is the magic of this new concept in which you poke holes in a baked and cooled cake and pour on half of a luscious instant pudding and pie filling mixture to create the "stripes." When the remaining pudding thickens, spread on the cake surface as frosting. This creamy cake is garnished with fresh summer fruit to boot...and fancied up with thawed frozen whipped topping on the sides.

You can "summerize" this new cake concept with a bevy of fruit-and-pudding combinations: peaches, chocolate fudge instant pudding and pie filling with yellow cake; strawberries, French vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling and chocolate cake. Mix and match for tasty triumphs!

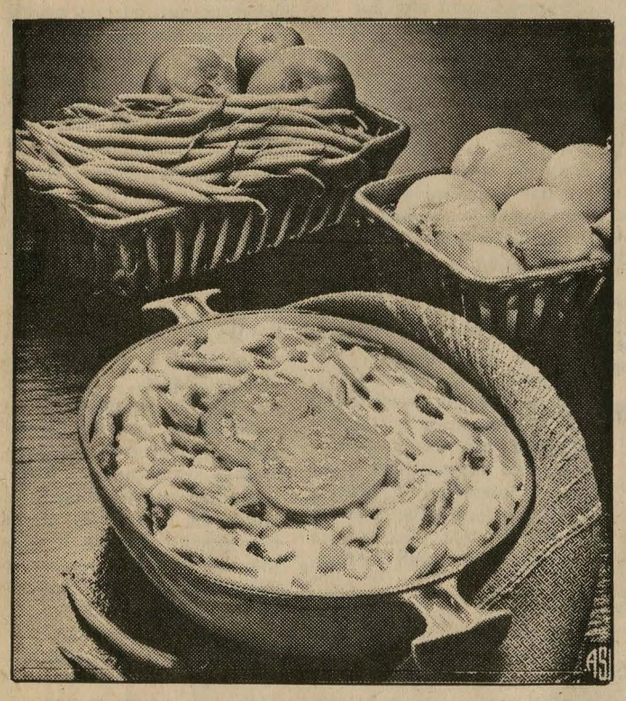

Pudding Fill-and-Frost Cake

1 package (2-layer size) yellow cake mix or pudding-included cake mix
1½ cups sliced fresh peaches or nectarines
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons peach jam or apple jelly
1 package (4-serving size) Jell-O chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling
⅓ cup confectioners sugar
2 cups cold milk
1 container (4 oz.) Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, thawed

Prepare cake mix as directed on package, baking in 10-inch tube pan. Cool 15 minutes in pan. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Then poke holes down through cake to the bottom, using the round handle of a wooden spoon. (Or, poke holes with a plastic drinking straw, using a turning motion to make large holes.) Holes should be at 1-inch intervals.

Combine fruit, lemon juice and jam; set aside. Combine pudding mix with sugar in bowl. Gradually stir in milk. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for not more than 1 minute. (Do not overbeat.) Quickly, before pudding thickens, pour and half of the thin pudding evenly over cake and into the holes to make the stripes. Allow remaining pudding to thicken slightly, then spread over top of cake. Arrange overlapping fruit slices on top of cake; spread whipped topping on sides. Chill at least 1 hour. Store any leftover cake in refrigerator.

Vegetable-Cheese Casserole Makes The Most Of Summer's Harvest

Summer is finally here, bringing a bounty of farm-fresh vegetables and fruits. Green beans, firm and juicy, overflow bins with a crispness that means they're straight from the field. Crimson tomatoes, just off the vine, burst with juice at the touch of a knife. It's the season to feast on vegetables picked at the peak of ripeness!

Fresh beans and tomatoes can easily stand alone at meal-time - but why not combine them in a zesty casserole? This recipe from The Kraft Kitchens adds sauteed onions and crunchy bits of bacon for a flavor accent. And to blend everything together, there's a rich sauce made from creamy Casino natural Monterey Jack cheese.

With its mild falvor and soft, smooth consistency, Monterey Jack is the perfect of fresh tastes and textures. The cheese was first made by 19th-century monks in Monterey, California, and is a distant cousin of English cheddar.

Monterey Jack has long been a snacking favorite, but it's worth knowing as a cooking cheese, too. Its understated yet mellow flavor makes it a natural choice to top seafoods and vegetables. And because some recipes call for more spice excitement, Casino natural Monterey Jack comes three ways: plain, with caraway seeds, and with jalapeno peppers.

Creamy Bean And Tomato Casserole

4 bacon slices
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons Parkay margarine
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 cup milk
1½ cups (6 ozs.) Casino brand natural Monterey Jack cheese
1 lb. fresh, cut green beans, cooked, drained
1 cup chopped tomato

Fry bacon until crisp; remove from skillet. Drain fat, reserving 1 tablespoon. Saute onion in reserved fat. Add margarine and melt in skillet over low heat. Blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually add milk; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add cheese; stir until melted. Crumble bacon slices. Add beans, tomato and bacon to cheese sauce. Pour into 1½-quart casserole. Top with tomato slices, if desired, and bake at 350°, 25 to 30 minutes or until hot.

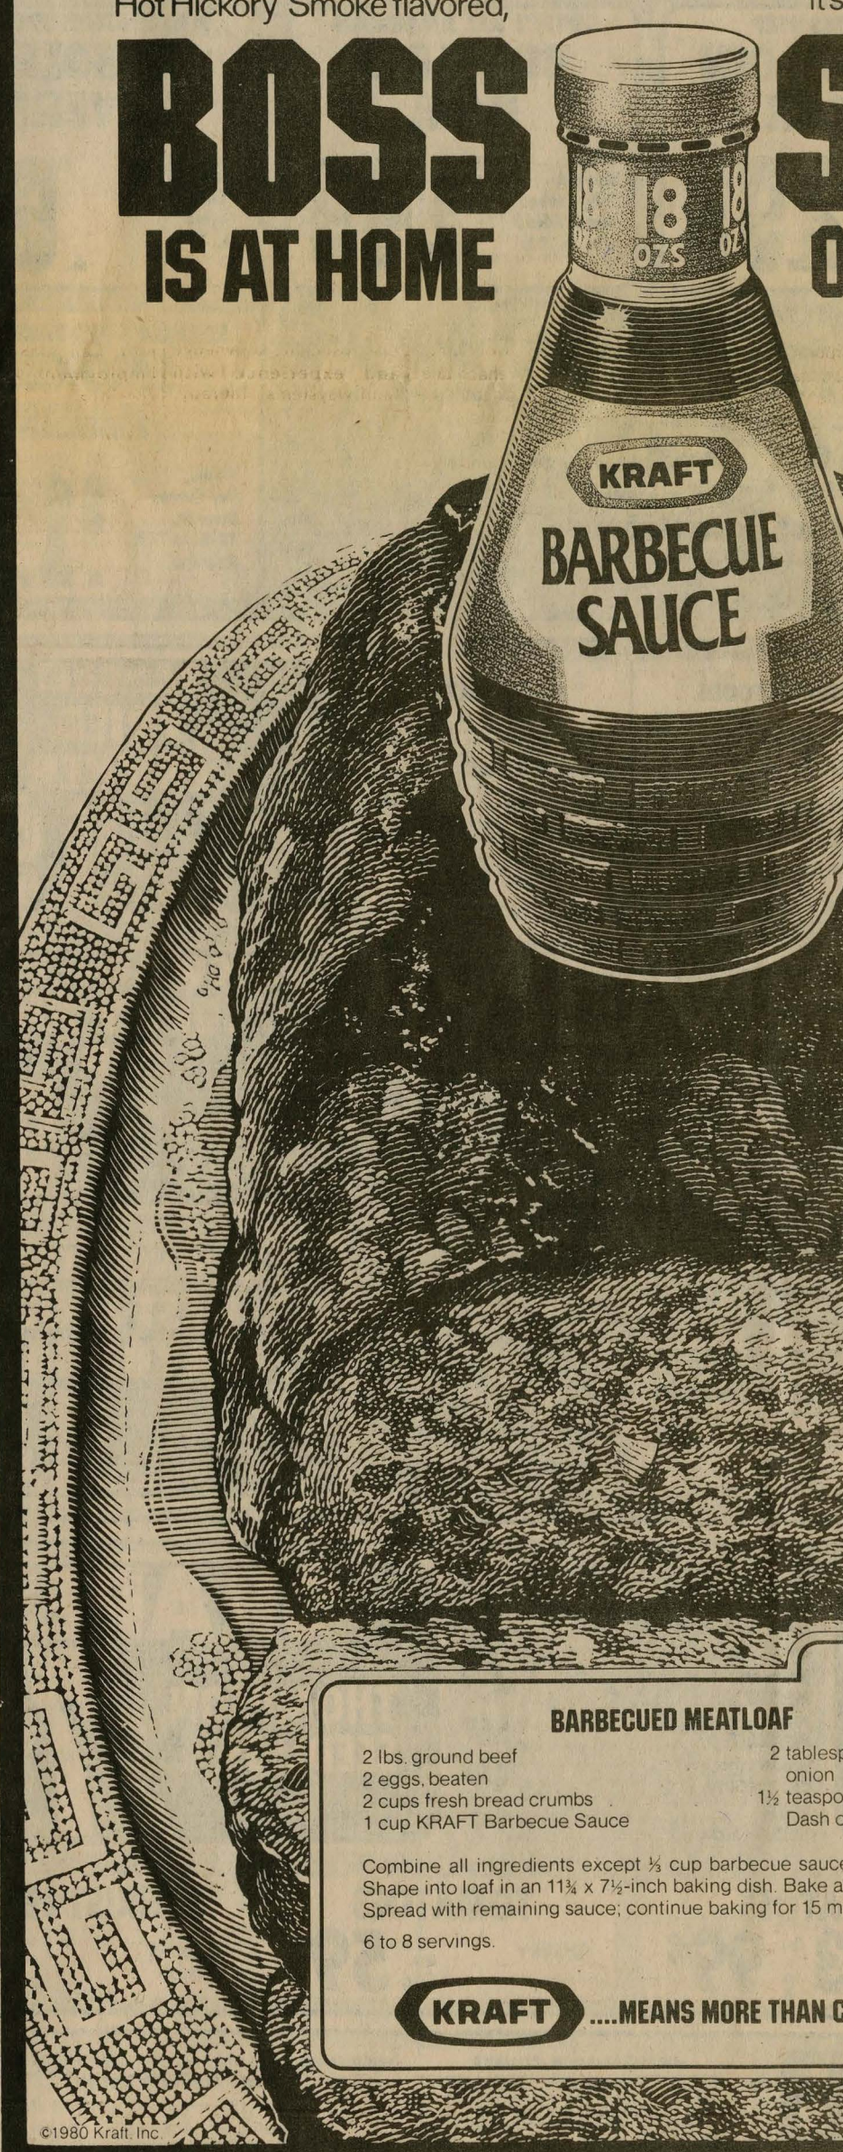

6 to 8 servings.

On the grill or on the range, KRAFT Barbecue Sauce simmers in tangy, snappy flavor six ways: Regular flavor, Hot Hickory Smoke flavored, Onion Bits, Garlic flavored, and Onion Bits Hickory Smoke flavored.

Indoors or outdoors it's the Boss Sauce.

THE BOSS IS AT HOME

BOSS SAUCE ON THE RANGE.

BARBECUED MEATLOAF

2 lbs. ground beef
2 eggs, beaten
2 cups fresh bread crumbs
1 cup KRAFT Barbecue Sauce
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

Combine all ingredients except ⅓ cup barbecue sauce; mix lightly. Shape into loaf in an 11¾ x 7½-inch baking dish. Bake at 350° 1 hour. Spread with remaining sauce; continue baking for 15 minutes.

6 to 8 servings.

Brandy Cookery Is Easy: Experimenting Is The Key

Creative cookery is a matter of applying a little imagination and effectively using a few different ingredients that add flair and distinction to meals. Brandy is one ingredient that can add subtlety and depth of flavor to many foods, and mastering the art of cooking with spirits is easy if you follow a few simple rules.

Remember that brandy cookery is not a complicated secret ritual limited to top chefs at fancy restaurants. It is easy enough for almost anyone to master with a minimum of time and effort. Yet the results are spectacular.

Brandy is aromatic and harmonizes easily with other flavor combinations; your own taste should be your guide. Experiment and adjust the amount of brandy to your personal preference.

Soups

Start with an ordinary soup or stew and transform it into a surprising new creation with the addition of 1/2 to 1 cup of California brandy. For example, take a large pot of homemade vegetable soup, add 1 cup of brandy and the soup takes on a whole new dimension.

Or try a hearty bean and sausage soup, featuring carrots, celery, onions, tomatoes, chili beans and garlic sausages or frankfurters. Delicious by itself, but add 1/2 cup California brandy to create Brandied Bean and Sausage Soup, an extraordinary new creation that family and guests will savor.

Refreshing cold soups make a delicious treat or appetizer. Some unique variations include a Chilled Brandied Avocado Soup, combining chicken broth, avocado, light cream and 1/4 cup California brandy. Cold Cream of Curry Soup, combining heavy cream and cream of chicken soup seasoned with curry powder, onion powder and oregano, gets a boost from 1/3 cup California brandy.

Serve a Brandy Garden Consomme filled with crisp blanched vegetables, a hint of tarragon vinegar and 1/3 cup California brandy in a clear consomme broth. Tangy gazpacho, the snappy Mexican soup that features a variety of garden vegetables in tomato juice, becomes your own creation when you add 1/4 to 1/3 cup California brandy.

Outdoor Fun

When the weather is nice, it's time for outdoor foods like hamburgers. At a picnic or broiled on the patio, make hamburgers deluxe by adding 1/4 cup California brandy to the uncooked meat mixture. You've created Brandy Beefburgers. Top the burgers with a Brandy Mushroom Sauce for variety on other occasions. The simple sauce combines butter, fresh mushrooms, beef broth, and 1/3 cup California brandy added to the flavorful drippings left after the burgers are cooked.

Brandied sauces for meats and poultry generally contain 1-2 tablespoons of brandy per 1 cup of liquid. Add 1/4 cup California brandy to the ever popular tomato sauce and you turn it into zesty Spirited Tomato Sauce, superb over all kinds of pasta. Brandied sauces are easy to make and greatly enhance the versatility of economic dishes.

Salads

Salads are also a popular accompaniment at any meal. Start with your favorite salad dressing mix or homemade dressing and add 1 tablespoon of brandy per cup of liquid. Voila! You have your own brandied French dressing or brandied bleu cheese dressing.

When you want a special party salad, create a creamy homemade Brandied Roquefort Dressing by blending 2 egg yolks, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 tablespoon tarragon wine vinegar and 1 tablespoon California brandy. Slowly blend in 1 cup olive oil until the mixture is smooth and thick. Stir in 1/4 cup crumbled Roquefort cheese.

Desserts

Brandy is perhaps best known for its use in elegant desserts and pastries. Try substituting 1/3 cup brandy for some of the liquid when you make a cake, either from scratch or from a mix. For example, try Brandy Pour-Over Cake. Make a basic yellow sponge cake in a Bundt pan, but add brandy to the cake recipe and a sweet syrup of sugar and brandy that is "poured over" the top.

Dessert toppings generally use 1-2 tablespoons of brandy per 1 cup of liquid. A tasty and versatile crepe topping is a brandied custard cream made from vanilla pudding mix (not instant), California brandy and whipped cream. Adding a tablespoon of California brandy to your chocolate sauce also creates a distinctive dessert sauce that can be used over ice cream and pastries.

For brandied cherries, combine 1 pound of pitted sweet cherries, 1/2 cup currant jelly and 1/4 cup California brandy, then refrigerate for 3-4 hours. For brandied peaches, combine 1/2 cup brandy with 1 package frozen sliced peaches in syrup, and chill for several hours or overnight. Apricots and prunes are also delicious when brandied.

Chilled Brandied Avocado Soup

- 1 (10 1/2 ounce) can condensed chicken broth
- 1 medium-large avocado
- 1/2 cup light cream or half-and-half
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/16 teaspoon white pepper
- 1/4 cup California brandy
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- Sour cream
- Paprika

Chill chicken broth in can; skim off and discard any fat. Combine peeled and seeded avocado with the clear broth, light cream, salt and pepper in blender jar; blend smooth. Stir in brandy and lemon juice. Cover and chill well. Serve topped with sour cream and a sprinkling of paprika. Makes about 2-3/4 cups (4 or 5 servings).

Brandied Cream of Curry Soup

- 1/3 cup California brandy
- 1 cup water
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/4 teaspoon oregano, crumbled
- 2 (10 1/2 ounce) cans condensed cream of chicken soup
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash garlic powder
- Dash white pepper
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
- 1/4 cup finely chopped pimiento

Heat brandy, water, curry powder, onion powder and oregano to boiling. Remove from heat and blend into soup. Add salt, garlic powder, pepper and lemon juice. Cool, then stir in cream. Cover and chill. Add parsley and pimiento before serving. Makes about 4-1/2 cups (6 servings).

Brandy Beefburgers

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons instant minced onions
- 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/4 cup California brandy
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 tablespoon oil
- Brandy Mushroom Sauce
- 4 green pepper rings
- 4 pimiento rings

Combine beef with seasonings, onion, bread crumbs, egg, brandy and water. Mix well. Shape into 4 patties (3 1/2 diameter). Cook in heated skillet in oil, until meat is desired degree of doneness, turning to brown evenly. Remove and keep warm while preparing Brandy Mushroom Sauce. Return meat patties to sauce, and heat a minute or two longer. Top each patty with a green pepper and pimiento ring. Makes 4 servings.

_Brandy Mushroom Sauce:_ Stir 2 tablespoons butter into drippings remaining in pan from cooking meat. Add 2 to 3 cups sliced fresh mushrooms and saute lightly. Combine 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/3 cup California brandy, 1 (10 1/2 ounce) can condensed beef broth and 1/3 teaspoon pepper. Pour over mushrooms. Bring to boil, and simmer until thickened.

Brandy Pour-Over Cake

- 3 cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup soft shortening (half butter or margarine)
- 2 cups sugar
- 3 large eggs
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1/3 cup California brandy
- 1/3 cup orange juice
- 1/3 cup milk
- Brandy syrup

Resift flour with baking powder and salt. Cream shortening sugar, eggs and lemon juice together at high speed of electric mixer for 3 minutes (or, beat vigorously 300 strokes by hand). Add orange peel. Add dry ingredients alternately with liquid using low speed. Turn batter into well greased and floured 10-cup Bundt or tube pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 50 to 60 minutes, until cake tests done. While cake is baking prepare Brandy syrup. Cool cake 10 minutes in pan, then with cake tester or long narrow pick poke holes in cake. Slowly spoon half of Brandy syrup evenly over cake. Unmold onto serving plate. Poke holes in top and drizzle on remaining syrup. Let stand until cool. Makes 1 large cake.

_Brandy syrup:_ Combine 3/4 cup California brandy and 3/4 cup sugar in a saucepan. Warm gently, stirring until sugar is dissolved.

Brandied Bean And Sausage Soup

- 1 cup slivered carrot
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 (10 1/2 ounce) can condensed consomme or bouillon
- 1/2 cup California brandy
- 4 large garlic sausages or frankfurters (about 3/4 pound)
- 1 (30 ounce) can chili beans
- 1 (1 pound) can stewed tomatoes

Saute carrot, celery and onion slowly in butter 5 minutes. Add consomme and 1/4 cup brandy. Heat to simmering, cover and cook 5 minutes. Make 3 or 4 diagonal cuts in each frankfurter (or, cut into generous slices, if desired). Add to soup and cook 5 minutes. Coarsely mash 1 cup of the beans. Add to soup, along with remaining beans, tomatoes and remaining 1/4 cup brandy. Simmer 5 minutes longer. Makes a generous 2 quarts.

This main dish soup, thick and aromatic, is the center of interest for a friendly supper party. Brandy blends all the meat and vegetable flavors and adds a fine touch of its own.

Summer Garden Consomme

- ½ teaspoon unflavored gelatin
- ⅓ cup California brandy
- 2 (10½ ounce) cans consomme
- 1 cup sliced small mushrooms
- ¼ cup thinly sliced carrot strips
- ¼ cup thinly sliced celery
- ¼ cup cup sliced green onion
- 1½ tablespoons tarragon flavor wine vinegar
- 3 drops tabasco sauce
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon basil, crumbled
- Yogurt or sour cream for garnish
- Dill or paprika for garnish

Sprinkle gelatin over brandy and let stand. Combine 1 can consomme with vegetables. Bring to boiling, lowerheat and simmer 2 minutes just until vegetables are tender-crisp. Add softened gelatin-in-brandy and stir to dissolve. Add vinegar, tabasco, salt, pepper and basil. Chill until set, then spoon into chilled serving cups. Top with yogurt or sour cream and sprinkle with dill or paprika. Makes about 3 cups (3 or 4 servings).

Note: Soup may be spooned into individual serving cups and chilled, if desired.

STARTING A PRACTICAL FAMILY TRADITION:

Brandied Fruit Compotes

Preserving fruits in compotes, conserves, rumtoffes and other combinations has been a practice dating back centuries in many families. The family legacy of brandied fruits is kept year after year, each generation adding its own special touch.

In recent years, this ancient practice has begun to spread among Americans, to create their own family traditions. According to the California Brandy Advisory Board, the creation of homemade compotes, conserves and rumtoffes is an easy process, once understood.

Recipes range from canning a single fruit with brandy added to the sugar syrup, to simple fruit-brandy combinations, to the multi-fruit melanges, rumtoffes or (referring to the container) "crocked" fruits. These usually combine fruit, brandy and sugar, either all at once or in cycles, with a holding period to let flavors develop. These mixtures are generally not sealed, just covered, and are more nearly like a jam or preserve.

Brandy's Affinity For Fruit

Pouring a spirit over fruit not only preserves the fruit but helps blend flavors. Brandy has been the traditional spirit for preserving fruits because it is distilled from wine, a proudct of the grape, and so has a natural affinity for other fruit products. Neutral grain spirits such as vodka and rum may also be used for perpetual preserve fruit jars. Scotch, bourbon and gin are not as compatible with fruit flavors.

Scientific Explanation

Dr. George York of the Food Science Department at the University of California, Davis, says he's fielding an increasing number of questions about brandied fruits. According to Dr. York, two things happen when fruit is preserved in brandy. Brandy extracts water from the tissue of the fruit, then the juice and water blend with the brandy.

"The juice and water mixture dilutes the alcohol, but even with an 80 proof brandy, which would be 40 percent alcohol, the mixture would be diluted only to a range of 12 percent to 20 percent," says Dr. York. "Any alcohol percentage over eight percent is enough to preserve the fruit." It is well to note that nearly all California brandy is bottled at 80 proof.

Dr. York comments that since brandy has a low pH (a low acidity level), it does not affect the flavor of the fruit. Sugar may be added to the mixture for taste or to create a more jam-like consistency.

Wide Range Of Choices

The simplest brandied fruit jars consist of approximately two-thirds fruit and one-third brandy. Firmer fleshed fruits are recommended for best results. Apricots, peaches, grapes, pears, apples and figs work especially well. Plums can also be used although the preserving process may occasionally cause the skins to split. Some bright fruits such as cherries and some plums transfer color to other fruits but this is generally not a problem, Dr. York says.

If berries are used in a brandied fruit jar, they should be firm. If the berries are too ripe and soft, they tend to fall apart. Strawberries and blackberries are both good choices.

"Berries with tiny seeds make for a slight texture change in the brandy mixture, but most people don't find that objectionable," comments Dr. York.

Melons and bananas may also be added to the brandied mixture but should be chosen for firmness. Look for immature fruit that has not completely ripened.

The brandy you choose fro the brandied fruit jars makes a difference because brandies vary greatly, depending on whether you choose a heavy import or a smooth brandy from California. In 1979, 75 percent of the brandy sold in the United States was California brandy.

Smooth and Blendable

The brandy from the Golden State is produced by the "continuous still" method which results in a smooth product that retains the taste of the grapes from which it is made. It has a softness that is appealing to American tastes and blends well with other fruit flavors.

Why not create your own family tradition? Start your own rumtoffe or brandied fruit jar. In a few weeks you can have a delicious, spicy fruit topping for ice cream and pastries. Brandied fruits are also ideal for use in breads, cakes and cookies. In makes an easy dessert to keep on hand for unexpected entertaining.
