The Brotherhood- Seattle's South Based Crisis Clinic

If life isn't exactly shaping up to what you'd like it to be because of an emotional, interpersonal, or drug related problem, there's an organization located in South Seattle willing to listen and help. The agency is known as The Brotherhood.

The Brotherhood is Seattle's only south based crisis clinic designed to be there when you need it. It's open 24 hours seven days a week, so you can call any one of three telephone crisis lines at anytime. Phone counselors work around the clock specially trained to deal with people and the problems they encounter through life. Also, The Brotherhood has an emergency mobile aid unit which is utilized on calls requiring on-the-spot intervention.

Since 1971, The Brotherhood has been serving thousands of south Seattle residents in efforts to help them cope with specific problems, or refer them to somebody who can. The Brotherhood is a non-profit organization so there is no fee for their services, and everything is kept strictly confidential.

If you have a problem that really needs to be talked out, why not call The Brotherhood for a second point of view. Also, The Brotherhood is currently accepting volunteer applications for persons interested in the crisis intervention field. Reach out and give The Brotherhood a call at 723-1881. The Brotherhood is located at 7621 Rainier Avenue South.
