It does look like a cradle, and the Shook marker is the only thing anywhere in the vicinity that it matches. I don't carry a probe. I'll put it on the list for future investigation.

That sure looks like a cradle to me. It matches the rough cut headstone. Did you probe for more of it? I also think that has become a cenotaph. Our database reads:

"Headstone here, but appears to be reinterred at Forest Park, 11/04/1958"

They would not have been able to place that headstone in FP, so left it behind. The cradle may similarly be a PLO (part left over), and tossed haphazardly into the hole at the time of disinterment. (A source of spare parts perhaps?)
