RANDOLPH CARTER INDUSTRIAL WORKSHOP EXPANDS SERVICES TO HANDICAPPED

The Randolph Carter Industrial Workshop, 2100 East Spruce Street, is designed to serve the mentally and physically handicapped youth. Servicing mainly the residents of the Central area, it offers supervised training in employable skills, vocational rehabilitation, sheltered employment, job opportunities, placement and followup.

The Agency, which began operation in January 1970, has increased its services to youth from nine student/workers to 38 since November 16, 1972, when Mr. Oran L. Webb became Executive Director.

Randolph Carter solicits work contracts from Seattle area businesses and manufacturing firms, and from the work secured provides training and paid employment to the mentally and physically handicapped.

Since November 1972, Mr. Webb has been successful in obtaining a variety of contracts which permitted expansion from one skill, machine metal work, to seven additional areas of training and production: sorting, assembling, coating, inspecting, packaging and crating, painting and welding.

Mr. Webb stated "These increased areas of training will enable us to attract many more of the more than 1,000 physically and mentally handicapped youth in our area and train them for the world of work."

"I am pleased with our growth so far" he continued "but we still have a long way to go. We need more staff, especially in the counselor area, so that we can accelerate our recruitment program and our assistance to the trainees in their many areas of need."

Some remodeling and expansion of RCIW facilities has already been completed, and considerable more is in progress to accommodate the increased number of contracts from companies.

Companies who are currently supporting Randolph Carter with work contracts are Kenworth, Bethlehem Steel, Beebe Brothers, Towaco Screw Machine, G & M Nameplate, Pacific Northwest Bell, Weyerhaeuser, City of Seattle and Western Electric Company.

Other firms that have participated in providing the real life learning/earning opportunity to Randolph Carter include the University of Washington, ARCO, Jay Davidner, Modern Mfg., Harborview, Model Cities, Leckenby, Seattle First Bank, Ross Laboratory, Richfield Oil, John Fluke Mfg., Central Components, Hind-quarter Restaurant, Ideal Cement, K & R Productions, Boeing, Q C Corporation, O. Public Notice

State legislators raised their voices in criticism of Nixon's recent revenue sharing proposals this week in Olympia.

The Senate Local Government Committee, chaired by Senator George Fleming (Democrat) of Seattle, voted to send a memorandum to the Senate Rules Committee, requesting direction as to the degree the committee could become involved in influencing federal legislation and guidelines in revenue sharing.

Legislators voiced their concern with the federal government's seeming intention of by-passing state government in awarding grants to local communities.

Effective programs, which have been the outgrowth of the model cities act are now in serious jeopardy, said Fleming. The state will be faced with these social and health service demands and yet had no involvement when the programs were initiated.

The Local Government Committee will hold a hearing on revenue sharing before the legislative session in September.

Magee trial date June 29

SAN JOSE, Calif. A date of June 29 was set for the second trial of San Quentin convict Russell Magee, 34, accused of kidnapping a judge during an escape attempt that left four persons dead.

Magee is to be retried on a single charge of kidnap arising from the gunbattle in the Marin County Civic Center in August, 1970. Superior Judge Harold Haley and three escaping convicts were killed.

Magee was originally charged with conspiracy, murder and kidnap, along with black militant Angela Davis, who police said furnished guns used in the escape attempt.

His first trial on the charges ended in a hung jury.

The second trial is in the Santa Clara county criminal legal building, in the same courtroom where Miss Davis was acquitted nearly one year ago.

Rustin hits Watergate

TEL AVIV —Black Leader Bayard Rustin said that no one will be able to govern the United States until the truth is told about the Watergate affair.

Rustin, director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute in New York City, told an International Economics Conference that Americans "are only seeing the tip of the iceberg" in the Watergate scandal. "No movement in America has been spared by it."

"The Nixon who swore to take crime out of the streets did exactly that and put it all in the White House."

Calling Watergate an ugly affair, Rustin said good can come of it if U.S. society becomes more responsive and if congress takes the opportunity to reassert itself.

"It can become America's greatest opportunity when and if the total truth is told," he said. "No one will be able to govern in the United States until the truth about Watergate is told."
