New Teachers

For Our Schools

We hear of Seattle's teachers being drawn to California and to other states, but did you know that Seattle also attracts a great many teachers from out of state? Among the teachers in the Seattle schools last year were numbered college graduates from all states of the Union excepting Alaska and Delaware.

As is to be expected, Washington colleges provide the bulk of teachers for Seattle Public Schools... about 70% of them. Of this 70%, about half are graduates of the University of Washington, with Seattle Pacific and Seattle University providing about 10% each.
