

THE INN AT RANCHO SANTA FE

RANCHO SANTA FE, CALIFORNIA

CANNON LORIMER, MANAGER

One of the Cottages

The Inn at Rancho Santa Fe, once La Morada, and later the Hacienda Hotel, re-opens on June twenty-seventh, under new management and with a new atmosphere. The grounds have been enlarged, tennis, roque and badminton courts have been added, the Inn has been remodeled, re-decorated and re-furnished throughout.

Those who have known Rancho Santa Fe in the past will find the Inn more attractive than ever. Those who visit it for the first time will find comfort among beautiful surroundings; and sports of every character. The golf course has a national reputation, the bridle paths extend for miles, and the beach at Del Mar is one of the best on the Pacific Coast.

The Patio

Rancho Santa Fe enjoys as fine a year 'round climate as can be found anywhere. The warm summer days are tempered by the trade winds from the ocean, and the nights are always cool. Its green valley is surrounded by range on range of hills, ensuring day-long sunshine, for they are just high enough to serve as an effective barrier to the fogs which sometimes visit the coastline. In winter months the temperature drops only a few degrees.

Rancho Santa Fe, five miles inland, may be easily reached from Solana Beach, or up the valley of the San Dieguito River from Del Mar. Cars from the Inn meet guests arriving by train at Del Mar and those arriving by air at the airport in San Diego, the southern terminus of Western Air Lines.

The Inn at Rancho Santa Fe invites you to come after June twenty-seventh and experience for yourself the hospitality it has to offer.
