The Beginning

1900—Mrs. O. J. Hodge, chairman of State Committee on Historic Sites and chairman of Historic Sites Committee, Western Reserve Chapter reports:

That graves of soldiers in the war of the Revolution are the only historic sites in Ohio, which have a true Revolutionary significance and which therefore are the duties of the D. A. R. to care for.

1901—First report on Revolutionary graves at State Conference.

1902—Mrs. Gertrude Van R. Wickham reports:

Ohio has Revolutionary Graves and most of them neglected, thereby arousing the Daughters to a sense of responsibility about marking the resting places of those early fathers who fell in the cause of freedom.

Committee on Revolutionary Soldiers Graves, which found in the beginning 67 heretofore unknown graves in Western Reserve and has now discovered and rescued from oblivion 129 additional ones, making a total of 196 in our territory.

1906—Mrs. Charles H. Smith reports: Four Revolutionary Graves marked.

1908—Mrs. Hattie J. Cowing reports:

The name of the Revolutionary soldier, the inscription on his tombstone, where it is located and his military service.

A Circular Letter

Cleveland, July 27th, 1906

The Western Reserve Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution are desirous of marking the graves of the Revolutionary soldiers buried in Cuyahoga County with a bronze marker indicating that the one who sleeps below was a Revolutionary soldier.

I write to ask your permission to place on the grave of your Revolutionary ancestor Adonijah Edwards a bronze marker that the passer by may know that a Revolutionary soldier sleeps there.

Yours truly,

MRS. C. H. SMITH, chairman,
Committee Revolutionary Soldiers

Fife and drum.

10:30 A. M. ERIE STREET CEMETERY

Mrs. Wickham read the war service of Jabez Brainard.

Mrs. Avery received the marker.

Mrs. Smith placed the flag on the grave.

3:30 P. M. LAKE VIEW CEMETERY

When placing the marker on the grave of Ahaimaaz Sherwin, Mrs. Charles H. Smith said:

"In the name of Western Reserve Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, I present this marker as a token of love and esteem to perpetuate the memory of one who fought so faithfully to preserve home and country; also the Betsy Ross flag, the only one he knew and revered with its thirteen stars instead of the forty-five bright and shining ones we honor today. And so we dedicate these to the reverent and devout memory of the historic past."

EPITAPHS

COPIED BY MRS. TEEMER, NORTH RIDGEFIELD, LORAIN CO, OHIO

"An honest man is the noblest work of God."

"Blessed are those that die in peace for there rest shall be perpetual"

"For me to live in Christ to die is gain"

"I would not live always away from my God
Away from yon Heaven, that blissful abode
where the river, of pleasure flows
And the noon tide of glory eternally reigns."

"My life is like the summer rose
That opens to the morning sky
But ere the shades of evening close
Is scattered on the ground to die
The winds bewail the leafless tree
But none alas shall sigh for me."

"Behold and see as you pass by
As you are now so once was I
As I am now so you must be Prepare for death and follow me."

"Vain is the studied phrase
the poise of words
to speak thy loss."

"No Sculptured breath
Nor Monumental stone
Can add to me when I
Am dead and gone."

"The body must be good for worms
To mingle with its parent clay
Thus spent until God returns
To dwell with Christ in endless day."

"Long is the Life that Answers
Lifes great end."

"Our father calls us to his arms
And willingly we go
With cheerfulness we bid farewell
To every thing below."

"With heavenly weapons I have fought
The battles of the Lord
Finished my course and kept the faith
And wait the sure reward."

"My grass is run
My grave you see
Prepare for death
And follow me."

MARYLAND CHURCH YARD

"The world is a city of crooked streets
Death is a market place where all men meet
If life was a merchandise which all could buy
The rich would live and the poor would die."

EDGARTOWN, MARTHA'S VINEYARD

"Mr. Joseph Dunham died March 11, 1796, aged 55 years. During the seven years of the Revolutionary War with our mother country, he was employed in conveying corn from the west to feed the starving people of this place and our sister island and was so fortunate as to escape the enemy unmolested."

HISTORIC SITES

BY MRS. COWING

On Windemere Hill at East Cleveland, on property now owned (1908) by Mrs. Sarah K. Bolton but originally owned by Timothy Doan who purchased it from the Connecticut Land Company is an old well, which is now curbed and enclosed in the old fashioned manner with its "iron bound bucket" suspended by a chain.

Years ago this well was celebrated for its pure sparkling water and was fed by twelve springs.

The Indians quenched their thirst at this fountain in the wilderness; and Uncle John Doan, son of Timothy, while playing with the little Indian children would moisten his childish lips with the refreshing draughts in the cool shades of the forest.

* * *

The only Revolutionary event in Ohio was when Gen. Edward Hand made a trip to Salt Springs near Niles, O. during the Revolution and had a small engagement with the Indians and then returned to Fort McIntosh, Beaver, Pa.

Indian trails were well beaten paths, which had existed from time immemorial leading from one distant point of the country to another. One led from Buffalo along the lake shore to Detroit.

Another from the Ohio River, by way of the "portage" as it was called, to the mouth of the Cuyahoga River. Then connected at Cleveland, where the river was crossed by a ferry established by the Indians. In this way the principal trading posts erected by the pioneers with its facilities of securing an important commercial intercourse with those distant points of trade.

This ferry was situated on the west side of the river, opposite St. Clair street. At this point a trail led one across the marshy ground up the hill past the old log trading house, where there were springs of water, to an opening in the forest, near the crossing of Pearl and Detroit streets.

The trail continued thence westerly to Rocky River and Sandusky. Another one, less frequented, led off northerly up the river to the old French trading post, where Magerine was found in 1786 near Brighton and thence near the river bank to Tinker's Creek and probably to the old portage path.

A less frequented trail existed from the Indian village of Iawas (Tawas) or Ottawas and Mingoes at Tinker's Creek by a shorter route, direct to the crossing of the Cuyahoga at the "Standing Stone" near Kent.

Western Reserve Chapter, May 30, Decoration Day 1908, the committee placed flags on the Revolutionary soldiers' graves.

The committee was fortunate in being present at the ceremony of Chief Jac-O-Sot by the Indians of the Sacs and Fox tribes, in Erie Street Cemetery. The services were conducted by two Chiefs, brave, stalwart, keen, intelligent educated men.

While the services were in progress i. e., the burning of corn, and other eatables on the grave, the intoning of prayers and firing of weapons—a little girl stepped forward and placed the stars and stripes at the foot of Chief Jac-O-Sots grave. Chief Thunderwater, the more prominent chief, inquired the little girl's name. At the conclusion of the services Chief Thunderwater mounted on his horse, called for Irene Foster. After much persistence he found the little miss and insisted that she ride in one of the carriages, which contained the prominent Indian women, in all their finery.
