"Amanda"

*Called up a friend today, whom has had a very serious illness for quite some time.
She's been on my mind.*

Most of the time her voice is bright, cheerful and strong. She's been knowing the LORD all along.

She's been on my mind.

We've talked about things big and small. Oh! we've talked about it all.

She's been on my mind.

Have you ever met someone whom instantly you know they're special?

She just has to be a passenger on God's vessel.

She's been on my mind.

You see, I think we are all traveling on our own individual paths, hopefully doing work for HIM. It's up to us to make it bright or dim.

When Amanda sought out the LORD, she made a great find.

She's been on my mind.

And at times now you can tell, maybe the time to call on her may be getting shorter, but that's ok.

She's still been on my mind.

The LORD has her tucked close to HIS bosom. There isn't a thing I can do, even if I had all the wisdom

...except, ...pray, ...and keep HER on my mind!

The Obituary

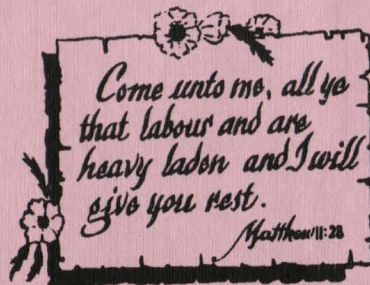

"MANDY," the baby child of the late Strowder and Ollie Mack Ross, was born October 5, 1927 in Rosharon, Texas. She later changed her name to Amanda.

Mandy's education started in the public school system in Rosharon, then upon moving to Houston, Texas, she continued her education, graduating from Jack Yates High School.

Amanda confessed Christ at an early age and was baptized at the Elizion Baptist Church by the late Rev. John Griffin. She continued to serve the Lord in many areas of ministry, especially in her passion of ushering.

She met and married Donald H. Pines on August 17, 1946. Shortly thereafter in 1951, they moved to Seattle, Washington. She was a faithful and hard working employee, retiring from The Boeing Company in 1995 due to illness.

Amanda left this earthly home for her heavenly home, leaving behind her husband of 50 years, Donald Pines; son, Leroy of Seattle; two daughters, Alesia of Bellevue, Washington and Bridgett of Seattle; five siblings, Willie Mae Brown, Rebecca Ross, Frank and James Ross, and Kenneth Charles Ross, all of Houston, Texas (Oliver Ross and Mary Lee Pickett have preceded her in death); seven grandchildren, Shauna, DeMichael, Angela, Anthony, Michael, Nikita, and Nicholas, all of Seattle; Godchildren, Stephen Donaldson and Faye Rogers; and a host of great-grandchildren, nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.
