GROWING UP IN RANCHO SANTA FE

The children in Rancho Santa Fe are very fortunate. We live in a green, peaceful and quiet community. We have many activities in which we can participate. A few of these are tennis, golf, soccer and baseball.

The Inn is well known and is a delightful place to stay.

We have an abundance of wildlife. Everything from quail to bobcats. At night the music in the air is a chorus of coyote howling and owls hooting. Every now and then a frog joins the chorus.

Anytime during the day when you look to the sky, you most likely will see a hawk or two soaring through the clouds.

A symbol of Rancho Santa Fe is the beautiful eucalyptus tree. It towers high above the Ranch homes giving seclusion and beauty.

One of my favorite things about Rancho are all the beautiful horses. To wake up in the morning and see the colts and horses running around makes my morning much brighter. I love to go riding here and there are many excellent riding trails throughout the Ranch. We also have a lovely riding club that has several outstanding horse shows a year.

I love Rancho Santa Fe and I hope the population growth doesn't affect it. Many people in our community do not realize how fortunate we all are. There is no place in the whole world I would rather live than Rancho Santa Fe!
