MERIT AWARDS WILL BE PRESENTED FRIDAY

The Medium's first annual Black Community Merit Awards will be held Friday, Feb. 2, announced Christopher Bennett, Publisher of the Medium Newspaper.

Representatives from the community have been invited to speak at the awards ceremony which will honor those persons whose achievements have not received public recognition, said Bennett. "The awards ceremony is in conjunction with our third anniversary," he said.

The presentation will be held at the Heritage House following a dinner in honor of those nominated to receive the awards. The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. A dance which will feature Jonah's Whale, a Tacoma Band, will follow the presentation ceremonies.

Two awards will be given and each person nominated will receive a certificate of achievement.

The winner of the Martin Luther King and Mahalia Jackson awards will be selected by a panel of seven judges who were selected from various segments of the community. They will use the following criteria to select the person most deserving of the two awards:

1. The amount of time the person spent working in the community,
2. The impact he made on any segment of the community, and
3. The number and type of work and achievements that has gone without public notice.

Former Superior Court Judge Charles Z. Smith will host the awards presentations.

For ticket information please contact Ms. Kora Vann or Ms. Pat Wright, The Medium Newspaper, 2600 S. Jackson, 323-3070.

OEO to undergo major overhaul

WASHINGTON (NBNS)--Informed Administration sources said this week that the Office of Economic Opportunity will be dismantled and its components will be doled out among other agencies, according to news accounts.

It has been speculated that the bulk of OEO programs -- which comprised LBJ's "war on poverty"--will go to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Namely, anti-poverty programs dealing with education, child development, hygience, mental health, policy research and Indians would come under the auspices of HEW, while administrative support and research and development funds would be transferred to the General Services Administration.

Community action programs would possibly be taken over by local and state governments with an inducement from the federal government of added revenue sharing funds.

OEO's controversial legal services program would also be caught in the transition. Some sources believe this issue will cause the greatest conflict between the Nixon administration and the Democratic Congress since the President has unsuccessfully pushed for a separate legal services corporation last year.

Administration officials said, however, that dismantling OEO may prod Congress into approving such a corporation during this session. (The proposal had been rejected earlier because all appoinments to the corporation would be made by the President and such a move would impose unnecessary restrictions upon attorneys representing low-income persons).

However, if the alternative is no legal services for the poor, it is believed that would approve legislation calling for such a corporation.

CASC ANNOUNCES RECALL, LEVY POSITION

The Central Area School Council urges all residents of the Central Area and of the Seattle community as a whole to vote YES for the special Levy and AGAINST the Recall of Alfred Cowles, Phillip Swain, Beverly Smith and David Wagoner.

The charges against the four School Board members are in our opinion, "trumped up" and ridiculous and the Council is concerned with the potential disruption of the operation of our schools a change in Board structure will cause at this point.

This is especially important to us because Al Cowles, the only Black member of the School Board, is being singled out as one of the villians by the Citizens Against Mandatory Bussing (CAMB). The loss of his voice on the School Board will deny the Black and Minority community one of its most sensitive advocates. We are also disturbed by the "hidden agenda" that CAMB is using to mobilize people against the School Board and the Superintendent. They are playing on the highly emotional issue of bussing to appeal to the fears and apprehensions of White middle-class America. The CASC believes that it has the responsibility to point out and struggle against any attempts by groups like CAMB to perpetuate ill feelings between Blacks and Whites.

"Race Mixing" is undoubtedly the threat and single root issue behind the current "whispering campaign" in progress by proponents of CAMB.

Levy Position:

In considering our position to support the School Levy, we estimate that the Central Area could and will lose 25% of its state support if the Levy fails. While we are not confident that the 33 million dollar plus levy amount is adequate to support the innovative educational programs our children need, the loss of the Levy would be a disaster for our schools. This, in addition to expected cutbacks in federal monies, would have a detrimental effect upon the Central Region. If the levy fails, we can only expect a return to the inadequate and neglectful educational standards of the past -- and it is our children who will suffer.

Again, we urge you to support the Council's position and vote AGAINST the recall and YES on the Levy.

DESEGREGATION PLAN GETS GO-AHEAD

The South Region Advisory Council of Seattle Public Schools Thursday night voted unanimously to go ahead with naming a citizens advisory committee for a Title VII desegregation program.

The six advisory councils in the South Region will be invited to submit names of residents for the citizens advisory committee by Feb. 7. Each advisory council may name up to three members on the advisory committee.

Persons interested in serving on the advisory committee may contact the chairman of their advisory council or telephone the District's South Region office at 587-3400.

Guidelines will be observed for minority group and parent participation on the advisory committee. Information about the guidelines may be obtained from the South Region office.

Title VII is a federal program for promoting desegregation. It provides money for curriculum development and special programs.

The Seattle School Board invited the South Region Council to participate in preparing a proposal for federal funding of desegregation. Citizen and staff teams will develop details of the program and submit it to the District administration by April 1.

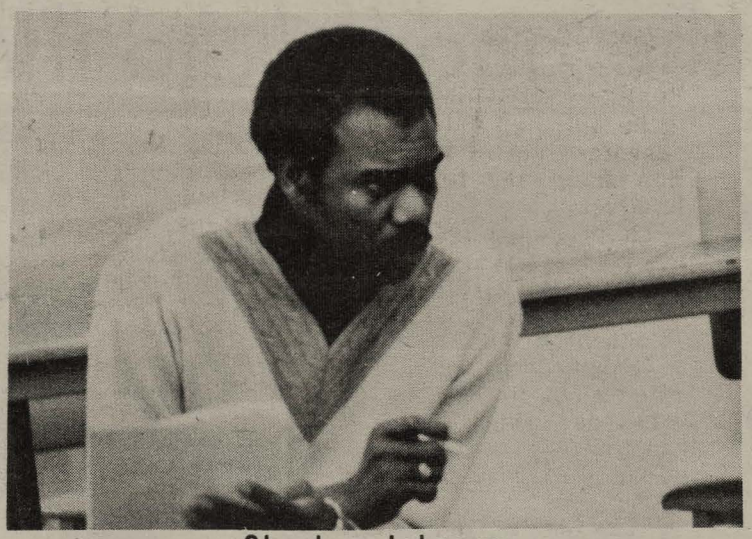

SEATTLE'S MODEL CITY NEWS REPORT

DINNER WILL HONOR JUDGE JOHNSON

A special dinner to honor Municipal Court Judge Charles Johnson, past chairman of the Model Cities East Branch Advisory Council, will be held on Friday evening, March 2, in the Yesler Facility, 17th and East Yesler.

Louis Warner, Model Cities East Branch manager, said:

"Citizens are invited to pay tribute to a man who has done much to make Model Cities a success. We think he deserves the praises and gratitude of the entire community."

Charles Johnson

Warner said that in addition to honoring Judge Johnson, the dinner also will conclude presentation of awards to various segments of the news media and certain citizens who have contributed much toward Model Cities.

Sponsored by the Model Cities East Branch Citizens Advisory Council, the dinner will start at 6 p.m. Awards will be presented during the affair in the Yesler Facility.

The dinner will be followed by no-host cocktails, a reception and dancing in the Heritage House.

Cost of the dinner is $8 per couple and $5 per person. Reservations may be made by calling Joe White, East Branch citizen participation coordinator, at 583-5710, or by writing Mr. White in care of the Model Cities East Branch, 1700 East Cherry.

Odessa opens new station

Called the "Family Development Station," the new center is a satellite of Harborview Community Mental Health Center.

Marc Krandel, Day Treatment Director, Harborview Community Health Center, explained,

"The Family Development Station will offer opportunities for children, couples and family members in the Central Area community to jointly engage in problem solving, better understating of child care, child care related issues and specific mental health services with family orientation.

"Whatever the goal of the family unit, whether it be growth, problem solving or communication, the Family Development Center hopes to provide a community base where a family can utilize trained personnel to assist them."

The Harborview Community Mental Health Center is funded jointly by Harborview Medical Center, the University of Washington and the Seattle Model City Program.

Walter R. Hundley, executive director, Seattle Model City Program, said a recent health survey by Model Cities showed that citizens of the East Model Neighborhood place a high priority on family problems and family issues.

He said the Family Development Station will include family and marital counseling, educational programs aimed at increasing parental skills and communication skills with families, and the issues which a family faces in relation to the community.

In addition to services provided by the Odessa Brown Health Station, the Family Development Center will be allied to the out-patient psychiatric clinics, day treatment and group therapy provided through the Harborview Community Mental Health Center, 925 Terrace Street.

Hundley said the Family Development Station will be in operation at the Odessa Brown Health Station, 20th & Spruce, from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Friday.

Services will be offered on a scheduled basis. Referrals will beaccepted and information provided by calling 232-6740.

COMMENTARY: CHARLES Z. SMITH

A TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT LYNDON BAINES JOHNSON

The late President Lyndon Baines Johnson will be remembered as one of America's presidents who really tried to make America a land of promise.

Like all men in public life, he had his share of supporters and his share of nonsupporters. But Lyndon Johnson should have his place in history as one of the true grass-roots statesmen to occupy the White House.

To the oppressed and underprivileged in America, he brought a measure of renewed hope. He called his vision for America "The Great Society" and launched the offensive in the "war on poverty". Of course, he also inherited another war which pobably more than anything else--brought him to his decision to not seek re-election.

First elected to congress in 1937, President Johnson was elected to the Senate in 1949. As a senator, he led the battle for civil rights, disarmament and for censure of Senator Joseph McCarthy. His concern for the poor and minorities brought him to the signing of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 enacted by the 88th Congress.

After violence followed blacks attempts to register and vote in Selma, Alabama, President Johnson went before a joint session of Congress on March 15, 1965 and in an impassioned speech urged immediate passage of a tougher Voting Rights Act.

The Voting Rights of 1965 was passed by a large majority. Underits provisions, registrations of blacks increased substantially throughout most of the South. The course of history was turned.

I believe we each owe Lyndon Baines Johnson our deepest gratitude for what he did to move our country another step towards fulfillment of democracy. His words to the 88th Cingress, I believe, express the quality of the man:

This great, rich, restless country can offer opportunity and education and hope to all -- all black and white, all North and South, sharecropper, and city dweller. These are the enemies--poverty, ignorance, disease. They are enemies, not our fellow man, not our neighbor, and these enemies, too, poverty, disease and ignorance, we shall overcome.

RENT-A-KID PROGRAM HELPS YOUTH

A program to find jobs for youth will begin here in February.

"Rent-A-Kid" will get jobs for youth ages 9 to 11 and who live in the Central Area.

"Rent-A-Kid" is a project of Youth Unlimited, 1710 E. Yesler Way.

The employment service for youth will be at the Collins Recreation Center, 16th and Washington.

Jobs for the youth are being solicited from all parts of the city, including the suburbs.

Youth unlimited will provide transportation for kids. Jobs needed include lawn care, baby sitting, snow shoveling, shopping, apartment and house painting, garage and house clean-up and cleaning boats.

Anyone with a job can call 329-5882.

PROPOSED LEVY LOWER THAN LAST YEARS

The Seattle Schools' proposed $33,024,000 "belt - tightening" levy to be voted on Feb. 6 represents a cut of $5.4 million from the levy now in effect.

The proposed levy is for the 1974 tax year and proceeds of it will be used in the 1973-74 and 1974-75 school years.

Thousands of volunteers will be out in their neighborhoods this weekend, doorbelling and distributing literature about the levy.

"The future of our school system will be on the line Tuesday, Feb. 6" said Jim Whittaker, chairman of Seattle Citizens For School Support. "The levy is vital to maintenance and operation of a good school system."

It would take years to recover from a levy failure, he stressed.

Whittaker pointed out that approximately one-third of the School District's operating budget comes from annual levies.

BASIC SKILLS AT GARFIELD UNDERGO TRANSITION

The Language Arts Department at Garfield is currently undergoing a period of positive transition. Weekly inservice meetings and Saturday workshops, financed by Title VIII funds are showing their impact on restructuring the Department to more closely meeting the needs of the young men and women at Garfield High School.

In line with one of Project Garfield's major objectives of significantly increasing the reading level of each student at Garfield, heavy emphasis is being given to strengthening the reading program at Garfield in these continuing in-service sessions and workshops.

The most important goal of the Department as stated by Joe Fleming, Department Head, is "to provide all students with the skills necessary to read and write effectively and most of our energies will be spent in this direction. No student should nor will be graduated from Garfield without these necessary skills."

The workshops and much of the weekly inservice programs are being conducted by Colleen McElroy, Assistant Professor and Supervisor of the English Economic Opportunity Program at the University of Washington. Ms. McElroy was re-engaged by CADRE (Central Area Dropout Reduction Experiment) for Garfield on the basis of her outstanding work in last summer's workshop at Garfield.

Bobby Seale wants fund

Oakland, Calif. (NBNS)- Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale announced for mayor and immediately called for a "slush fund" to provide jobs for minorities. Seale, 35, preidcting a "landslide victory," said "people have a right to a job" and this this would be the central theme in his campaign.

Father Receives new Assignment

Father D. Harvey McIntyre

Recently, Father D. Harvey McIntyre was appointed to a new assignment as pastor of St. Edward Church of Seattle.

Father McIntyre is a native of Vancouver, British Columbia. He entered St. Edward Seminary, Kenmore, in 1951 and moved up into St. Thomas the Apostle Major Seminary of Kenmore, in 1958. He was ordained by Archbishop Connoly in St. James Cathedral in 1959. He was assigned as assistant to Our Lady of Fatima parish following ordination where he remained for two years. In September, 1961 he enrolled in the Canon Law School, Catholic University at Washington, D. C. On completion of his studies there he was named assistant chancellor for the Archdiocese and in residence at Immaculate Conception. In 1968, he was appointed administrator for Immaculate and made pastor of the parish in March 1971. Father McIntyre is widely known for his efforts on the behalf of minorities in the Archdiicese. He was director of Project Equality, chairman of the Archbishop's Committee on Human Rights, has held important positions with the Catholic Interracial Council and is presently a member of the City of Seattle's Human Rights commission. Father McIntyre also serves as member of the CARITAS Board.

Congratulations to you, Father D. Harvey McIntyre on your new assignment. And may God continue to bless you in your endeavors.

Griffin's term began on January 9, 1973.

SKCEOB MOVES OFFICES

The Seattle King County Economic Opportunity Board, Inc., the largest community action agency in the Pacific Northwest, is moving to a new location. The new address is the Campion Tower, 907 East James. The new building is part of the Seattle University complex, and will provide more adequate space for the agency.

Mr. Jefferson Woods, Executive Director of SKCEOB said the move to the new location would begin Friday, January 26, 1973, with business as usual on Monday, January 29.

The new facility will house SKCEOB administration, Concentrated Employment, Program, Headstart, SOIC orientation, Transportation, Washington State Employment Security, including the Unicenter, which includes employment services from the University of Washington, the State of Washinton, King County, the City of Seattle, and Model Cities.

The move was culminated through negotiations with SKCEOB Seattle University, and the Office of Economic Opportunity.

WOMEN'S COMMISSION SEEKS MEMBER

The Seattle Women's Commission has one vacancy. The Commission acts as an advisory group to the City's Office of Women's Rights. Some of the projects supported by the Commission are an investigation of credit and employment discrimination against women; work for the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, HJR 61; and development of legislation needed to effect the E.R.A.

In order for the Seattle Women's Commission to return to their full strength of fifteen members, the Commission strongly encourage all interested persons with feminist consciousness to forward a resume to the Office of Women's Rights, 220 Rainier Avenue South, Seattle, Wash. 98144. Phone 583-6830 for additional information. All applicants must be residents of the City of Seattle.

Meeting for Eskstein Parents

The Eckstein Staff, Admistration and PTSA Council is inviting all the parents of Eckstein Middle School children to attend an evening Koffee Klatch on January 30th. The meeting will be held at the Heritage House from 7:00-9:00 p.m. The Heritage House is located at 820 Empire Way South.

The purpose of the meeting is to get acquainted with one another, to promote friendship and share activities of mutual interest.

The program will feature the Eckstein African Drum Ensemble and the Eckstein story - a ten minute colored film - written by the staff and students, and produced by Oscar Productions during the 1971-72 school year. A review of the 1972-73 school program and a presentation of the 1973-74 Academic Program will also be featured.

The Counselors and Administrators will be present to answer specific questions that anyone may have regarding the school and its operation.

The dress for the gathering is casual. Please reserve the date of Tuesday, January 30th between 7:00-9:00 p.m. for our Koffee Klatch at the Heritage House.

Free softball pitching clinic

From pitcher to teacher, Dick Yohn, for many years a star with the championship Pay' n Pak team, will tutor the men's and women's softball pitching clinics starting Wednesday evening, January 31, at Blanchet High School, 8200 Wallingford North.

The Seattle Department of Parks and Recreation clinics will be divided into two sessions: under 18 from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m.; over 18, from 8:30 to 10:00 p.m. Pitchers are to provide their own catchers, and gym shoes are required. The Department will furnish the balls for the free, 10-week course which is cosponsored by the Greater Seattle Softball Association.

Diggs confirmed as committee chairman

Washington (NBNS) -- Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr. (D-Mich.) this week became the first black chairman of the House District Committee after confirmation by the Democratic caucus to a vote of 154-36.

Diggs, who gained the post because of his seniority on the committee, said he considers the occasion of historic significance because his chairmanship represents the first change in the Committee's leadership in more than 20 years and becausehere have been few chairmen in the House who were either black or from Michigan.

URGES You To Vote.. For The School Levy, And AGAINST

The Recall of Four School Board Members

Our concern is for quality education for all children. Failure to pass the LEVY will cripple our children, our schools and our city for years to come.

We believe that the four school board members presently under attack for their constructive, innovative, creative and viable leadership in educational affairs MUST BE SUPPORTED BY ALL OF US. Under the leadership of Alfred Cowles, president and first black board member and a Central Area resident, Seattle School Board members have been willing to make hard decisions which in the long run will benefit all children. They have identified the real issues and have dealt with them.

The real issue is not bussing or integration but quality education for all children and the right of the School Board to function with integrity.

GARFIELD STUDENT TALKS ON FREEDOM

Rita Bruce and Russell Smith are two student leaders at Garfield this year. Smith, senior class president, is a member of the Regional Student Council that meets regularly with Dr. Richard Hunter to provide input from the students' point of view. Miss Bruce served on the Garfield Council for two years, and now belongs to Purple Paws, an honorary club for senior girls who must maintain a high grade average and take part in community projects. She is also a member of the school's debate team — Garfield's first in a few years — which has won, or placed near the top, in several recent competitions with public and parochial schools. Recently she was awarded $25 for her speech on "My Responsibility to Freedom" by the women's auxiliary of the Central Area Veterans of Foreign Wars. Below are some of the thoughts expressed in the winning talk:

So often the word "freedom" is heard, but so little is thought of its responsiblities. For me to say what my freedom is, is for me to say what my responsibliities are.

This nation was formed and developed on the concept of freedom and, in 1972, this nation is sustained on freedom --but only if all free people uphold their responsibilities. Freedom of speech implies the responsibility to speak the truth; freedom of press, the responsibility to print the truth; freedom of religion, the responsbility to believe what you think is true; and freedom of individualism, the responsibility to be a true and real person.

But we must remember that freedom is a privilege and if abused, can result in the withdrawal of it. If this privilege is battered and beaten by irresponsible people, these people will automatically forfeit it. A nation like ours cannot survive on partial freedom, freedom for a certain type of person instead of for all.

Now I have my freedom, but what do I do--how is it used? When I think about the limited rights and freedoms people have only 20 or 30 years ago it's frightening because the things I can do today are taken for granted by so many people. The 18-year-old vote was so far from existence 15 years ago, that it is amazing to realize the impact it had on the political scene in 1972. The freedom and right of the voter can only be recognized if I take hold of my responsiblity in exercising that right by involving myself enough to know what I'm voting on and who I'm voting for.

The United States government has a responsibility to its people, for the people have fulfilled their responsibility of allowing the government to govern and establish laws and restrictions. When this country's government fails to do what needs to be done, you and I have a responsiblity to reconstruct it, not destroy it.

BURGLARIES DOWN, LARCENY UP IN SEATTLE SCHOOLS

With burglaries declining in Seattle Public Schools, probably due to the increased risk, the larceny rate has not declined. Some burglars have switched to making daylight hauls, often identifying themselves as repair or maintenance personnel, or parents, reports security supervisor Charles O'Toole.

Topping the list of the security department's personal hardware is the Pageboy Communication unit. The district's voice transmitter atop Queen Anne Hill makes it possilbe for 30 such units to be contacted up to a distance of ten miles by an operator in the Adninistration Center. Security personnel can be alerted immediately to any disorder in any school, and they can alert the Center to a crisis situation within a school where they might me stationed.

In six schools, citizen radio bands make possible instant two-way communication from any part of the building to its main office, should trouble suddenly erupt.

Each of the recent years has seen a number of bomb threats made against school buildings -- eight a month on the average. The Seattle School District has made it clear that it inends to prosecute those who make such threats, hoax or otherwise, and the number of threats has declined somehat. Last year, however, live bombs were found in four school buildings, and on a single day, threats were made against five buildings. Fortunately, however, despite two bomb explosions, no student has yet been injured in a blast or evacuation drill.

The problem which concerns the district most today is the number of attacks upon individuals. Last year, Seattle newspapers carried warnings from the Seattle School Board that it would not fail to suspend or prosecute anyone, student and non-student alike, who found guilty of attacking another individual. But yet, this year about 100 students can be expected to report an attack upon his person. This is the type of crime which locally and nationally is the most difficult to control and the attacker identified or apprehended whether the crime occurs upon the streets, within a school building, or in an individual's home.

Detroit Police recruit blacks

Detroit, Mich. (NBNS) -- Recruiting outside the city will be tried to reach the goal of a 45 percent black police force in Detroit by the year 1980. The city's population is about 50 per cent black but the police force is 85 percent white.

New Orleans blacks

NEW ORLEANS, LA.-- (NBNS) -- Terming a city council district plan in the city as stacked against Blacks, the U. S. Justice Department advised the Council to try again. This left councilmen with the option of appealing the Justice Department ruling or redrawing the district to correct the attempt at gerrymandering.

The district lines for the seven-member council council "was not fair as far as the racial makeup was concerned," said a Justice Department spokesman. In an old story, New Orleans has nearly a 50 percent black population but no representation on the council.

Bill Russell Heads Team

Former player now coach Bill Russell in the National Basketball Association has been elected first vice chairman of Operation PUSH -- People United to Save Humanity. Other new directors of the civil rights group are Betty Shabzzz, widow of Malcolm X, and Rachel Robinson, widow of baseball great Jackie Robinson, former head of PUSH.

"Oh, say...." Nixon sees

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (NNS) Soul singer Ethel Ennis has a fan -- President Nixon. While some did not like the soulful style she introduced as the inaugural rendition of the national anthem, the President, she said, definitely did.

"The President told me he liked it. I think he was sincere. I know it was different, but I didn't do it for that reason. I added a few notes to make it more meaningful . . .to give it a little more warmth," she explained.

PROGRAM REDUCES SCHOOL DROPOUTS

Not too many years ago most of us believed in the truth of the old saying, "Nothing succeeds like success." It would appear today, however, that the road to success may be a one-way street to oblivion.

It seems so, at least as far as certain Federally-funded programs in education are concerned.

A good case in point is the Office of Education's highly successful Title VIII effort to reduce school dropouts.

"In spite of dramatic evidence of nineteen separate dropout prevention projects throughout the country, plans are afoot in our nation's capitol to reduce the $10 million allocated for these programs to $4 million," said Owen Lee, Director of Title VIII Projects.

One begins to wonder just what is the rationale for such a reduction. Certainly results, as published in carefully documented evaluation reports of the projects, indicate that sign ficant progress is being made toward keeping in the educational mainstream thousands of school age youngsters who otherwise would be out in the streets causing many difficult and complex problems.

Once there, they would become at best unemployable members of a welfare society, and at worst prime candidates for a life in the dim world of vice and crime.

What has been the extent of success in these nineteen dropout prevention projects? A recent report given at a Director's Conference in St. Louis showed that the original ten Title VIII Projects, (Seattle, St. Louis, Baltimore, Texas, Arkansas Miami, Paducah, Fall River, Massachusetts, Fredonia New York. Dayton, and Pine Ridge, South Dakota), with a total average secondary enrollment of 35,300 students, produced an astounding 45.3% reduction in the number of dropouts over the three-year period between September 1969 and June 1972.

Presented graphically, the number and percent of dropouts in 1971-72 (1,953 or 5.53%) contrasted dramatically with the initial base-line figures of 3,572 or 10.12% in 1968-69. One wonders how the Federal government can justify a huge reduction in funding the face of such obvious success.

The St. Louis Conference report also showed significant results in a second group of nine Title VIII Projects which began dropout prevention projects in the Fall of 1971. The total average yearly secondary enrollment for these target schools was 21,000 students. In the base-line year, 1970-71, dropouts totaled 2,604 or 12.4%. During the 1971-72 school year, dropouts were reduced to 1,843 or 8.7%.

The successes reported in the individual projects are equally impressive, doubly so because they are recorded in terms of carefully constructed evaluation designs.

It is difficult, when reviewing the success of individual projects, to understand why responsible leaders in Washington, D.C. are not calling for substantial increases in funding rather than drastic reductions.

In the Seattle School District #1, the dropout rate in 1968-69, the year prior to the institution of Project CADRE, was 20%. By the end of the 1971-72 school year, the dropout rate in the target schools had shrunk to 12%.

Equally impressive was the reduction of absenteeism between 1968-69 and 1971-72, and also creditable academic gains in reading and mathematics were reported.

Federal funds to support dropout prevention programs have been applied under conditions of strict accountability to achieve the major objectives of those programs.

Accountability and management by objectives are made a mochery by such actions. Is our national policy to support only untried activities and to gradually eliminate those which have proven themselves?

NIGHT LIFE Places to be and see.

By the Jones Girl, Adi-Marie

1973 has gotten off to a good start, entertainment-wise, and is picking up momentum. Because (or in spite of the fact that) the beginning of the year is the typical time to take it easy, people's minds have turned toward entertainment. Some of the biggest names in show business have been here (bringing out some of the largest crowds ever) and others are on their way. If you plan to get out this weekend, here are some places you might want to go:

THE GRAPEVINE...has a new brew in store for you, delicious drinks made special for you. J.C. Kinsey, an up and coming local group, are here this weekend. They're exceptionally good. Drop by and see them.

SHOW BIZ...begins the star review of the Ballads, here thru Sunday. And, there's food here now, great, gobbly pizzas, spaghetti, etc. It's bound to be packed, so come early to get a seat.

AT THE TROJAN HORSE... it's Ramsey (the Ramsey Lewis Trio). Here thru the 3rd., playing a potpouri of jazz sounds, music for your mind that tough cords in the bottom of your soul. Catch him if you can. He is superb!

THE GALLERY...grooves to the sounds of Scorpio this weekend. Here thru Saturday. Look forward to great entertainment here, featuring nationally famous jazz artists every month or so. In March, it's Lonnie Smith & George Benson. Check to see when.

THE LIVING ROOM...is the action spot for late night happenings, it's open after-hours. The Black & White Affair are here this weekend...next week they have another great group coming up. Stay in touch to find out who it is.

AT THE HYATT HOUSE... there's going to be a function for Singles this Saturday sponsored by the Alpha Fraternity. So brothers and sisters can come together - mix, mingle, match and do their various things.

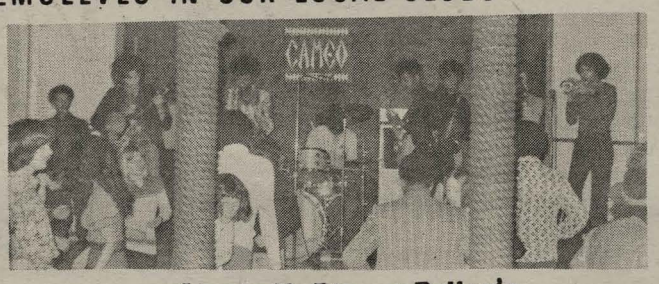

Curtis Mayfield, one of the entertainers you've all been waiting for will be at Paramount N. W. on the 16th of this month. (I mentioned that he would be here around New Year's or shortly there after.) Roberta Flack is scheduled to be here on the 24th.

Also, Ester Phillipps will be right here in one of our favorite local clubs in March. Watch for where and when.

It's the band that draws the crowd, and for those who want to know...Cameo is still at the District Tav. And, for a new one on you and me, the Buffalo Tavern in Ballard is featuring Tiny Tony. Go see what that's all about!

The "new blood" of the famous jazz-rock band, Blood, Sweat and Tears, will be heard in concert at Seattle's Paramount Northwest on Saturday, February 10 at 8:00 p.m.

INK SPOTS ARE BACK

Continuing its policy of top-flight entertainment in the Heritage House Theatre Lounge, the Heritage House Revue, starring Charles Gray and his World Famous Ink Spots will be returned by popular demand.

The REVUE, which opens Tuesday, January 30 wwll run through Sunday, Feb. ll, will aos feature Miss Jerry Staten, vocalist, who will do a corss-section of numbers running the gambit form ballads blues and standard favorites.

Also appearing on the bill will be the MARK III Dancers, who are no strangers in the Northwest, where they have appeared countless times to enthusiastic audiences. Lead dancer and choreorgrapher for the group is Ernest Pumphrey, who will put the roci - swing group through fast paces.

The INK SPOTS, of course, will perform the numbers which made them a household name in the 40's and 50's, along with some other contemporary sounds. The INK SPOTS, with Charles Cray, sole remaining living member of the original group will return to the Heritage House after a two week absence, which was superly filled by the legendary Joe Williams, who closes his run Sunday, January 28.

Human Rights Dept. urge defeat of recall

Declaring that "the recall of these four directors would result in serious, even irreparable harm to our educational process to the stability of a responsible school board," the City of Seattle Human Rights Commission urged citizens to vote against the recall of School Board members Alfred E. Cowles, Beverly Smith, Philip B. Swain and David E. Wagoner in the February 6 election.

"The Commission has supported and will continue to support all efforts to provide a multi-racial quality education for Seattle's children," the Human Rights Commission statement continues.

"We believe that the School Board has attempted to provide that kind of educational opportunity, and by doing so has incurred the wrath of a numerically small section of the community.

"Through the misuse of an ambiguous and vaguely worded recall statute, these elected officials are being punished for attempting in good faith to implement the law of the land in moving Seattle schools into a desegregation program.

"It is vital that individuals and groups in this city speak out publicly and vigorously to oppose this recall attempt."

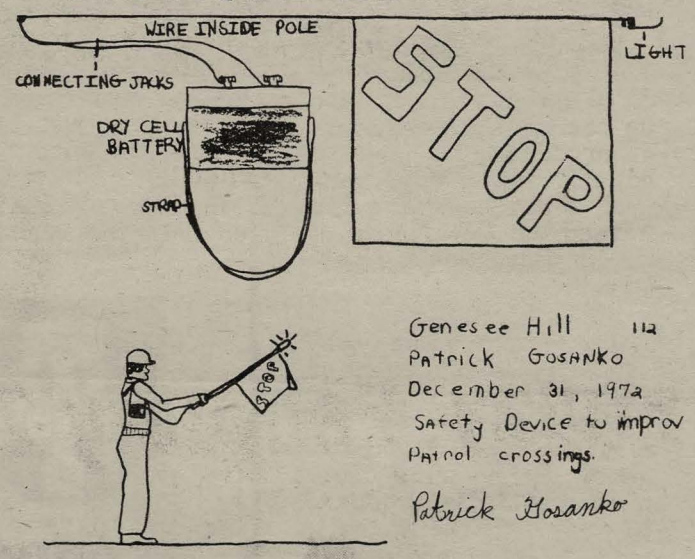

A unanimous resloution of the 43rd District Democratic Organization also urges defeat of the recall and asks "'full examination of the specific charges against the School Board members so that the electorate can make an informed decision on the invalidity of the charges."

Other organizations which have previously indicated their endorsement of the efforts of the Coalition Against Recall to defeat the recall more are:

Seattle Urban League, Seattle League of Women Voters, King County Labor Council, Seattle Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, Washington Nockey Club, Joint Board for Mission of Plymouth Congregational Church, Council of Planning Affiliates, Central Area Committee for Civil Rights, Seattle Federation of Teachers, Seattle Retired Teachers Association.

Also, Black United Clergy for Action, Church Council of Greater Seattle, Municipal League of Se-Atlantic Street Center, YMCA of Greater Seattle, Seattle Day Nursery Association, Retail Store Employees Union Local 1001.

6TH GRADER DEVELOPS PATROL LIGHT

Patrick Gosanko, a 6th Grader at Genessee Hill Elementary School, demonstrated a safety light which he designed to go on the end of school patrol crossing flags to the Seattle School Safety Committee in a meeting at the Evergreen Safety Council on January 18, 1973.

The light was developed because, as Patrick put it, "Much of the time the crossing that I guard is foggy or raining and the cars can't see us in the crosswalk until it is almost too late for them to stop."

Patrick made the light from a red tail light mounted on the end of his school patrol flag wired to a six volt dry cell battery carried in a pouch which is slung on his shoulder. The light may be used with a switch on the pole to turn the light on and off. A blinking light may also be used.

Virginia Galloway, principal of Genessee Hill School, would like to see the light adopted by Seattle Schools if present ordinances regarding school patrols permit. If they do, there will be funds available to each school for the purchase of the lights if the school levy, which is being presented to the Seattle voters on February 9th, passes, according to John Hunt, Supervisor of Safety & Technology for Seattle Schools.

Patrick Gosanko, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gosanko, 4551 - 51st Pl. S.W., might find himself in big business at age 12. It all depends on the voters.

Let's Pass the Levy the First Time...

THIS IS what it's all about IN SEATTLE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

1. (Q) What is the amount of the levy being submitted for voter approval on February 6th?

2. (Q) What is the potential loss of monies to the Central Region if the levy fails?

   (A) It is estimated that the Central Region could lose about $800,000 in money other than district funds next year. If the levy fails, loss in district funds would be $1.3 million, or a combined total of $2.1 million in losses to the Central Region.

Leather Sewing Class Open to Public

A leather garment-making class is being formed at the Seattle Parks and Recreation Department Studio to begin Wednesday evening, February 7, from 7:00 to 10:00.

Design, construction, and repair of leather and fur will be explored by the class under direction of Don du Mas. Cost is $10.00 for the series, which will also cover some of the needed materials. The Seward Park Art Studio Committee is cosponsoring the series.

CRACK DOWN ON WELFARE RECIPIENTS IS COSTLY

Washington (NBNS)---- The proposed crackdown on welfare fraud could wind up costing U. S. taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars, the agency's general legal council has warned the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The crackdown was scheduled to go into effect on Dec. 4, but HEW delayed it for three months. The plan would call for the agency withholding $689 million in federal welfare payments to the states it feels haven't done enough to get those ineligible for overpaid recipients off the rolls.

At the same time, Wilmot Hastings, HEW general counsel, warned that the courts would probably by sumpathetic to the pleas of the states that the action was "destructive," rather than constructive.

In a memorandom sent to an Assistant Executive Secretary, Hastings said the action would very likely be overturned by a court. Some 34 states have already filed suit against the federal government ot stop the proposed cutoff on April 1.

'With the new quality control regulation, however, we are abandoning our partnership with the states in this matter by insisting that the states bear cost of irregular payments," Hastings said in his Dec. 22 memo.

"Under the circumstances, the basis for HEW's continuing to dictate a state's every eligibility-related action is extremely weak as a matter of fairness, no matter what our strictly legal aughority in this regard may be."

Hastings then advised the HEW Secretary that the court, in his opinion "would listen sympathetically to a state which sought to enjoin the quality control sanctions."

"In all likelihood .... such success as we have on the merits of that question will not occur until after a temporary injunction has delayed and completely disrupted the whole quality control stategy," he wrote when speakingof the possibility of convincing the court that federal welfare regulations do not contribute to high rates of welfare ineligibility and over payment.

An injunction, secured by one of the states, would cost the 'federal government hundred of millions of dollars," Hasting said.

Instead, he recommended that HEW implement several changes in the federal regulations that govern eligibility.

"A predtermined position against changes, even if not disclosed, would make a mockery of our professed willingness to consider alternatives," he said.

He suggested the government stop usingthe "simplified method" of determining eligibility and instead a more complicated method which involves more than just taking a recipient's word that he is eligible.

In their suit, the 34 states claim that because federal regulations already limit the amount of investigating they can do of welfare applicants, it's unfair for HEW to penalize them for adhering to the agency's own regulations.

OEO Critic to head Dept.

WASHINGTON (NBNS)-- Word is imminent that Howard Phillips, a critic of activist poverty programs such as the Legal Services agency, will soon be named by President Nixon to head the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Civil rights forces are concerned that Phillips, 31, has been chosen to preside over the burial of the program initiated by the late President Lyndon Johnson in his celebrated "War on Poverty." Phillips, who joined OEO in 1969, was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress in 1970.

MOST WELFARE FAMILIES IN CITIES

Washington (NBNS) --- Most of the nation's welfare families now live in big cities, according to the third annual report to the Congress by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Noting welfare families are getting smaller, younger and generally better educated, the report notes that increasingly more of them are going to the big cities where there are fewer jobs and even fewer job opportunities.

The median age of welfare mothers has dropped sharply from 35 to 31 in the last 10 years, the report says. At the same time, a greater percentage of the welfare mothers are now high school graduates, and more of them are needed in their homes to care for their children.

The cities, while seemingly offering a haven to typical welfare mother in essence provide fewer suitable jobs. Unfortunately, the number of welfare mothers with marketable job skills is extremely low as well.

In 1971, there were more mothers on the welfare rolls than in 1969, while the number of children in the family has grown smaller. The percentage of children under the age of 6 has also increased slightly.

"It is clear that many AFDC (aid to families with dependent children) families still face formidable barriers to self-sufficiency," the report said.

In the last reported year, 1971, it was reported, that 48 per cent of the welfare recipients were white, 43 percent were black, 8 per cent were from other races and one per cent was unknown.

More than 75 per cent of the welfare families are now livingin big cities, the report says.

Maintaining recent history, 80 per cent of all-AFDC families are headed by a single parent, who is usually the mother. Some 28 per cent of fathers of children receiving funds under the aid to families with dependent children program were not married to the mother.

The report also pointed out the trend of mothers raising illegitimate children.

"There are indications, moreover, that rearing an illegitimate child is less of a stigma than it once was. Girls with children born out of wedlock, especially white girls, are more inclined than before to keep the child than to place it for adoption."

SALES NOT FOR SICKLE CELL

The Seattle Metropolitan Sickle Cell Program is not soliciting funds through candy sales. Tyna Hooks educational consultant for the program, and a member of the citizen's advisory Task Force, today warned the public against buying candy from teams of young boys and girls who are reported to be using the name of the Sickle Cell program.

"We do not have any solicitors out selling candy to raise funds for our organization," Ms. Hooks said. "This rip-off, being perpetuated on a community of sincere, concerned citizens, is a disservice to the program and to individuals who might otherwise benefit from legitimately collected donations.

Nixon Rights Nixon doesn't consult with Blacks, Farmer says

Washington (NBNS) -- Civil rights leader James Farmer, who served for two years as Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare under President Nixon, says that the President doesn't consult blacks and he pointed a rather frustrating term under the chief executive.

Farmer, former director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said the man who the President consults on black affairs in the White House is a white man, Leonard Garment. He said the President has no contacts with the black community or its leaders.

He also said that he had had serious disagreements with the administration which made it increasingly difficult to remain working for President Nixon.

Although he steadfastly refused to critizize the Preident when he left the Administration two years ago, Farmer was far more candid on the television program, "Black on White," moderated by Clifford Alexander, former chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under President Johnson.

Alexander asked him whom the President was consulting on black affairs in the black community.

"Oh, I am not aware of anyone that he his consulting," Farmer replied rather tersely.

"I don't think we have any brokers in the situation seems that my good friend Lou Garment is the broker in this situation.

"Now, he's a fine person, no, I'm not mocking him at all, but I think there ought to be some blacks, too, with whom the President consults.

"And while Len Garment is a very symphathetic and emphatic person, he can not speak for blacks because he is not (black)."

Farmer also discounted reports that the President had consulted him on black affairs while he was at HEW.

"He might have consulted me, but he didn't," Farmer said. "He didn't consult me, and I wan't concered about his not having consulted me. I was concerned about the nature of (his) appointments, the nominations.

MINORITY TRAINEES HIRED PERMANENTLY

Half the participants in a unique on-the-job training program for minorities jointly administered by the Seattle Engineering Department, Model City, the Urban League, and three private engineering firms were taken on permanently by their firms at the conclusion of the program last month, City Engineer, Robert J. Gulino, announced today.

Eighteen minority trainees in positions ranging from Project Engineer to Secretary completed the program which began in March 1971. Nine are continuing as regular employees of the firms where they trained. Four others took jobs elsewhere, three trainees decided on full-time schooling while only four had not been hired by the end of the program.

The trainees worked at three engineering firms, Jordan/Mathis Associates; Systems Architects/Engineers; and More, Wallace & Kennedy, all of which had been retained by the city to design portions of a sanitary sewer--storm water separation project in the East Model Neighborhood.

Elwood W. Ott, Principal Design Engineer, who coordinated the program for the Engineering Department, called the training effort an unqualified success. "The project has more than met the goals and objectives set out at the beginning," Ott said.

Model City provided $180,000 over two years which paid the trainees' salaries and one-half their school expenses. Trainees generally spent part of the time on the job and part in classrooms at the University of Washington, Seattle Central Community College, or Seattle University. Several of those employed as a result of the affirmative action training program will also go part-time to school and expect to receive engineering degrees within a few quarters.

Ott said the Engineering Department was pleased with the trainees' success. He indicated that the program could be expanded if additional financing were found.

The Seattle Urban League helped recruit trainees who were required to be residents of the Model Neighborhood.

Symphony orchestra wants members orchestra

This orchestra is a Recreational-Educational orchestra and open to all musicians who enjoy the pursuit of serious music.

The Director, Erich Koker, well-known violinist, teacher and conductor, was born and educated in Seattle, receiving his Masters Degree from the University of Washinton. He is a member of three National Academic Honoraries. His studies have included work with Dr. Basil Cameron, Karl Krueger, former conductor of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra, and Nathan Abas, the celebrated concert violinist.

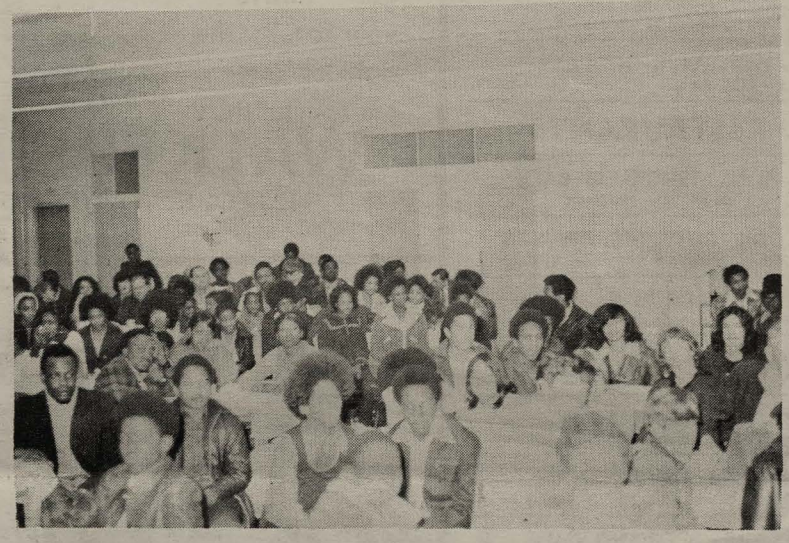

Members include professional and retired people, housewives, talented school students and all other members of society devoted to fine symphonic music. People of this civic, non-professional symphonic group come from all parts of Seattle to weekly rehearsals the entire year.

The orchestra was organized by a group of Seattle citizens who recognized the need for the existence of such an organization to act as a recreational outlet for non-professional musicians, and is sponsored by the Recreational Division of the Seattle Department of Parks and Recreation.

This organization exists for those who enjoy playing symphonic music and for those who listen. Its members will have the opportunity to develop standard orchestral repertoire as well as the challenge and exercise of sight-reading-sessions.

Yesler seeks new name

The Central Area community is being asked to suggest a name for the community center at East Yesler Way and 17th Avenue South.

Since it was opened last summer, the center has been known as the Yesler Facility. However, center directors now are seeking a new name that more reflects the ethic ideals of the central community.

Persons may make nominations for a new name by writing them out and placing them in a box at the receptionist's desk at the center.

LIFE....A COMMENTARY ON AN ART EXHIBIT

by Kelly-Marie Berry

Life is who we are/who we think we are/where we are/where we've been/how we got there and why. It's where we think we are going and how we plan to get there. It's what we are doing and all the things that we want and what we've never gotten because of.....

Life is for most Black folks, the day to day reality of living in an alienated racist society with built-in strictures with which one must grapple constantly.

Life is all those unspoken things that go on inside one's headand findexpression perhaps in a silent smile/the timbre of one's voice/ the way one walks-small things that shape one's style.

These are just a few of my thoughts which were stimulated by a portrait of a woman by artist Lorraine Sando entitled, "Life is." A simple yet elegant rendering in gray-white charcoal and cont-crayon set on dark ground/ it reminds me of a face from a Langston Hughes poem or the legy of early Trane showing us the warmth/depth and the mastery of the Coltrane yet to come. There is music, poetry and so much life/ understanding of life in Ms. Sando's work. Her paintings have a way of jumping off their canvases right into one's life stream causing a fussion of one's past with one's present.

Life bursts into exotic plummage and suggests the foliage of another place, perhaps the Carribbean in two acrylics by E. R. James. The bold fabric designs of Etta Norwood also present striking illusions in still another idiom: decorative cloth.

Other artists included in this show are Paul Dusenbury, Beth Parsel and Milt Simons.

To sum up my feelings about this exhibit is to say, here is a group of enterprising artists in our community who definitely have their heads together, for when you stop to think about it, the credit union is probably one of the most frequented institutions in the Black community and provides the artists with a captive audience. Unlike banks, heavily trafficed with with a constant whirrr of momentum, the average customer can spend a bit more time per visit in the credit union andthe environment at CAFCU tends to be friendlier and aesthetically more pleasant than the average bank; that is, as far as an art exhibit is concerned. The irony here is that art is exhibited where money is transacted and you may or may not feel the impact of the art. Ideally art is exhibited in thegallery/gallery--the museum/gallery ---the cultural center/gallery, but since we do not have any of these kinds of institutions in the Central0 District, we do the best with what we have to bring art closer to its sources/ to make it more accessible to Black people.

Plaudits to the artists for their productivity and for their idea and thanks to Mrs. Elizabeth Wells, director of the Central Federal Credit Union, for encouraging this project which shows us how functional community institutions can/should be.
