

FROM THE TWO YARDLINE...

by Joe Jones

Last week we took a peep at Husky prospects in general, now let's get specific and analyze the component parts of the 1962 Husky machinery. All but one of the last year's six leading ground gainers will be back. Kermit Jorgensen, last year's third leading ground gainer and first-string quarterback, graduated, leaving the quarterback spot the big question mark facing the Huskies. However, Bill Doublas, a very capable sophomore along with Pete Ohler should fill in the quarterback slot reasonably well. Ralph Winters up from the Frosh, Steve Maddocks, a 1961 redshirt, and Gary Price, a jaycee transfer will help out considerably.

When Coach Jim Owens was asked about the quarterback situation in a recent interview, he commented, "I'm just as confident of the personnel there as at any other position. We have real good potential and quarterbacking should give us no more trouble than any other spot."

One of the better manned spots in the backfield is the left half-back slot. We have such "swifties" as Charlie Mitchell, one of the fastest in Washington history, All-Coast and a player who is bound to come into consideration for national honors. Mitchell has compiled a 5.4 rushing average in his two-year stint. Nat Whitmyer, known to the football public as "Herky Jerky", lost a lot of ground to Bill Siler in his bid for the left half spot. An injured knee side-lined him in spring drills. When asked how he would do in the coming campaign, Nat quirked, "I was born ready, and I was born to play football, this coming season is what I've been living for." Nat, though born with a set of "bowlegs", has shown Husky football followers many times how valuable his bowlegs are in the Husky attack. Nat will certainly be a strong contender for top billing this fall.

We've taken a peep at the left-halfback spots and on the strength of his hard training all summer, we've chosen Nat Whitmyer our "Tan Terror" of the week.

33rd District Demos

Open Headquarters

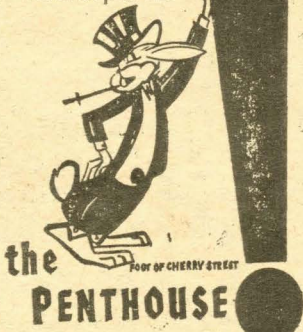

The 33rd District Democrats announced this week the opening of their campaign headquarters at 3800 Rainier Avenue. The new headquarters will be handy for all Rainier Valley, Mount Baker and Beacon Hill residents. Its location is on the corner next to the new Food Giant and shoppers will find it convenient in contacting Democrats for literature and political information.

The headquarters will be under the joint direction of Cliff Stone, District Chairman and Bill Chatalas, 33rd District Club President and one of the 33rd District legislators.

Seattle Urban League Represented At National Conference

Seattle will be represented at the National Urban League Conference in Grand Rapids, Michigan, Sept. 1 through Sept. 5 by Edwin T. Pratt Executive Secretary and James E. Johnson, Industrial Relations Secretary of the local staff and J. Jerome Farris of the Board.

The theme of the Conference is "Meeting The Changing Challenge of Tomorrow."

Highlights of this year's Conference will be the presentation of Task Force reports which will form the basis for the discussions on such problems and issues as automation and retraining of workers; school drop-outs and youth motivation; the adjustment of newcomers into urban areas; services to senior citizens; urban renewal; housing and open occupancy; adoption and foster home services.
