FUNERAL HELD FOR PHYSICIAN, CITY PIONEER

Veteran Journalist Dies at Local Hospital Following Brief Illness; Interment in Glenwood.

Funeral services for Dr. Samuel O. Young, 78, well known Houston journalist and war veteran, who died at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday at St. Joseph's Infirmary, were held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dorris Young Brown, 2512 Baldwin Street, with Rev. T. J. Windham officiating. Burial was in Glenwood Cemetery.

Born here January 1, 1848, Dr. Young was said to be Houston's oldest native born citizen, though for about 20 years of his life he was a resident of Galveston. There he served as managing editor of the Galveston News and later as secretary of the Galveston Cotton Exchange.

At the age of 16 he joined the Confederate army at Houston and served with Hood's Fifth Texas Brigade. He was an enthusiastic member of the Veteran Light Guard Association and had written a history of the Light Guard which is soon to be published.

After returning from the war, he entered Washington and Lee University and graduated from that institution. He later took a degree in medicine at the New Orleans Medical College, returned to Houston and began active practice.

Following the death of his mother, however, he gave up medicine and joined with other Houstonians in founding the Houston Post. Since that time he has been actively interested in writing. His sketches of well-known Houstonians appeared in The Chronicle and for some time he edited the "Twenty Years Ago in Houston" column of The Chronicle. The sketches of Houstonians have been published in book form.

Besides the "Thumbnail History of Houston", there were a number of other historical writings from his pen. At the time of his death he was engaged in the writing of a history in collaboration with Sam Dixon.

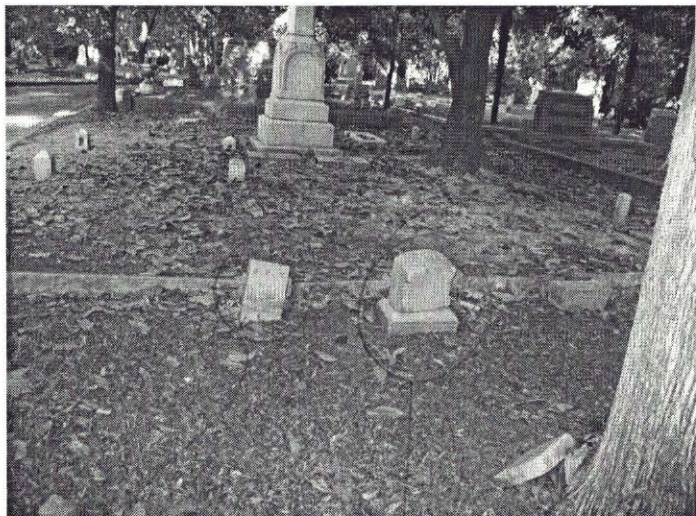

Among other distinctions he enjoyed was that of being the only living charter member of the Texas Medical Association.

Doles, Mrs. Browne, another daughter, Mrs. O'Brien Stevens, 1408 Wheeler Street, and one son, Gale B. Young of St. Louis, and three grandchildren survive him. Pallbearers at the funeral were to be C. F. Stevens, R. C. Tucker, C. B. Gillespie, Gaspar De George, E. J. Overly and J. E. Browne.

DR. S. O. Young, 78, died at St. Joseph's Infirmary Tuesday at 4:15 p.m. Burial Wednesday at 2 p.m. at Glenwood Cemetery. Rev. T. J. Windham officiating. Casket in care of J. E. Brown.

Work on the markers on the Young lot (see map) is essentially complete. Broken pieces of marble are stacked near the back of the lot, and I hope to get them moved to the shop area for future use in other repair projects.

When you have time, would you look at the lot and decide what we can do to cover the bare dirt. We want to cheapest alternative.

Thanks.
