FOREWORD...

In the pages of this annual publication are reflected the present conditions of a turbulent world. Here are to be found the optimism of youth and the bitterness of reality. The art work depicts the chaos which is enveloping and threatening to destroy our civilization. Education is represented as the bulwark which stands against the encroaching darkness of malicious ignorance. In this struggle, truth will eventually predominate and will serve as the means by which order will be restored to those places where pandemonium now reigns.

OUR

Teachers, young, confident, courageous, and free from partisanship and provincialism will take their places in the front ranks. There they will step out and lead humanity to the greater fields of endeavor, where life will be rich with promises of a better tomorrow and where men will at last recognize their brotherhood and will work in harmony toward the ideal life.

The College Campus

A campus is an exciting place. It presents a constantly changing panorama that is as intriguing to the stranger as it is to those who are a part of it. The grounds, the buildings, and the moving figures merge to form, at this college, a never dull picture which will be carried to other fields in the minds of all the students.

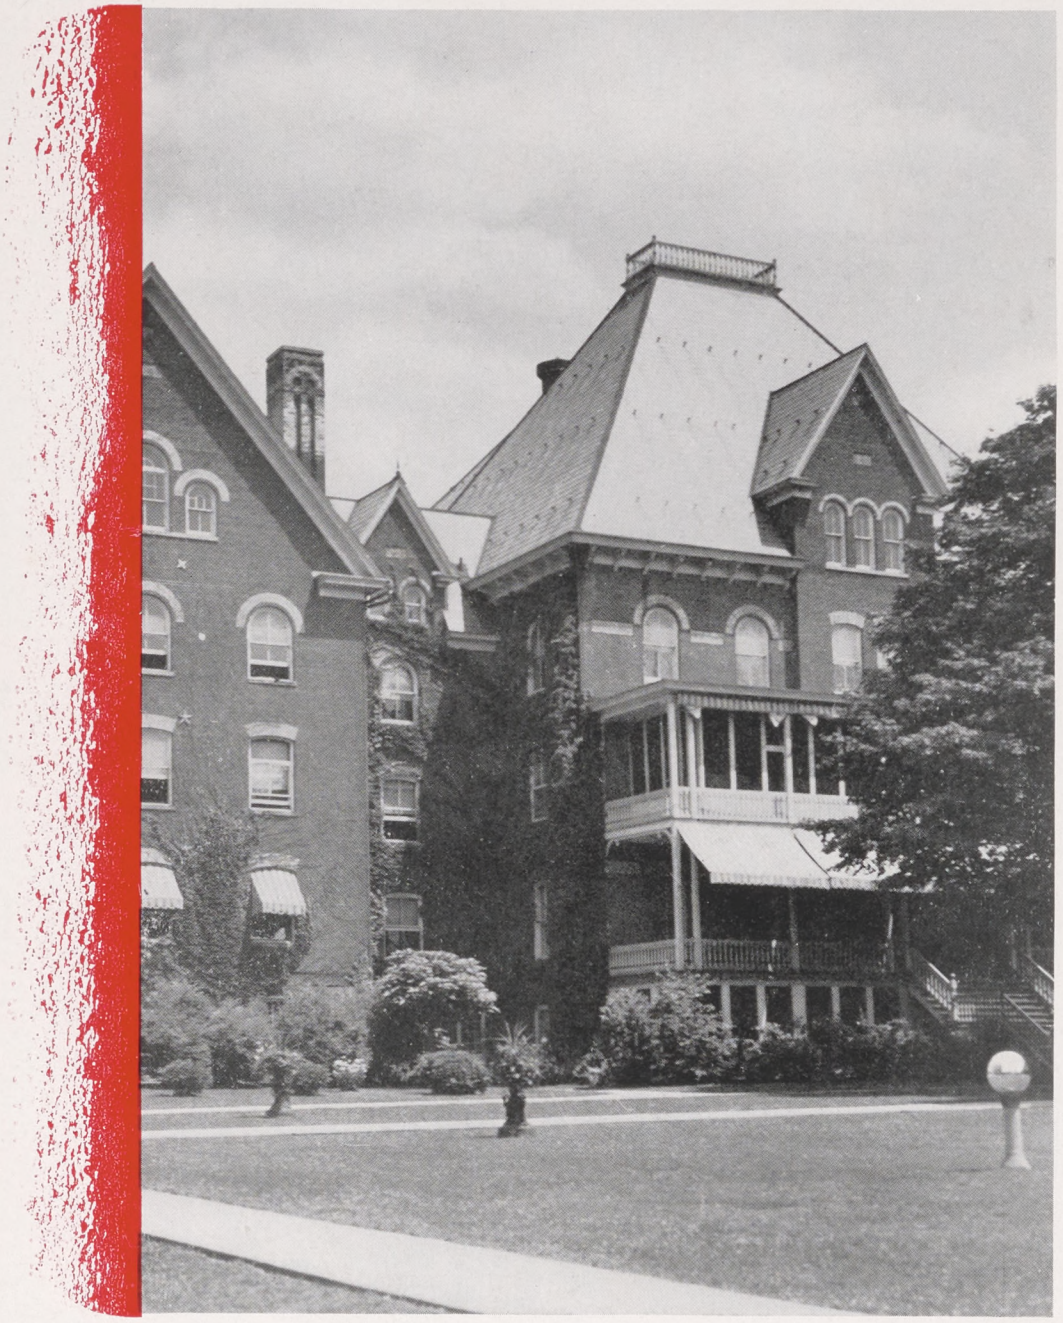

They see it as it is on the first day of college life. A noisy group is gathered about the steps of Stroud Hall. Every one hails every one else. There is constant hand-shaking and much senseless laughter. The trees which fringe the walk are green, but darkened with summer's dust. The buildings are soaked with sun. Late summer flowers burn brightly. There is an unused appearance about the grass. No paths have been worn across corners. The campus is filled with strange places, strange people, strange rooms.

But the first day passes quickly. The summer wanes. Now the leaves are painted bright with autumn's pigments. They fall ankle-deep on the lawns. A "football" feeling pervades the air. The front steps are no longer filled with loungers. All have found niches for themselves; there is work to do. At intervals great groups collect about "Julia," the campus statue, to watch the antics of the Freshmen who are being initiated to college life. Saturday afternoons are filled with games.

Then, one day, the railings go up on the steps of Stroud Hall: winter has arrived. The last leaf has fallen; the trees, once so beautiful, have become skeletons. Children from the training school sear carpets of snow with large figures which resemble pies cut into several servings. The campus has a settled look.

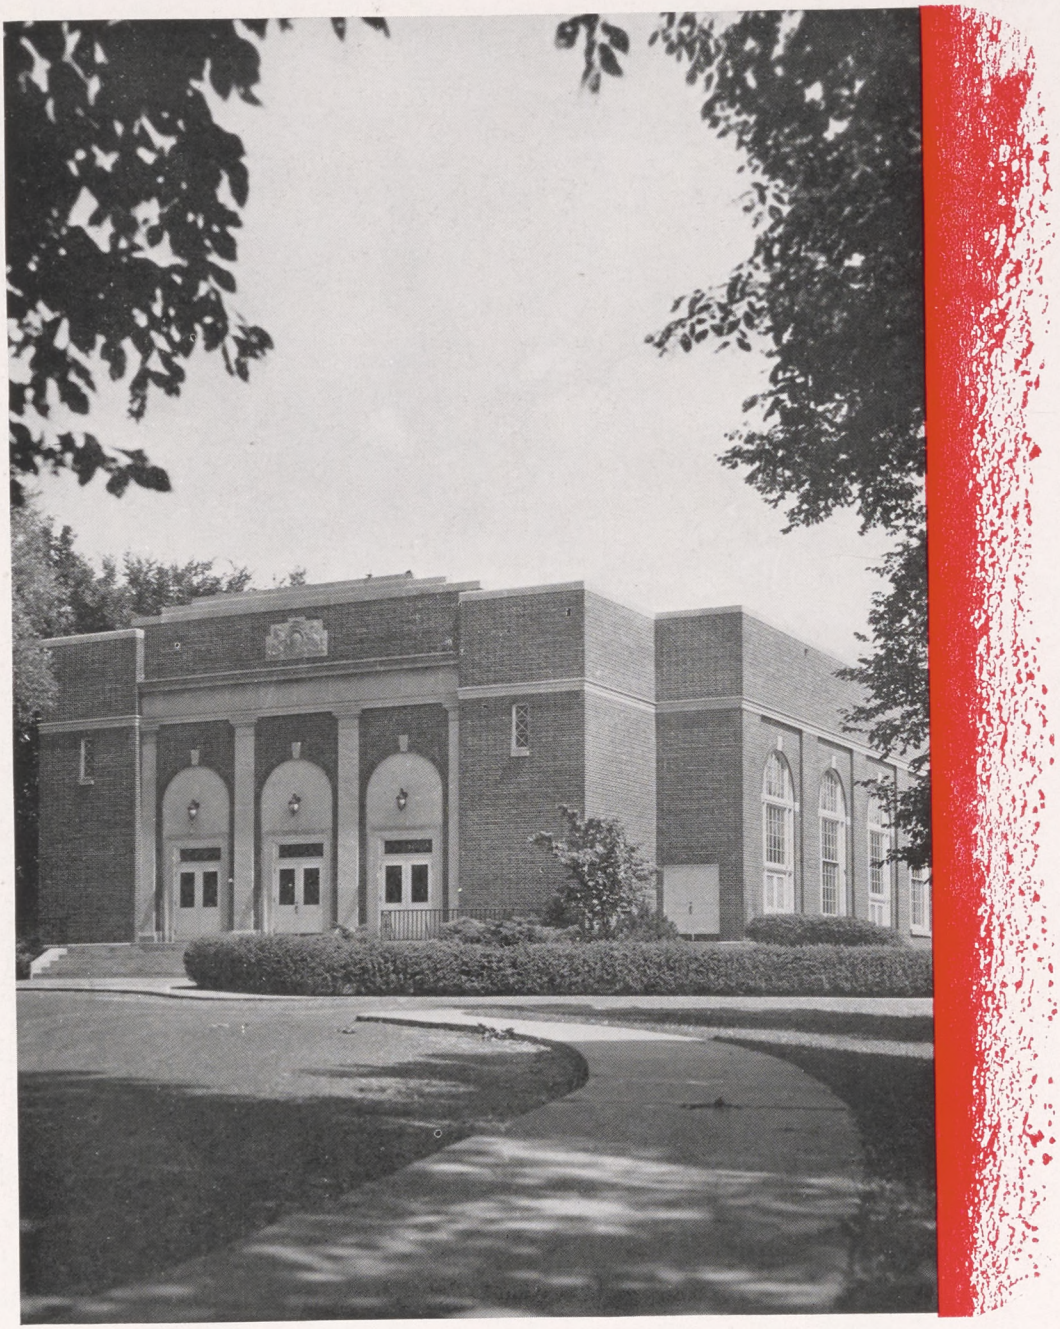

Spring, however, comes at last. Tiny buds, miraculously green and shining, break out on the trees. Forsythia makes golden patches on the brown lawn. A small unnoticed tree steps forth in brilliant rosy blossoms outside the windows of the boys' dormitory. Groups walk forth in the tender evenings. The first white clothes are worn.

Each year the whole metamorphosis is made, and with each change the mellowness of years helps to make our campus more appealing. New buildings will only change its face for a while, and will bring with them the freshness that is always associated with youth. In time they, too, will become an intrinsic part of it. The campus will live here when we are gone, a constantly changing panorama, yet a panorama that follows the same patterns as it does today.

ADMINISTRATION

DR. AND MRS. T. T. ALLEN

The President and his wife have been influential in the education of every teacher who is to leave this campus in 1938. By precept and example they have demonstrated the worthiness of a kindred and gracious personality. On behalf of the entire student body, THE STROUD extends best wishes.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The 1938 Stroud very properly puts emphasis upon the extra-class (sometimes called extra-curricular) activities of the College. It is, therefore, not inappropriate to consider the basic philosophy underlying our extra-class activity program.

We should remember then, that one of the critical issues in education grows out of the major conflict which is swiftly reaching the stage of a crisis throughout the world. This conflict is between the two principles of social organization. One principle is ancient, supposedly discredited. The other is modern, but it faces new tests. In a word, the conflict is between dictatorship and democracy. No educational institution can ignore this issue. The question, then, which immediately confronts us is: "What can education do to undergird American Democracy."

In seeking to answer this question emphasis in our State Teachers College has been put upon the administration of the institution in accordance with fundamental democratic principles. This is particularly true in connection with our activity program. Through this organization students come to appreciate that, in student government through democratically elected representatives, there is less of ruling and more of sacrifical effort. Through actual experience they learn the fundamental principles of democracy. Experience shows that there is much greater interest in the various extra-class activities when these activities are determined by the students themselves and the activities reflect definitely the desires of the students. In fact, experience shows that students can be relied upon to give much more careful consideration to various activities than would be possible under a dictatorial administration.

It is true that students sometimes make mistakes, but it is equally true that students will not learn democratic procedures and thus be able to contribute to a democratic form of government unless they are educated in the democratic way of living. This is the basic philosophy which underlies our activity program. It is my hope that our Teachers College with its new building program may put increasingly more emphasis upon a democratic way of living and thus make its contribution to the solution of problems growing out of the conflict which is now raging around the world between democracy and dictatorship.

DEANS' MESSAGES

To the Class of 1938:

Your college days here are all but over. Your record has been written. Whether this record is one of satisfying achievement or of intermittent successes only, it cannot be altered. Like the spoken word or the spent arrow, it is not to be recalled.

To go forth from college halls satisfied with past results, however splendid, would be a grave error. Let your future course be set with an unflagging determination to represent the rugged adventurer in his assaults upon the jungle of ignorance, selfishness, and intolerance. If your stay here has provided the elemental basis for such future striving, the time has not been spent in vain.

May your struggle be valiant and your successes glorious.

C. J. Naegle
Dean of Instruction

"A man's happiness consists of the number and the intensity of his appreciations!"

May your lives be rich in appreciations—of music, of art, of literature, and of personalities—and may you achieve the inner satisfactions that neither wealth nor knowledge alone can give. May your college days have furnished the background and have opened the gates to ever increasing opportunities for continued enjoyment of "the good, the true, and the beautiful."

Ruth L. Jones
Dean of Women

Someone has said that there are obiously two educations. One teaches us how to make a living; the other how to live.

My wish has always been that while at college you may have availed yourselves of all of the physical, mental, social and character development possible which has been offered you through a variety of experiences, and that as a result, you have not only been learning how to make a living as prospective teachers, but also how to live most and serve humanity best.

Good luck to you as you leave college and face the greater problems, responsibilities and opportunities which lie ahead in a turbulent world.

THE FACULTY

We recognize and justly feel that our faculty is the equal of any of its type in the State. Carefully selected on the basis of each member's fitness for his particular work, the staff is made up of competent instructors who have had a varied teaching experience preceded by broad and thorough training. It has developed into a body which is outstanding in the field of education and has become an important asset to education in the Commonwealth.

As the captain of a ship gives full credit to the skill of the helmsman for safely guiding the vessel to port, so do we, as students, give our full appreciation to the faculty for safely guiding our personalities to graduation. We came here a medley of ambitions and desires cancelling one another in unreconciled hostility. We had no coordinating goal, no master purpose to which we would readily sacrifice every other desire of the heart. We were an unweeded graden of desires, not knowing which plant to nourish, and which to discourage and let die. Unity was beyond us. In that period of transition we were in dire need of a guide, and fortunately, we found that thoughtful supervision in the faculty. Chosen expressly for their knowledge and experience, they were more than capable in advising and helping us to choose our goal and plot our course.

Let us review briefly, the efficiency of our faculty in the various phases of campus life. Turning to our Health Education field, we find the supervision employed here more than commendable. The leader of this certain group has as his job the administration of the entire mechanism that works as a unit to put out the best all around Health Education teacher. Special instruction is given in the cultivation of a background in the science of gymnastics which even, in some instances, develops into an art. Varying from that we again might glance into our gymnasium, the laboratory of the department, and see a group being informed as to the graceful, aesthetic, and even humorous movements of dancing. Leaving the gymnasium for the athletic field we can note the seasonal athletic activities in full sway. Again the faculty leaders come to the fore in the regalia and with the title of "coach." Pointers are given, plays are worked out, and friendly instructional advice is passed from coach to player in order that the player some day will pass it on in his role as coach.

Turning into another road we see more of these amiable leaders doing as fine a job establishing that which makes a better final product in the Kindergarten-Primary, Intermediate and Secondary fields of education. The congenial atmosphere of the classroom is the medium used by our faculty to transmit the cultural, as well as the practical values of knowledge. Surely as we approach the point at which we step out of this school of learning into a great school in which bare realism is the instructor, we can better appreciate the qualities and characteristics our teachers possess.

In our extensive and varied extra-curricular program, we again find the guiding influence of the faculty. Correcting our ever-deviating continuity of aim with suggestions, they point out the fallacies of our untried judgment and lead the way to cooperative thought and action. In the various activity groups we glimpse the true character and personality of the teachers which comes through intimacy and informality. We perceive and appreciate the versatility of these guides who can supplement their theoretical classroom discourses with practical extra-curricular results.

THE FACULTY

We feel the encouraging hand of the faculty in the classroom and in extra-curricular groups, but these are not the only phases of campus life. In our social gatherings, we look up to the faculty for they set the social standard that we adopt, follow, and in turn transmit to our friends.

It is impossible to outline the academic and social advantages we have derived from our teachers for our contacts with them have incited inner changes which do not produce immediate results. They have taught us the pleasure of self-control, the necessity to resist immediate desires and stimuli, to rid ourselves of negativity and weakness, and take on positive firmness—character. With their unfailing determination to make us personalities, capable of initiative and realistic thinking, they have given us a practical philosophy of life and a philosophy of education. As aspiring teachers, it is our duty to apply their principles to our prospective students.

We like education because they have presented it to us in our youth for what it is. After their skillful introduction to real education, we know it to be an ennobling intimacy with the contribution of great men, leading to a comprehension and appreciation of the world.

ALMA MATER

Alma Mater, thy halls so majestically stand
On the hill overlooking the town;
With thy vine-covered walls and thy maple trees trim,
We treasure thy smile and thy frown.
A mystical charm binds thy children to thee,
Each incoming class feels its spell;
Those who leave thee regretful thy beauties recall,
Which deep in their memories dwell.

Dear College, thy honor is safe in their hands,
Their deeds by thy precepts are led;
Thy students and athletes fresh victories each year
Shall win for the Black and Red.
We'll strive with our might thy fond name to exalt.
We'll sacrifice self to they aim;
And united in hand and in heart we'll achieve
Only deeds that shall add to thy fame.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

Mr. Retrospection, a very dear friend of all historians, offered one day to take me on a journey. I accepted without hesitation and, forgetting all the worries and duties of the present, we sped back over the years. When the clouds of time cleared away, I discovered that we were approaching a broad gateway, beyond which a row of stately maples towered above a walk leading to a group of buildings far in the background. I immediately recognized it as the campus of E.S.S.T.C. and turned inquiringly toward my guide. He explained that it was September of 1934, and that the rather bewildered looking humans I saw hurrying hither and yon were the entering freshmen. As he informed me that our visit was to be four years in length, we settled down to a life of observation.

Closer inspection and acquaintance proved the freshmen to be a very distinguished and intelligent group, several of whom had been high school salutatorians and valedictorians. It was a splendid group whose activities we viewed from all angles. We stood near the steps and listened while they chanted the school yells, and shall we say, "murdered" the college songs; we heard the commotion coincident to the "paddlings" administered by those dreaded, but helpful, upperclassmen; we were present when they elected their first class officers—Ted Balcomb, David Heffner, Alice McHugh, and Herbert Luff—and their adviser, Dr. Heiss; and we even tripped the "light fantastic" at the gala affair held in the Penn Stroud near the close of their initial college year.

Time flies swiftly. We were soon greeting the same group returning to the campus as sophisticated sophomores. We followed them as they wended their way through the Deans' offices, past the table in Oakes Hall, into the registration rooms, thence to the business office, and finally to class meeting and listened as they elected Ed. Williams, Willard Gilham, Edna Reeves, and Norman Hopp to guide them through the year. As dances seemed to be the specialty, we joined the happy throng as they went through the line and over to the Gym the night of the Annual Reception; as they laughed and whirled merrily in the dining room at Christmas Time; as they rode in taxies through the rain to the Armory for the Guest Dance; and finally to Pocono Manor for the crowning event of the year—the Sophomore Prom.

We next met the class of '38 as Jolly Juniors, guided by James Loughney, John Carr, Evelyn Curtis, and Anthony Blysak. Individual members took the spotlight this year, but in the mad rush we glimpsed only a few. Ted Balcomb carried the banner of '38 as president of the Student Senate; Tom Capraro held it high at debates; Clarissa Treat carried it to the Eastern States Association of Professional Schools in New York, where she was a guest speaker; Tony Matistic carried it fearlessly on the night of his fateful injury; it waved in full gale over all the athletic teams; it towered high over the head of Helen Williams and others in dramatics; and it waved in rhythm to the music of the band and orchestra.

With the same gallant spirit we saw it carried into and through the senior year by Tom Capraro, John Carr, Eleanor Hamill, and Tony Blysak, as class officers, and Dr. Lorenz as class adviser. During the year we overheard quite a controversy about standard college rings; we noted the beams of pleasure which crossed the faces of the thirty-one of the class who gained the coveted privilege of optional class attendance; we glimpsed the nineteen favored members who were invited to join Kappa Delta Pi; we held the silver shovel used on Ground Breaking Day; and we heard the anxious words of student teachers just home from Junior High. Many prominent seniors shared the spotlight. We might mention James Loughney, president of the Senate; Peggy Fueglein and Marion Thomas, co-presidents of the Women's Executive Council; Ted Balcomb, the editor of the Stroud; and Charles Bacal, business manager of this yearbook. My apologies to all of the class of '38 whom I have not mentioned, for Mr. Retrospection has reminded me that the past is fast changing into the present, and the present soon reaches into the future. May that future hold all the joy and success you deserve!

Too soon our journey is ended;
Too swiftly the years have flown;
But may this record recall for us
The happiness here we have known.

STATE STANDARD LIMITED CERTIFICATE GROUP

All the graduate students who leave this campus in May will receive degrees, but fifty-two of the present enrollment will be prepared to enter the classrooms of the elementary grades as teachers. Those students are from the State Standard Limited Certificate group.

The short duration of their matriculation did not prevent them from entering into the life of the College with a great deal of enthusiasm. Many of them shall be remembered for the active parts they played on the athletic teams, in the extra-curricular clubs, in the student government and in the social sphere. Their absence from the campus shall be poignantly felt by the rest of their classmates who have to continue down the educational road for another two years.

In 1934 the last of the two year graduates received their certificates. Since then the student body has been made up of persons enrolled in one of the four curricula offered at the College. By including in the first two years of work in the elementary curriculum at least six hours of practice teaching, and by meeting certain other requirements of the State Council of Education, a candidate may receive a State Limited Certificate.

These certificates are valid for three years and may be renewed if the individual has satisfactorily completed twelve additional hours of further study and preparation.

By an act of the State Council of Education, people who began their preparation after January 1, 1937 are required to complete three years of professional preparation for teaching.

The following students are candidates for certificates:

The Junior Class

After going through the traditional necessities of embarking upon a college career we patted ourselves on the back and started looking around. We toured the campus and gloried in its beauty, gazing at the statue with admination and finally getting courage enough to sit on the benches encircling the trees and watch the upperclassmen go by. We are a conglomeration of personalities, frightened and bold, contented and discontented, but we were all nervous when suddenly a notice was posted that regulations were on. Expectations were discussed at both male and female "bull sessions." The hazing was all in fun, but we soon learned that there were certain people to avoid when we did not have our "dinks" on. Regulations stimulated good feeling in our case and we came up smiling. Those of us who ran errands and scrubbed the statue with one small size toothbrush will never forget those few months. When the Freshman-Sophomore football game was finally played, one hundred and eighty of us prayed and wished and won.

Dr. F. P. Maguire, who had much contact with the class was selected as our adviser. At the same time we elected our representatives to the Senate and the various activity councils. Those elected were: Senate—Betty Hontz, Edna MacGregor, John Fern and Flore DeCosmo; Athletic Council—Patrick Connors; Social Council—Estelle Steinrich; Entertainment Council—William Lord; Publications Council—Avis Gourley.

In the early part of the second semester we found time to organize and elect our class officers. We chose Paul Kennedy, President; Thomas Blewitt, Vice-President; Loretta Roscoe, Secretary and Arthur Fritzinger, Treasurer. After we became accustomed to the system of election used many of us ran for offices and the freshman class was well represented in all school activities.

The Junior Class

Later on in the year we presented the "Big Broadcast" in the college auditorium. It was an amateur show of the best sort and probably had much to do with our courage to do big things. We held our Freshman Prom at Pocono Manor in the spring and were satisfied to thus end our first year here.

When we came back in the fall to register as sophomores we were accustomed to college life and had fixed in our minds a definite conception of education. Mr. Charles Vibberts agreed to take over the duty of guiding the class and we found in him a capable and pleasant man. Our leaders for this school year were: Mario Grippi, President; Adam Rarig, Vice-President; Marion Rhoads, Secretary and Wilbur Wood, Treasurer.

Our representatives to the councils and senate were also elected. Those chosen were as follows: Senate—Betty Hontz, Claire McCann, Thomas Blewitt and Patrick McNulty; Social Council—Estelle Steinrich; Entertainment Council—William Lord; Publications Council—Avis Gourley; Athletic Council—Elsie Bateman; Cooperative Store Committee—Earl Rohrbach. The class members were particularly prominent in sports during the Sophomore year. The Sophomore Prom at Buck Hill was a fitting climax to a perfect college year.

We are now known as the junior class and it has been a remarkable year for us. One of the highlights of the year was our "Junior Truck Farm" dance which was our project to aid us financially in our preparation for the Junior Prom again to be held at Buck Hill Falls.

We are proud of our leaders and the great things they have done. We are on our way to a pleasant senior year when we will go down in the history of the institution as the Class of '39.

The Sophomore Class

When we, the class of 1940, entered S. T. C. in September, 1936, the upperclassmen did not hesitate to remind us, in a very firm manner, that we were only "Frosh." Yes, we were bewildered. Soon, however, we adjusted ourselves to our environment as best we could under the circumstances. We had seniors to the right of us, juniors to the left of us, and the omnipresent sophomore in all our emotional conflicts. We resolved to repay those upperclassmen for the many moments which made us so unhappy, and which provided them with such glorious entertainment.

Shortly before the Thanksgiving vacation of 1936, we were "met on a great battlefield of that war" with the class of 1939. A soccer game was to be played to test whether our class could long endure those regulations. After the smoke of battle had lifted, we were able to joyously ascertain by the angry features of our worthy opponents that the battle was not fought in vain. "Regulations" were immediately ended. Thus will the class of 1940 go down in the annals of S. T. C. as the first class to emerge victorious in the annual struggle for freedom. We were now able to enter society as free men and not as galley slaves "scourged to our dungeons" or to the Men's Club for a short, and seldom pleasant, session with the Vigilance Committee. Those red and black dinks, black socks, green ties and green arm bands were neatly tucked away in moth balls; they were to be preserved as reminders so that we would be sure "to do unto others as others did unto us!"

In February 1937, we elected our class officers. Daniel Rowan was chosen as our President; William Keller, Vice-President; Allyson Kistler, Secretary, and Frances Purcell, Treasurer. We launched our ship of state and sailed contentedly down the stream of college life.

We decided that a Kiddie Party would provide us ample revenue to begin preparations for our "Prom." In March 1937 the party was held in the gymnasium. Once again those in attendance at the party went back to their childhood. There were "lollypops n'everything." It was a huge success in more ways than one, and, as a result, we established our treasury department.

With eager anticipation, we looked forward to our first college "Prom." We collegians were not prepared to leave the campus for the summer vacation without carrying with us the memories of the finest and most spectacular event of the current social calendar. It is sufficent to say that it fulfilled our every dream.

When the sun began moving toward the southern horizon, we once more migrated to the campus at East Stroudsburg to resume our pursuit of knowledge. Now we were upperclassmen. Our thoughts upon certain subjects during the long summer months had convinced us that Freshman regulations were not so bad after all. The incoming "Frosh" must be put through a rigid period of probation. Surely, they could not enter our community and become one of us if they lacked the proper qualifications. Our courts decided unanimously that they should suffer as we had. "Suffering builds moral fibre" was the slogan of our revenge. The members of the class of 1940 went about their duties as good citizens should, and enforced very rigidly the verdict of our courts; any "Frosh" would vouch the veracity of this statement. Again the familiar apparel of regulations appeared on campus.

The time for the annual Sophomore-Freshman classic had arrived, and once again an inspired freshman class heeded the knock of opportunity. When the battle ended, we had our first taste of defeat. In order to appreciate the sweet, we must taste the bitter.

Members of the class of 1940 have taken a very active part in the extra-curricular activities of the college. In athletics especially have we excelled. Every varsity team has at least one sophomore member. And so we look to the future with a great deal of optimism as our ship of state sails proudly on with Mr. Stephen Roberts as our faculty adviser.

The Freshman Class

Registration day on Wednesday, September 8, 1937, marked the entrance of another band of hopefuls through the portals of State Teachers College, East Stroudsburg, Pa.

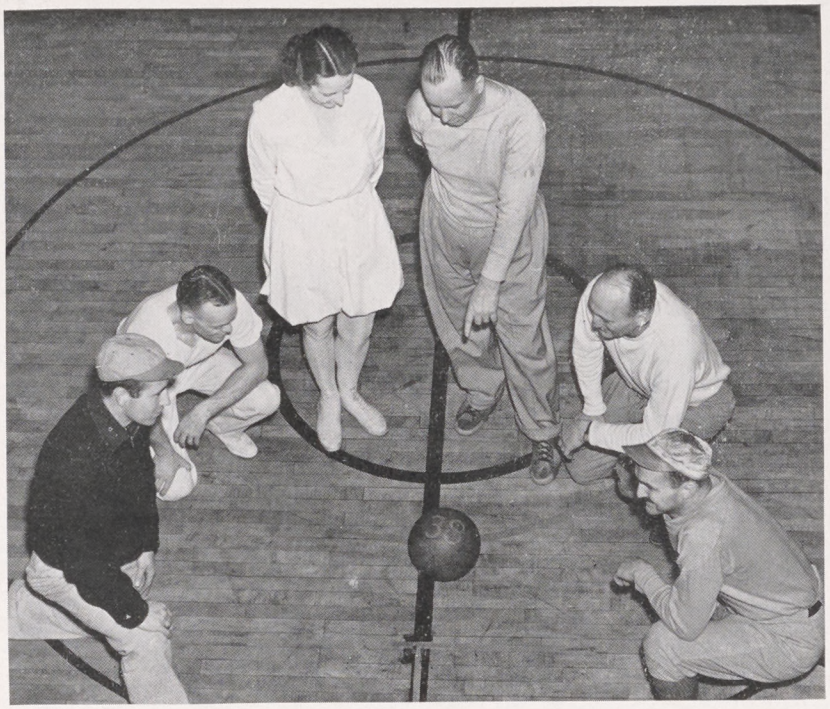

After we had registered and had met our roommates, we discussed different methods of artistically decorating our rooms. Upperclassmen, including the ubiquitous sophomores, began to drop in and offer various mandatory suggestions on how we should conduct ourselves. This was the first intimation of the "regs" which were soon to follow.

The process of becoming acclimated to our scholastic program, finding the right class room, bringing the correct text books, and becoming acquainted with our classmates, was enough to keep any freshman busy and to prevent loneliness.

The men were soon conspicious on the campus by their red dinks and green ties: the women by green bands on their arms. How well do we remember the nights on the front porch, when the men served as entertainers for the amusements of the upperclassmen, and the cry that we heard in our sleep —"Hey Frosh!"

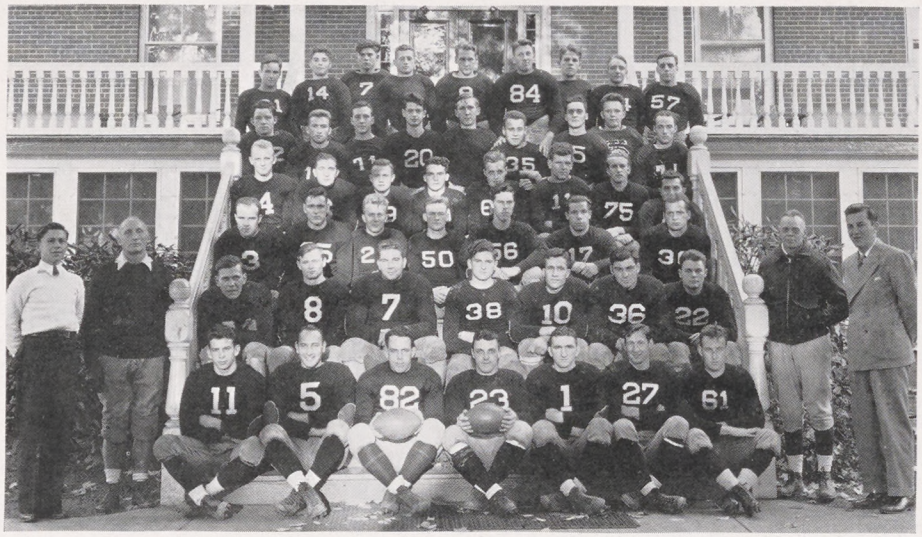

The concentrated hazing week from September 20th to 25th served as a source of "alleviating distortion" to everybody but the freshmen. Nevertheless we took it gracefully, realizing that everything must come to an end. The end of regulations was achieved by our winning from the sophomores a thrilling soccer game by a score of 3 to 2. Imagine the chagrin of the sophomores! They were good sports, however, and wore our dinks and ties to dinner and to the dance that evening.

Varsity Football

The 1937 football aggregation, although beset by injuries and hard luck throughout the entire season, placed upon the gridiron a team that was as scrappy and as spirited as ever toted a pigskin for S. T. C.

With Co-Captains Roland Seiler and John Franklin at the helm, the Lorenzmen showed promise of developing into a championship outfit; fate intervened, however, and the team was showered with an epidemic of injuries that practically paralyzed any previous pennant hopes. The first victim was "Ben" Franklin, out for a month with a spike injury, then came Seiler with a serious dislocated elbow, followed in rapid succession by injuries to "Duke" Reinisch, Joe Johnson, Bill Shannon, and John Shaughnessy.

The first game of the season was with the highly-touted, Springfield outfit. The Warriors held their opponents to one touchdown, and had it not been for the absence of Seiler and Franklin the result might have been different. It was quite evident that without the aid of the two co-captains the offense was weak.

The second contest with Shaughnessy and Pagano leading the attack resulted in a 13-0 victory over Panzer. The touchdowns were made by Keller and Shaughnessy and the conversion by "Hank" Weinzer.

Shippensburg, by interceptions and forward passing, plus an overwhelming weight advantage defeated our boys by a score of 21-0.

Before a large crowd of old "grads" the Trenton "Lions," who were the attraction on the annual gala "Homecoming Day," failed to roar loud enough and were forced into submission to the tune of 13-7. Hontz, a Warrior backfield man, received Would's punt and ran the ball to the Stroudsburg 41 yard marker. A pass, Keller to Pagano, put our team on the Trenton's 30 yard line. Hontz plunged consistently to make the first score. Weinzer missed the kick for the extra point. Trenton's score came after a sensational 54 yard run in the second quarter by Conlon. Then the Keller-Pagano combination sprang into action and a successful pass carried the ball to the Trenton 18 yard marker. Pagano soon after carried the ball over for the final score. Weiss kicked the extra point.

In the next encounter with Keller, Carr, Pagano, and Seiler out with injuries, the local team played Cortland Normal and suffered the worst defeat of the season by the score of 28-0. In this game the playing field was more like a sea of mud and in places water covered the gridiron to the depth of eight inches. The Lorenzmen, handicapped by a decided weight disadvantage, were badly outplayed, Cortland scoring eleven first-downs to two for S. T. C.

Montclair, the next opponent, administered a sound drubbing to our badly battered outfit, scoring tweny-five points while our boys went scoreless.

Mud and bad breaks decided the next game in favor of Bloomsburg, 12-0. Two "bum" breaks, one of them a 98 yard dash for a touchdown by a Bloom backfield man on an intercepted pass, gave the S. T. C. Warriors another reverse decision.

In the last game of the season that was played upon our home field, Stroudsburg dropped another 12-0 decision to a brilliant Mansfield team. Lacking the offensive playing needed to go places, Stroudsburg only once got closer than the 18 yard line. Mansfield on the other hand brought one of the finest backfields that ever thrilled the local fans this season and easily ouplayed our boys.

Varsity Wrestling

Notwithstanding the fact that he was handicapped by lack of material and by a loss of many members through graduation, Coach H. A. Lorenz accomplished wonders by building a competent and spirited team.

With Captain Nasevich, "Caddy" LaBar, Paul Wagner, and Joe Pisano as the nucleus of the 1938 aggregation and with the added strength of Del Evans, Les Arndt, and two frosh, Marsilli and Munowitz the team presented a formidable combination.

Although the first three starts resulted in defeats, the team came back strong and with the indomitable S. T. C. courage took the next four contests.

Varsity Soccer

Building his team around a splendid group of the previous years seasoned veterans and adding a few outstanding recruits to the lineup, Coach Vibberts organized and trained a team equal in ability to any soccer team of past years. The Black and Red Soccer Team, led by Paul Wagner, a member of the "booters" for four years, met and defeated with remarkable precision and harmonious spirit, three very powerful rivals. In the remaining games the varsity club tied one and lost three bitterly contested games.

In the initial game of the season the Warriors, although not yet possessing the fine team work which marked their later games were strong enough to tie the alumni team composed of outstanding players of the past several years. McCullough scored the alumni goal while the varsity point was scored by Tulley on an assist by Snow.

Traveling to Bard College at Annendale, N. Y., the team won their first victory 2-1. Tulley and Doerr scored for the Warriors.

Against West Chester, their next opponent, the Stroudsbug team won 3-2 in a contest distinguished by thrilling team and individual play. While Goalie Rarig prevented by brilliant saves at least a dozen West Chester points, Snow scored two points for Stroudsburg, and Tulley accounted for the third.

Three days later the outfit met Bucknell on our field and playing a masterful game of soccer, downed the Bucknell boys, 2-0. In this game Tulley, after only four minutes of play, kicked the first point past the Bucknell goalie. Then in the second half, Balcomb made a beautiful dribble from mid-field and scored the second point.

In the Rider College game the local boys encountered the first of a three game losing streak. In this game for the first time this season the boys failed to score.

Journeying to Ithaca they again took a trimming by a score of 4-1. Wagner, playing consistently, scored Stroudsburg's only goal.

Again at Cortland, still in a mid-season slump, the team received their third and last defeat of the season. Hard, steady playing was not sufficient, however, to enable the Stroudsburg eleven to stave off a 2-1 loss.

In the final game of the season the Red and Black team revived the spirit that marked their earlier games and easily triumphed over a Panzer team by tallying four points to Panzer's one. The points were well distributed with Wagner, Tulley, Balcomb, and Luff all getting credit for a point.

Varsity Baseball

The Warrior nine, under the newly appointed coach, Stephen Roberts, came through a successful season by netting 8 wins, against 3 losses, and having 2 tie scores.

The outstanding game of the season was the Cortland S. T. C. Nasevich hurled a splendid game for the Warriors, allowing the New York aggregation only 3 hits. There was no scoring in the first two innings of play. In the third chapter, Franklin drove "the pill" for a long ride out into center field and drew up at second base for the first hit of the game. Nasevich, the next man on the batting list, sacrificed which allowed Franklin to advance to third base. Blysak then doubled to deep left-center which easily scored Franklin for the lone run of the game.

The strength of a team lies mainly in its pitching staff. The loss of such veteran hurlers as Roche and Bizousky left Coach Roberts with a green and inexperienced staff, but in the course of the season the pitching of Piestrak, Fennick, Werner and Nasevich developed into a strength which carried the Warriors to a most successful climax.

Freshman Basketball

The Freshman cagers, under Coach Stephen Roberts, came through a most unusual season, undefeated in inter-scholastic competition. In a preliminary game, the Jay-Vee team handed the Frosh their only loss of the entire season. With only a few men turning out for the team, Coach Roberts built up a strong combination which successfully met, among its opponents, two normal schools, one business college, one academy and four strong high school teams.

The record of the team reflects the splendid type of coaching and the high calibre of the athletes on the squad. Any coach that can take a group of players, coming from different systems of coaching, and mold that group into a consistent winner is worthy of a great deal of praise. The boys on the team should receive their share of the honors for their task was just as difficult.

Varsity Basketball

The varsity basketball team of 1937-38, under Coach A. Lester Crapser, came through a very successful season by winning 14 games and losing only 8.

Not only was the season successful from the standpoint of total wins and losses, but of the 22 games played, 13 were won from Teachers Colleges and only 5 lost to the schools in our class. The 1937-38 team was remarkable in view of the fact that Ed Williams was the only letterman from the previous year, and the steady improvement of the inexperienced team as the season advanced was one of the note worthy features of the season. As they pass in review let us note some of the outstanding incidents of the season.

In one of the most thrilling and fastest games of basketball ever played, the veteran Montclair team won at Montclair by a score of 70 to 63. Our boys out-scored the home team in the second half, but the lead piled up by Montclair in the first period while our boys were getting used to the floor, was just a little bit too much to overcome. However, no regrets were caused by the loss of this game because when a team scores 63 points they certainly must play well.

After the loss to Wilson at Washington, our boys were determined to give the Capital City Teachers a basketball lesson when they visited East Stroudsburg. This they succeeded in doing, because instead of losing again by a narrow one point margin, East Stroudsburg beat Wilson by 55 points, the final score being 82-27.

Our varsity team made history in their game at Ithaca by being the first team in our history to win a game on Ithaca's small floor. They not only won a game but they won it from a very seasoned and capable team. It was one of the outstanding games of the season in which an over-time period had to be played before East Stroudsburg won 57-55.

The total points for the season showed East Stroudsburg scored 1117, opponents 888, which meant that they averaged 50.7 points per game for the entire season. Since Dr. Crapser began coaching, twelve years ago, East Stroudsburg basketball teams have played 224 games, winning 106 and losing 64; a yearly average of 13 won and 5 lost per season. In the 224 games the "Warriors" have scored a total of 9,891 points to the opponents' 7,448. The "Warriors" averaged 44.1 points per game to their opponents' 33.2, and in competition with some of the better teams in the East scored more than a point per minute for twelve years.

Tennis

Under the capable supervision of Dr. Lorenz, tennis has continued to increase its popularity with the student body. Captain Ed Christman led his team on the courts 7 times, and the constant drilling and practicing of the various team members came to the forefront when the season ended with five victories and two losses.

Coptain-elect Capraro, though confronted with the loss of Christman, Naegle, Robbins, and Ozenbaugh through graduation, will still have an experienced nucleus to offer Dr. Lorenz in 1938. In this season, the team will meet Shippensburg, Trenton, Montclair, Bloomsburg, Panzer, Upsala, Newark and West Chester. These schools can always be depended upon to present keen competition, and the tennis matches of the coming year should be interesting to the student spectators.

Varsity Track

Coach C. D. Vibberts returned after six years absence and once more took control of the track team for the 1937 season. The team, under his guidance and supervision, had a successful season with two wins, two losses, and a sixth place in the state meet.

The captain for the 1937 year was John Erickson. The honor of the position was given to Jack Homer for the season of '38.

The season opened with a trip to Shippensburg to meet the strong and highly-rated Shippensburg organization. Our boys came home on the short end of a 76-50 score. However, the work of our club did give promise of a brighter future.

After a week's rest Coach Vibberts' men entertained the age-old rivals from Trenton, and outpointed the Trentonmen, 72-54. April 30th saw the Red and Black in Bloomsburg fighting hard for every point but relinquishing the victory to the well-trained Bloom aggregation, 88-38.

The season closed with a rather weak finish when Stroudsburg drew sixth place in the State Teachers College Meet held at Harrisburg.

Individual talent was outstanding in the work of Captain John Erickson, who turned in several beautiful miles; and in John Homer, the dash man. Tulley, a Freshman, ran wild in the 440 yard dash, surprising many a veteran "spike-pusher." McDonnell coasted through the season, seldom being pushed to exert himself on the high-jump. Smith, Focht, Haines, and Kauler, all Freshmen, were consistent point scorers throughout the season.

Varsity Gymnastic Team

The varsity gymnastic team commenced its exhibition season on December 8th, 1937 at Slatington, Pennsylvania as a participant in the dedicatory ceremonies at the opening of the new physical education building of the Slatington High School. A schedule of twenty-seven exhibitions in nineteen different communities ended wth a three-day trip which included exhibitions at Pleasantville and Malverne, New York. Being in New York City at the conclusion of its schedule the team spent the afternoon and evening of its last trip visiting places of interest and attending shows in that great city.

Because of its early engagements the team commenced practice during the first week in October. At the first practice fifty-five young men and women reported to Coach Liljenstein as aspirants for a place on the team. The number of candidates was gradually reduced through voluntary retirement as the season advanced. However, thirty of the original candidates remained with the squad during the entire season. These members made splendid contributions to the team's success. Most of these men and women will remain in college for one or more years and thereby insure a full complement of talented performers for next year's team. The team will lose through graduation only five members; captains Betty Brown and Fred Kaley, and David Reeser, John Custer and Jack James. These members of the squad will be missed but their absence should serve as an inspiration to those who seek to fill their places.

The team was a well balanced combination. Members of the squad who failed to qualify for the team numbers on the program made up for this deficiency by outstanding performances in the individual events on the mats and on the various pieces of apparatus. With another year's experience many of these individual performers will advance in team skills, making possible a greater contribution to the entire program.

Varsity Gymnastic Team

It is rather difficult to measure the success of a non-competitive team except through the audiences which it attracts. From this point of view, the team this year was one of the most successful in the history of gymnastics at this college. The attraction which the team holds may be indicated by the fact that during the season it performed before audiences totaling nearly 17,000 persons. This number exceeds the estimates of previous years by several thousand.

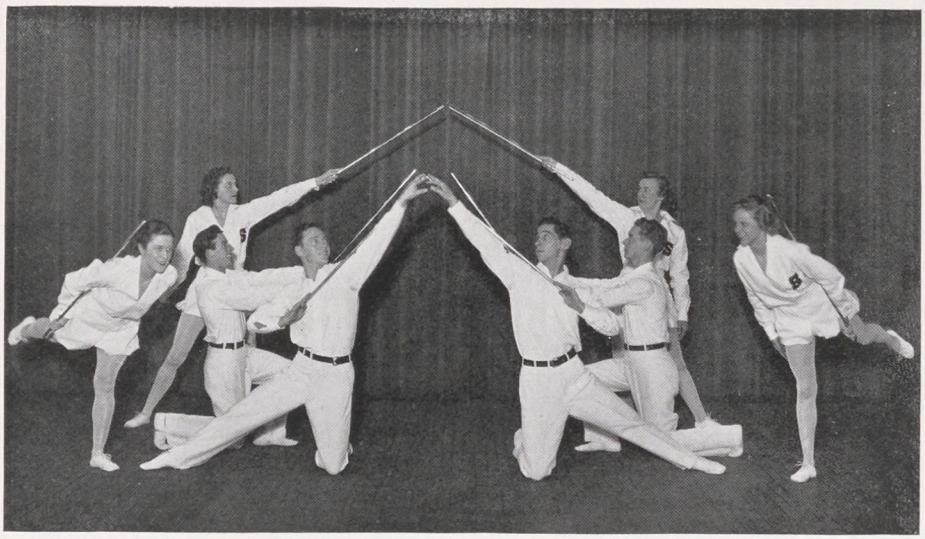

One of the most interesting experiences which the members of the team have is the meeting of friends and alumni in various parts of the state who make the exhibitions a meeting place for the renewal of friendships and for the reestablishment of contacts with their Alma Mater.

The members of the gymnastic team deserve special commendation for the splendid spirit with which they have carried on during a long and strenuous season. Theirs is a season which lasts approximately six months during which time their main interests and efforts, outside of their studies, must be given to the success of their team.

Women's Varsity Basketball

Congratulations are in order to Miss Genevieve Zimbar, our girl's basketball coach for producing such a remarkable record and for spurring her girls on to one of the most successful seasons in years. Led by Eleanor Matchette, who scored a total of 67 points and Elizabeth Putt, who scored a total of 61 points, the team came through with eleven wins and two losses. The biggest game of the season was played at Harrisonburg, Virginia. The Monroe County lassies defeated the Virginia State Teachers College combination for the first time in the history of competition between the two schools. The final score was 19-14. The team showed its ability and decided improvement by winning from Panzer 21-28 after losing to them earlier in the season.

Intra-Mural Program

The program which the Intra-Mural Committee arranges is one of the best balanced of any college in the country. All the students take part in some phase of activity which the committee plans. Individual and team sports are presented.

In the fall, the boys have: field hockey, soccer, and football while the girls enjoy hockey, soccer, and tennis.

The winter program consists of basketball, table tennis, and wrestling for the boys. The girls have table tennis, badminton, and volleyball to round out their winter schedule.

In the spring season the boys play baseball, and pitch horse shoes. The girls play tennis and soft ball.

An entry fee of ten cents is charged for each activity to defray the expense of medals and cups which are presented to the winners of each sport.

Fencing Club

A new touch was added to the campus by the organization of a fencing club which is composed of both men and women students. The men have participated in several matches, one with Easton Night School, and one with Blair Academy. In addition the club sponsored an exhibition by the Lafayette College Fencing Team in foil, epee, and sabre fencing.

A definite program is being planned for next year when the club hopes to resume its activities under the wing of the Athletic Council.

JAMES J. LOUGHNEY ..... PRESIDENT
HERBERT LUFF ..... VICE-PRESIDENT
EDNA REEVES ..... SECRETARY

The Student Senate

The student Senate is that executive body of the Congress upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of government, regulation, and control of all student activities and organizations. It is the unifying force between the many phases of the College Activity Program.

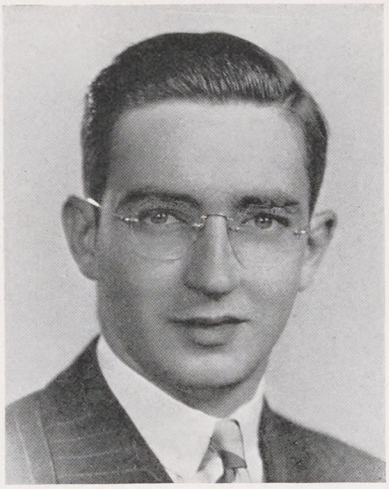

A faculty-student cooperative group was formed at this college in the Fall of 1920. Its members were elected to the Senate by popular vote of the different classes in the ratio of one senator to fifty students or major fraction thereof. After ten years of experimentation, revisions were made.

The Senate provides representation for all classes as well as for the faculty in accordance with our cooperative government plan. It has for members two men and two women from each of the four classes, three faculty members, and a presiding officer, who is the President of the Congress.

All decisions in regard to questions of policy, consistitutionality of a measure, and enforcement of constitutional legislation must be made by the Senate. Another duty of the Senate is to collect the Activity Fee and to allocate the monies of this fee to the activity councils who in turn provide for a great varied program of activities.

Election to the Senate affords great opportunities for practical experience in administration and government and also entails great responsibilities for the student elected to so high an office. Every student on the campus looks toward the Senate for the enforcement of the constitution as it is set up.

Publications Council

The small, solemn group of people which meets quietly Tuesday nights is the Publications Council. The duties of this body are well cut out by the Senate and the constitution, and are related entirely to the various publications of the college. The Stroud Courier comes in for a great deal of its attention. The organization has the power to set the paper's policy and to pass on its editor-in-chief as well as to handle any necessary expenditures.

The Stroud, the campus year-book, also falls under the jurisdiction of the council, but to a smaller extent. All contracts which the year-book committee signs must be passed by the group and its affairs must be found acceptable.

Then there is the college handbook which the Publications Council must compile each year. This is a stereotyped piece of work, for the handbook contains few changes from year to year; its material is largely carried over from book to book. This book is used primarily by students as a reference on the duties of the councils, the constitution, and the various extra-curricular clubs on the campus. The handbook contains the only readily available copies of the college songs and cheers.

The Publications Council is chosen, as are all the councils, by election from the classes in the college, with one exception. The exception is that the editor-in-chief of the Stroud Courier is automatically a representative of his class on the council. This ruling was made because the Stroud Courier is primarily the responsibility of the group, and because only the editor and his adviser know the complete details of the campus periodical.

One adviser of the group changes from year to year, as he is always the adviser of the contemporary Senior Class and adviser of the yearbook. Dr. H. A. Lorenz filled this position during the current year. The other adviser is Dr. Edna L. Rosenkrans, head of the English department.

The Athletic Council

The Athletic Council, as its title indicates, is responsible for the conduct, promotion, and policies of athletics sponsored by the college.

The progress of the athletics conducted by the council is one of the most outstanding to be found in any of the Teachers'Colleges. This council conducts an Athletic program which deals with sixteen teams participating in nine various inter-collegiate sports. In addition the Council puts on a wide intra-mural program including sports for every season of the year. The routine duties of this council, as found in the constitution, include arrangement of athletic schedules, transportation of teams, lodging and meals for various ahletic groups, the selection of officials for contests and the purchase and care of athletic equipment.

More than a hundred athletic events are arranged each year for the student body. In addition the council arranges for the annual home exhibition of the varsity gymnastic team, for the High School Physical Education Championships, several assembly programs, and the annual Athletic Banquet. In conjunction with the intra-mural program, champions in badminton, table tennis, archery, and fencing have demonstrated their skills on this campus. The council is doing the finest kind of a job in handling their program with the limited facilities.

The Social Council

All of the social activities throughout the college year are in charge of the Social Council. It is the purpose and duty of this council to plan for those social functions which will be most enjoyable and beneficial to the whole student body, to set up standards and ideals of social conduct and to provide for the pleasure of the students by a well arranged social calendar.

The principal events on the 1937-1938 social calendar were:

September 9, 1937 ..... Annual College Reception
October 16, 1937 ..... Home-Coming Day
December 21, 1937 ..... Christmas Party
February 12, 1938 ..... Valentine Dance
March 19, 1938 ..... Guest Dance
April 31, 1938 ..... Parents' Day
May 21, 1938 ..... Alumni Day

There are many other events sponsored by the Social Council in conjunction with the Dean of Women's Council and the Men's Executive Council. Included in these social activities are the hall parties, Wednesday night dances, class teas and men's smokers.

The Entertainment Council

The Entertainment Council was organized September, 1933. The members are elected by the students of the college and serve for one year. Its purpose is to supervise and select all forms of entertainment for the student body. This entertainment includes a wide variety of activities; the Friday evening sound pictures in the auditorium; the college band; special holiday programs and stage presentations by professional artists of national reputation.

The council has presented the following program for the enjoyment and appreciation of the student body during the year 1937-38.

Men's Executive Council

The Men's Executive Council of the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College was organized in 1922. As the school at that time was a Normal School, the group was known as the Normal Club. Since the changing of the name of the institution, the name of this representative group of men was changed to the one now in use.

The Council is composed of six men students and an adviser. Two Seniors, two Juniors, one Sophomore and one Freshman are elected by their respective classes to represent them in all of the functions of the Council. The adviser assists and guides these young men in their work.

The foremost duty of the Men's Executive Council is to promote personal and group welfare and to establish and maintain the highest traditions of student relationships. It also guides and governs the campus conduct of the men students. Its social activities consist of a "Fall Smoker," "Hall Parties" during the winter, and a "Spring Frolic" where dormitory and off-campus men students may get together for wholesome fellowship. It also supplies the Men's Club with suitable reading material and provides games for recreational activities.

Women's Executive Council

The Women's Executive Council, formerly known as the Dean of Women's Council, is an organization whose main purpose is to foster a feeling of good fellowship among the women students and to enable them to live together to the best advantage of all concerned. Councillors are elected each spring from a list of eligible candidates, there being three members for each hall in the dormitory and three representatives for each sixty women students living off campus.

These councillors work with the Dean of Women and formulate rules and regulations for the women students of the college. They are responsible for conditions on their respective halls, and they carry out the entire social program for the women students which has included four class teas, hall parties, examination teas, an installation banquet, and other social affairs for both dormitory and day students.

In previous years the Council worked hard to achieve the Quiet Lounge, Kitchenette, and Gay-M Room. It is now the responsibility of councillors to see that these social rooms are properly cared for and used to the best advantage of all.

Kappa Delta Pi

Kappa Delta Pi, an international honor society in education, is represented on the campus by the Gamma Xi chapter, which was established October 17, 1931. The purpose of this society is to encourage high scholastic standards and to recognize outstanding contributions to education.

To be elected to Kappa Delta Pi, students must, during their junior or senior years, rate scholastically in the upper twenty per cent of their class and show evidence of possessing desirable social characteristics.

The biennial convocation of Kappa Delta Pi was held in Atlantic City from February 28 to March 2, 1938. At one of the meetings Dr. John Dewey was the guest speaker. Forty-six states and one hundred thirteen chapters were represented. Thomas Capraro and Dorothy Shinn were the representatives of Gamma Xi chapter.

THELMA BOX	SECRETARY
JAMES MORGAN	TREASURER
MISS DELLA C. WILSON	FACULTY ADVISER

The Nomad Club was organized in 1936 with Miss Wilson as faculty adviser. The primary aim of the club is to provide an opportunity for students who are interested in geography and travel to visit local industries and points of interest nearby, to read and discuss travel books, and to have reports from people who have traveled.

This year the members of the club hiked to the limestone quarry at North Water Gap and to the fire tower at Delaware Water Gap. They also motored to Crystal Cave in Berks County, Pennsylvania.

Besides these activities, the club invites persons who have traveled to speak to the members. Among the interesting speakers this year were: Dr. Naegle, who gave an illustrated talk about his trip to the meeting of the Rotary International at Nice, France, and visits to England, Switzerland and Germany. Miss Wilson, who had leave of absence for travel spent the summer in South and East Africa. She showed moving pictures of the places she had visited. Frank Smith, one of the Seniors, also gave a very vivid description of the Wyckoff trip to the West Indies.

In addition to carrying out this varied program, the club purchases a book on travel for the library each year.

Art Club

The college Art Club is an organization of those students who are either talented or interested in some phase of art. By working together in a congenial group they are given ample opportunity to develop their talents.

For the past several semesters the Poster Club has been combined with the Art Club because of the close relationship between the two groups. However, the two groups work separately.

To satisfy the diverse interests of its members, the activities of the club are varied. The program includes fine lettering, sketching from nature, still life painting, and decoration. While the meetings are devoted almost entirely to working, a few of them are given over to reports on art subjects which concern the group.

A number of times the Art Club has assisted other groups on the campus by the making of posters and by giving aid with decorations.

This year the club brought to the college two exhibitions which were set up in the conference room in Stroud Hall. The first of these, held in December, was composed of the year's best lithographs and etchings lent by the Association of American Artists. The second, held in February, was an exhibition of Japanese prints, lent by Shima and Company of New York. Both proved to be very popular with the Students and the townspeople alike. A number of sales were made, the proceeds of which the Club is putting into a fund for the purchase of a painting by Cullen Yates, N. A., well-known resident of Monroe County.

The College Band

Previous to 1935, the band was organized by the music department, but in May, 1935, an amendment to the constitution of the College Activity Program was made, whereby the Entertainment Council was assigned the responsilibity for its organization and maintenance. Dr. R. vander Bie was appointed faculty adviser and director.

Last year, the privilege of awarding distinctive letters to the members of the band to be given in accordance with requirements established by this organization was approved by the Council.

This year the band has played at football games, in assembly and at the opening exercises for the new building project. The band also accompanied the gym and basketball teams to Panzer College and Long Island University.

The Choral Club

The college musical organization known as the Choral Club was organized by Miss Helen Morse in 1931. However, in 1934, Miss Florence Carpenter, the present head of the music department, succeeded her and has taken over the work started by the former faculty member.

The Choral Club is one of the largest as well as one of the most active of the organizations on the campus. Its activities are chiefly confined to the first semester, during which time it presents an annual Christmas program.

Within the club are several smaller musical groups such as the A Capella Choir, the Male Chorus, the Women's Chorus and the Male Quartet. This latter group displays its ability on such occasions as Home-Coming Day, Armistice Day, Parents' Day, and Mid-Year Commencement as well as at various off-campus functions.

Although the Choral Club is a first-semester organization its membership comprises the principal source of talent for the annual musical Extravaganza which is produced in the Spring. Since its debut seven years ago, this club has scored many outstanding successes in the "Chimes of Normandy," "Mikado," "Little Nelly Kelly," and the three very popular "Musical Extravaganzas."

The College Dance Orchestra

The College Dance Orchestra is under the sponsorship of the Social Council, and under the supervision of Miss Carpenter, the faculty adviser. The primary function of this group is to furnish the dance rhythms for the weekly dances which are held on the campus.

The great popularity of the orchestra is evident by the big response of the students who turn out for the weekly dance. During the past year, the band had the pleasure of playing for many of the extra-curricular club dances.

The band made great strides by adding color and originality to their music. For the first time in its history, the band had a leader, in the person of John Fern, who did not play in the Kapers himself but added the much needed finesse. New and very attractive band stands have added to the color of the organization.

The rhythm masters made their initial stage appearance when they appeared on the stage of the Sherman theatre during the week of February 28th to March 4th for the benefit of the Senior Class. The orchestra adopted the name of the "Kollege Kampus Kapers," and was under the senior leadership of Paul "Hank" Weinzer.

The College Orchestra, under the leadership of Miss Carpenter, participated in various programs throughout the year. Together with other musical organizations the orchestra contributed to the annual "Christmas Vespers" and the Spring "Extravaganza." In addition to these, the orchestra rendered its services to the programs for Home Coming Day, "The Late Christopher Bean," the commencement programs, and the regular Assembly programs.

Closely associated with the College Orchestra is the Baton Club. The objective of the club is to teach its members to conduct an orchestra or a choral group.

The fundamental techniques of the art are taught and applied to various types of compositions. The members have an opportunity to make a practical application of these techniques by leading the orchestra.

Blue Pencil Club

The Blue Pencil Club has added another year to its score of successful ones. During 1937-38, the club met twice a month, devoting these hours to a study of literature. To develop an appreciation of the best to be found in books and to encourage wide-spread reading, the club presented a variety of programs dealing with all forms of literature, ancient and modern. The members devised and presented the programs for the enjoyment and instuction of the other members.

To further the attainment of the club's objectives, the dues were given over to the purchase of new books, which were added to the already large collection maintained by the club.

This organization extended membership to those students who found keen pleasure in reading and also to those who wished to cultivate this taste. Candidates for extra-curricular credits must have attended all but two meetings a semester and have taken an active part in the programs.

Socially, the Blue Pencil Club is one of most active on the campus. This year, week-ends at Saw Creek Club and frequent parties were featured enjoyments. Dr. Edna Rosenkrans was the club adviser and was hostess to the club on numerous occasions when it met in her apartment. The last meeting of the year took the form of a dinner held in the Colonial Tea-Room in Stroudsburg.

The Clio Society

The Clio Society, founded by Dr. Helen B. Trimble in 1920, is the current events club of our campus.

Being under the supervision of the Department of Social Studies of our college, its main purpose is to stimulate enthusiasm and discussion in current events. Some meetings are devoted to the study of club management and parliamentary procedures.

At bi-weekly meetings, topics chosen by the program committee are presented to the club for discussion by its own members or by guest speakers.

We had enthusiastic discussion of the following topics at the meetings of the Society in 1937-38; The Japanese-Chinese Conflict; the Wagner Labor Act; Labor Organizations' Propaganda; Crime in the United States; Life in Cyprus; Disarmament Question; the Alaskan Salmon Fisheries; and of a stage production dealing with politics: "I'd Rather Be Right Than President."

The Clio Society cordially welcomes all students of our college. The enthusiasm of the discussion is typical of a group of alert and progressive citizens.

Euclidean Club

During the entire ten years of the Euclidean Club's existence at the State Teachers College at East Stroudsburg, it has been under the capable guidance of our adviser, Jonas T. May.

The club is for all those students who are interested in higher mathematics and wish to learn and discuss, in these informal meetings, the interesting and unusual facts which are not ordinarily taught in a class room.

A definite program was planned for each meeting. Every member was given an opportunity to present his contribution of thought or research to the organization. In addition to these programs by the members, several outside speakers addressed the club on some current topic of interest to mathematic students.

The club was conducted in a very amiable manner and was much enjoyed by all the members. Because of the limited number of mathematic students at the college, the members of this club are few. However, all members attended the meetings with remarkable regularity and the enthusiastic spirit of the group was reflected in the splendid programs that were featured.

Le Cercle Francais

Le Cercle Francais which was founded on the campus last fall by the French department for the purpose of developing an interest in France and all of the various phases of French culture, gives to its members an opportunity for speaking and hearing French. The people in the group, who are all intensely interested in this aim, have worked hard to fulfill it.

During the past year the club has left a record of which it may be quite proud. A definite program for each meeting was planned, giving every member an opportunity to take an active part. A greatly varied calendar of events has evolved from the broad scope of interests of the members. French songs and games comprised at least a part of each program. Literary programs, including the reading of poetry, discussion of plays and novels and short biographical sketches of well-known French authors, were given. Some programs were planned and presented by students; others were devoted to outside speakers. Among the latter were Dr. C. J. Naegle who told about his trip to Europe, Mrs. Clara Adams who told about her trip on the Hindenburg and Dr. H. A. Lorenz who told us about his experiences in France during the World War.

One of the most interesting events of the year was a trip to New York City where the students visited the International House, Metropolitan Museum of Art, a French restaurant and two French movies.

There were two social events during the year: a Christmas party and an informal party, at the home of Miss Kistler.

Get-A-Student Club

The Get-A-Student Club is an organization different from all other clubs on the campus. Its primary function is to obtain desirable students for the college. A student may become a member of this club by directly influencing a new student to enter the college. His eligibility is then approved or disapproved by the Dean of Instruction. Upon being voted into membership by the active members, the new member receives an attractive pin and membership card. The Get-A-Student Club is not an extra-curricular organization, as there is no definite time set for meetings and no extra-curricular credit is given.

The Science Club

The Science Club was organized more than a decade ago. Its adviser has always been the head of the Science Department. Dr. Elwood Heiss has served in this capacity during the past two years, with Mr. Stephen Roberts of the Biology Department acting as co-adviser since the beginning of this year.

This student organization has always followed the objectives which were accepted at its inception: to furnish those students majoring in science the opportunity to gain experience in conducting a science club; to develop an interest in current achievements in science; and to make it possible for students to gain experience in the development and execution of scientific projects.

The meetings of this year were held on alternate Thursday evenings, at which time various members of the club took charge of the program by leading the discussion on scientific matter, new and old, in which the club was interested. At other meetings the advisers and outside speakers spoke to the club.

A candidate for membership must have completed at least six credit hours in science. In this way it is believed the members will be better able to engage in the discussions and activities of the organization.

The Typists Club

The Typists Club was organized 1935. Its purpose is (1) to give instruction in elementary and advanced touch typewriting, and (2) to afford opportunity for typewriting services to the college faculty and group organizations.

The club membership is divided into two groups: a beginner's group composed of members who have had no training in typewriting; and an advanced group, whose aim is to improve its skill.

Instruction is given to meet the individual needs of each member.

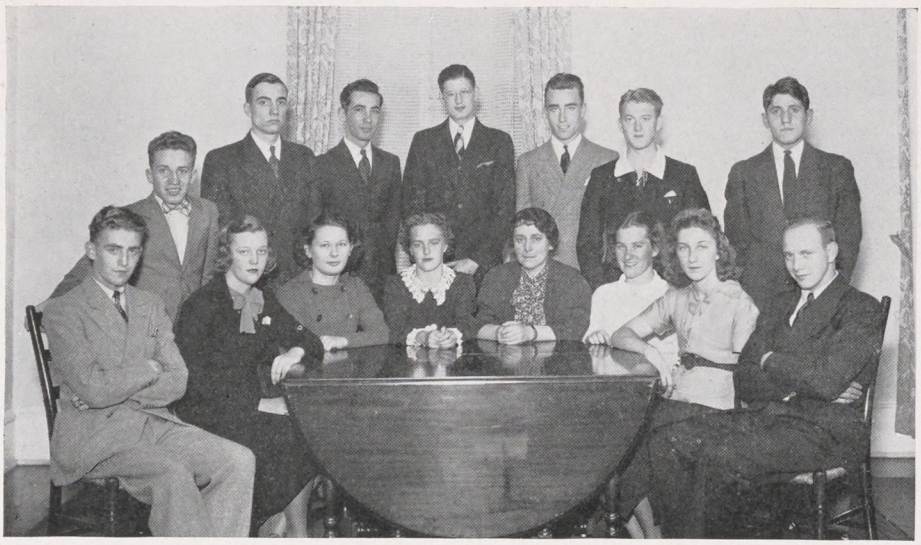

Extra-curricular credit is granted to those members who meet the requirements of the by-laws.

The Stroud Courier

The official journal of the college is published every two weeks by the students under the sponsorship of the Publications Council. Special issues are printed on Parents Day, Alumni Day and other important days on the college calendar.

The Courier has endeavored to serve the student body in the same capacity as a larger daily edition would serve a community, limited of course by its budgetary limitations. News of timely interest is reflected in the editorials which give the students opportunity to express their views on various problems arising on the campus. Two book reviews are presented by the literary editors in each issue.

During the eleven years of its existence, the Stroud Courier has made continuous efforts to maintain its policies in accordance with the latest and best practices in the field of college publications. It has an exchange list through which the staff may get suggestions from other college papers. Each year several members of the staff attend the Columbia Scholastic Press Association convention held in New York and are present at conferences dealing with student publications.

The Stroud Staff

The responsibility of any task must always be assumed by a dependable few. The 1938 Stroud, although containing the record of the entire college, is primarily the product of a relatively small group. The staff has made an effort to select all the good and worthwhile things that will be treasured as memories in the years to come, and to build those things into a book that will grow more precious with the passing of time.

The Varsity "S" Club

In 1926 the lettermen of the college organized the Varsity "S" Club in order that their interests and ideals might be better directed. The original constitution of the club provided for membership of men only but this restriction was removed to permit women to gain membership in the club. The advisability of this change has since proved sound for the letterwomen have made outstanding contributions to the activities of the organization.

Since its founding the Varsity "S" Club has fostered a high standard of personal conduct on the part of our athletes and has encouraged the maintenance of pleasant athletic relationships with the teams of other educational institutions. Our athletes have a fine reputation in the colleges which we meet in athletic contests. The members of the club believe that they have contributed in some degree to this fine reputation.

The Varsity "S" Club is also well known on the campus for its annual production which combines student talent in an entertaining vaudeville show. The money raised in this manner is used to purchase for its senior members a gold key of distinctive design. The key is a recognition by the club for the contributions which such seniors have made to the life of our college.

Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association was organized to promote growth and fellowship among the men students of this campus.

On September 25, 1937 the club was represented at a state-wide conference held at Lock Haven State Teachers College. At Christmas time, as has been the custom, the Y. M. C. A. united with the Y. W. C. A. in a tour about the towns singing Christmas carols. Again at Easter the two clubs united to conduct vesper services on two Lenten Sundays.

The regular meetings are well attended and the club members have had the pleasure of listening to some of the noted speakers of the faculty and also to some of the prominent business men of the town.

Dr. Clarence Dupee, faculty adviser, has done much toward creating an active interest and promoting the growth of this club on the campus.

Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian Association is not merely an extra-curricular club, for it has affiliations with National and International Student Christian Groups. The only requisite to membership is an earnest desire to live Christianly.

The aim in this year's activities has been "Loyalty through Service." We have endeavored to realize this aim in three ways:

1. The packing and distribution of Thanksgiving baskets.
2. The making and giving of blankets and stockings to babies of the Community through the Red Cross at Christmas time.
3. The conducting of our Lenten Services based on the theme "Light as a Symbol of Understanding."

An interesting and helpful feature of our activities is our Annual Fall Retreat, usually held at Lutherland. Here, with the aid of the S.C.M. Regional Secretary, we plan our program for the entire year.

Every one is familiar with our custom of selling candy in the dormitories. Proceeds from these sales are used to pay National and International S.C.M. pledges, and to defray expenses of conferences, community projects, and campus speakers.

Each June one or more delegates are sent to the Student Christian Conference at Eaglesmere, Pennsylvania. Last June we were represented by Clarissa Treat and Peggy Lou Thomas.

With the aid of the Student Senate we were this year privileged to send two delegates, Margaret Fueglein and Thelma Box, to the National Assembly of Student Christian Associations held at Oxford, Ohio, during the Christmas vacation.

Women's Athletic Association

One of the most popular organizations for the women students on this campus for many years has been the Women's Athletic Association. The club was organized by Miss Josephine M. Smith and its destines are now ably guided by Dr. Edna L. Rosenkrans. The enrollment of the club this year is approximately eighty members.

This year a point system has been organized to further activity. This system is designed to supply the means of presenting awards to the members who have earned enough points. A committee representing each class and the day students was appointed by the chairman.

The variety of activities sponsored by the W.A.A. is interesting and appealing to all women students. The members enjoyed in the past year the Freshman Bonfire, W.A.A.'s welcome to all new women students; the annual Christmas party, at which small gifts were exchanged, songs were sung, games were played, and refreshments were served; the Valentine party; several moonlight hikes; Gay-M Room parties; and entertainment at the regular monthly meetings which was furnished by the club members.

The club is governed by an Executive Board, which meets every month to plan the programs and to transact the business of the club. This board was comprised of the following: seniors, Marion Hull, Leota Kunkle; juniors, Elsie Bateman, Ruth Ege; sophomores, Alice Hoffman, Eleanor Matchette; and freshmen, Louise Townscend, Betty Putt. The officers of the organization are: president, Margaret Chubbuck; vice-president, Emma Schlegel; secretary, Dorothy Gulick and Betty Kuntz; and treasurer, Evelyn Davis and Hannah Evans.

The Dancing Club

The Dancing Club is an important factor in our educational program. Dancing ranks high as a means of advancing in the social life of the campus; thus, it is the purpose of the Dancing Club to promote a feeling of friendliness among the students, and to create an additional opportunity for social contacts.

In previous years the club was divided into two classes, namely, the beginners group and the advanced group. The beginners class was given only the fundamental steps in the waltz and fox-trot. This enabled them to successfully practice at our college dances and gradually improve.

The advanced dancing class differed only in subject matter. Here the latest steps of the modern dance were taught and practiced. Many of the students in this group proved helpful in guiding the beginners. As a result of these two divisions, our college dances have been most successful and enjoyable.

In 1937 the Dancing Club was composed of ninety members. At the close of the school year, the club sponsored an informal dance which was held in Wayne Gymnasium. In 1938 the club was open to beginners only. The membership numbered thirty and as a result the achievements were greater than in previous years because more time could be devoted to the instruction of those who really needed it.

We know that when you retrospect,
You'll say without a doubt;
I wish that I had learned to dance
I see where I've missed out.

The Debating Club

For fourteen years the Debating Club has been active on the campus and it can justifiably be proud of its accomplishments. Each year the National Debating Fraternity selects a national topic for debate upon which research is done by the members in the Debating Club. For several months after the Thanksgiving vacation the members collect and compile data on either side of the question, and informal debates are held in the club meetings. A regular schedule of debates is then drawn up by the student manager with the approval of the Entertainment Council. A few weeks before the first debate, a Varsity Team is chosen on the basis of constructive speeches submitted to the coach.

Mr. LeRoy J. Koehler has been the adviser of the Debating Club and coach of the Debating Team ever since its organization as an extra-curricular activity. The skill of the debaters and the increasing number of debates held each year reflect his able direction.

The 1937-38 question was: Resolved, that the National Labor Relations Board should be empowered to enforce arbitration of all industrial disputes. Those members of the club who engaged in forensic contests were: Thomas Capraro, Clarissa Treat, Robert Brown, Charles Bacal, and Clinton Roberts.

Two members of the club, Clarissa Treat and Thomas Capraro, have the distinction of composing the Varsity Debating Team and participating in a majority of the intercollegiate debates for three successive years.

Mask and Zany Club

The Mask and Zany Dramatic Club is an extra-curricular club for those students interested in developing dramatic techniques or in displaying creative talent. This club meets every second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 7:00 P. M. in the College Auditorium.

Miss Mary E. Clemens, faculty adviser of the club, has organized a number of one-act plays, representing drama, comedy, tragedy, and period plays. These programs, both cultural and entertaining, have been received with great enthusiasm and appreciation by the club members.

A constitution was written for the club by the following committee: Charles Aneda, Joseph Kulick, Carmel Malloy, Mildred Silfies, Helen Williams and Miss Mary E. Clemens, faculty adviser. This is the first constitution for the organization. It was approved and accepted by the club.

The members have displayed their dramatic ability by adding "The Late Christopher Bean" to their long list of successful productions. Mask and Zany also presented the Christmas play "Why The Chimes Rang."

"The Late Christopher Bean" was the annual play presented by Mask and Zany Dramatic Club on November 19, 1937 and was directed by Miss Mary E. Clemens, Coach of Dramatics. It is a comedy in three acts by Sidney Howard.

The entire action of the play takes place in the dining room of the Haggett home.

Mask and Zany Club

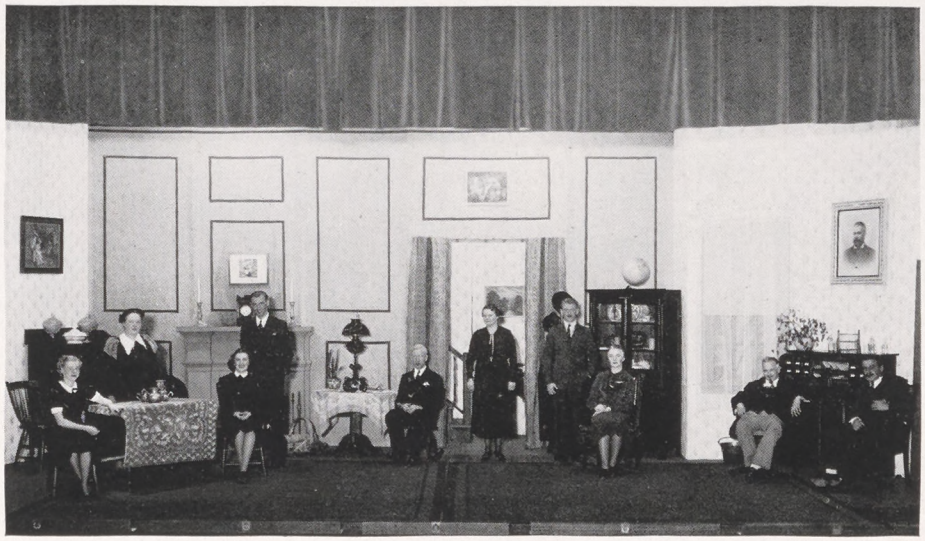

The comedy has to do with a family of New Englanders, who, years before, had given refuge to a great artist, Christopher Bean. The play opens some years after Bean's death with an excited world in pursuit of his works and any other details they could gather concerning his life and character. The good Dr. Haggett thought so little of the paintings that he used them to stop leaks in the roof, and his daughter used the reverse sides of some of them for chromos. Suddenly the world became conscious of Christopher Bean's genius. New York critics acclaimed his paintings and mysterious strangers appeared in the little New England village to buy up everything that he had ever painted. There followed a mad search through attics and cellars for the abandoned treasures.

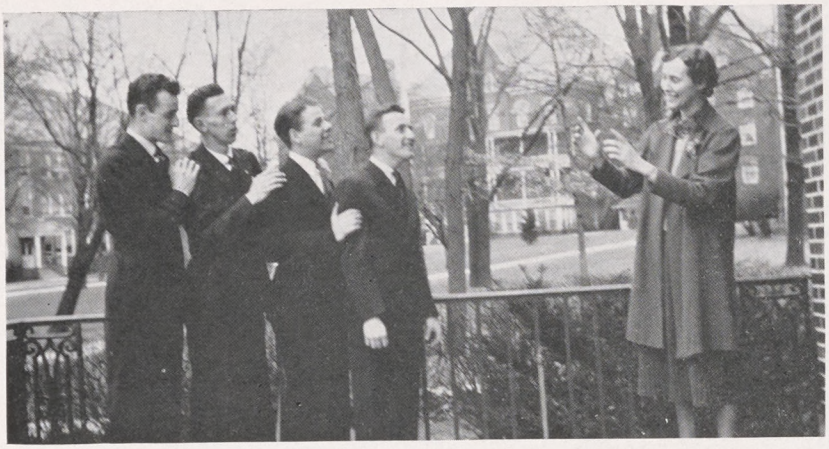

Abby, the family servant, holds them all in her power: she has one of the greatest paintings, a portrait of herself. No one can persuade her to sell or give away the portrait. She alone had sensed his aspirations and basked in the glow of his great soul. Her faithfulness to his memory drew us close to her. She won our respect and admiration when she proved herself to be the legal widow of the late Christopher Bean.

The Male Quartet

The Male Quartet is a small but well known musical group on the campus. The first male quartet was organized four years ago. The personnel of the groups has changed several times, due to the graduation of various members, and the present quartet is an entirely new one. Being underclassmen the present four expect to sing together for several years, and continue to work on various interesting types of music.

The quartet has appeared before the Lions Club, the Kiwanis Club, and several church groups. It has also participated in special programs at the college, and its members have been leaders in all the musical activities on the campus.

The group owes its success to the untiring efforts of Miss Florence Carpenter, head of the College Music Department, and Miss Eloise Edinger, its able accompanist.

FEATURES

The Library

> Consider what you have in the smallest chosen library. A company of the wisest and wittiest men that could be picked out of all civil countries, in a thousand years, have set in best order the results of their learning and wisdom. The men themselves were hid and inaccessible, solitary, impatient of interruption, fenced by etiquette; but the thought which they did not uncover to their bosom friend is here written out in transparent words to us, the strangers of another age. Emerson, Society and Solitude: Books.

We realize that the above is literally true but how many of us found the time to make the acquaintance of these master minds? The best that can be said for us is that our work here has taught us to recognize their existence. But that is a great step forward. It has taught us that our education is a continuing process.

As to the events which have happened in the library during our four-year college life that led to this recognition, we shall have more to say. Remember when we came on the campus as perfectly green Freshmen and wandered into a door marked "Library." This, of course, was during the day. There were a number of people there reading. They seemed to recognize us immediately as newcomers and looked us over. We wondered if the new Freshie was measuring up. That of course made us feel and act very self-conscious. We saw some books in a back room but there was a desk in front of the entrance guarding them so that seemed to indicate no admittance. Instead we walked across the room to some magazines, selected the Saturday Evening Post. We tried to read but somehow we could feel the back of our neck getting red, so we gave up in disgust and left.

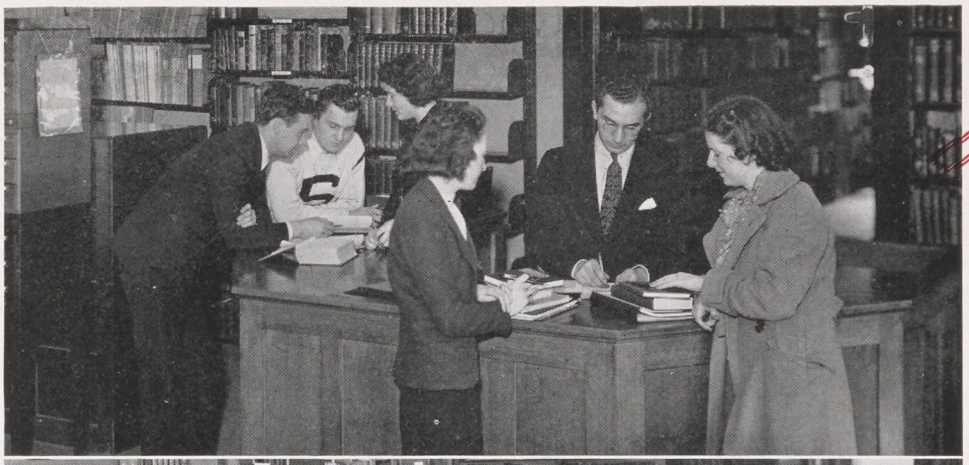

Our next encounter with the library was when we were given our first ordeal. And besides how did one get a book? Here our room mate came to the rescue. He came over with us, explained a bit about the catalog and the assignment to be done there. To brave that battery of eyes and grins was the all-importance of a call number. Then he made us look up our book and hand in the call slip at the desk. Later of course, came the short course on the use of the library. And so ended our library initiation. Of course for a few weeks we were very serious students.

The serious student angle has now departed—in part. We consider ourselves "regular"—and the ordinary day by day work continues. We use the library for: Odd facts to knock our instructors cold; general information on football, basketball, riding, tennis proper costuming for period plays produced by Mask and Zany; material on birds when we are doing our student-teaching; dates and works of speakers in assembly when we have to introduce them; jokes for our skits; material for those headaches—term papers; and of course, last but not least, reading for fun. Honesty compels us to admit, however, that we have been known to read mysteries. Should that be a capital M?

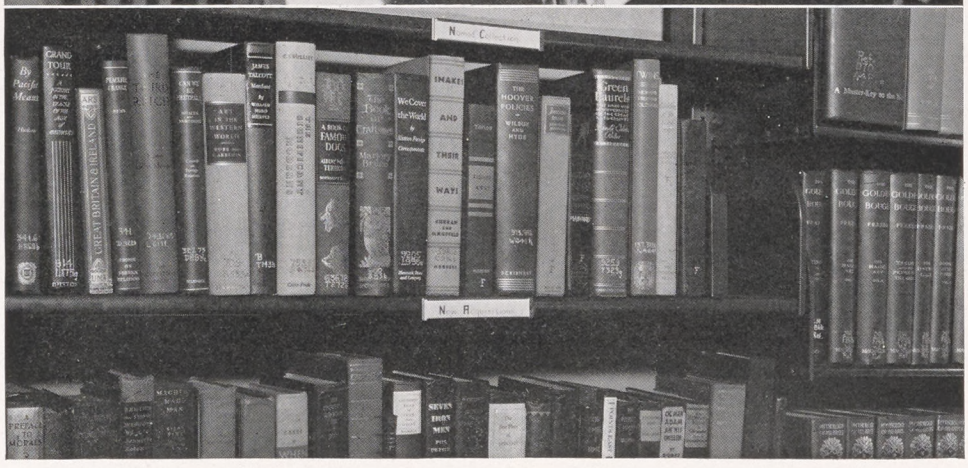

Just to have this article complete, we must have some statistics. Concerning our use of the library—one book is taken out every three minutes. This of course does not count the books used in the library. Or, from the angle of the individual student, the per capita borrowing was 7.16 books. And, this is something to brag about, the total borrowing of non-fiction books for 1936-37 was 13,356 and fiction 1,817. So we can't be such light-weight readers at that—even if we do have to make allowances for a lot of those books being assigned.

If you have often wondered how many magazines you could look over in the library, the answer is approximately 162. Also, part of our funds have gone toward the purchase of new books, during our four years the book stock has jumped from 13,768 to approximately 17,000. The final statistic which we might like to have for reference is that there was a total of 118½ hours per week of student assistance.

COLLEGE LIBRARY

Extravaganza

The Extravaganza, a combination of mirth, merriment, and a slight touch of pathos, was the outstanding musical production of 1936-37. On the evening of April 16, the congenial Master of Ceremonies, Donald Dodson, took us through the many lands concerned with opera, since music from various operas made up our theme for the evening.

The opening scene, from "Carmen," portrayed gay Spanish festivities. Although we did not witness a bull fight, the fiery dances lent a great deal of brilliance, and the vivid coloring of the costumes added to the picturesque scene.

We soon left Spain and journeyed farther South to Egypt, the land of mystery, and also the setting for "Aida." We saw a palace, in front of which were lovely Egyptian girls who blended their voices with that of our hero, Rhadames, in the ever-popular "Celeste Aida." There was a characteristic Egyptian atmosphere in the dance performed by Aida, the slave girl, who wore a striking mask moulded by Miss Violet Clark of East Stroudsburg.

In distinct contrast to this last scene, Gilbert and Sullivan next held sway, with an excerpt from "The Pirates of Penzance." This scene seemed to find the most favor with the audience. Characteristic of Gilbert and Sullivan, it bubbled over with gaiety and humor. No one will forget the pretty girls with their hoop skirts, nor the bold pirates who literally outdid themselves in winning the audience with their vigorous chorus.

Erminie, a different type, came into the foreground immediately after intermission. This was a quiet scene from the standpoint of music, costuming and setting. We went back to a drawing room of several hundred years ago, in the age of powdered wigs. The well-loved "Lullaby" of Erminie was a memorable part of this scene, following which a couple, dressed in the elegant costumes of the day, danced the minuet. A very lovely effect was given as the shadows of the dancing figures were reflected on the wall by means of the soft glow of candlelight.

Back to the lilting music of Gilbert and Sullivan. This time we heard and saw an excerpt from "The Gondoliers." Venice, with its gondolas and gondoliers, was the background for both the humor and the touching love story that made up this scene.

A scene at a masquerade was the climax of the evening's entertainment. A large group in costumes from all the other scenes, and with masks, sang the melodious "Barcarolle," from Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman." A graceful effect was gained by the swaying movement of the entire chorus, and the beautiful lighting and scenery made this a splendid close to the Extravaganza.

Much credit should go to Miss Florence Carpenter, general director and head of the music, to Miss Elizabeth Fisher for her capable work on costumes, to Miss Genevieve Zimbar for her coaching of the dances, to Miss Meralda Brennan for her suggestions in dramatics, and to all others who cooperated with these to make the program a success. To quote Sir Walter Scott, "The song has ended, but the memory lingers on."

The College Appetite

Ring....! Ring....!! Ring....!! The clanging triple-warning bell sounds the call for food. As if by magic, lights go out, doors slam, feet pound, voices expectantly rise in pitch, stairways vibrate, and the students march into the dining room. The bell signaling the prayer of thanks quenches the seething noise. Another bell...., plates are passed, and the food is distributed.

It is odd how the dining hall administration can satisfy the individual tastes of the entire throng. The diet is perfectly balanced. Carbohydrates, proteins, calories, and vitamins are closely watched and checked.

One peculiar phase of the dining hall conduct is worthy of some attention. Naturally with such a large group with common interests, there is bound to be that general atmosphere of friendly noisiness. Strangely enough the Sunday meal is lacking in this respect. One need not look very far to find the reason. The quantity of delicious viands keeps the hungry church-goers busy and speechless. Then again there is that feeling of suspense just waiting for the ice cream. Again the famous question, "Are there any extras?" Never let it be said that the Sunday meal isn't appreciated. The great number of guests and visitors who eat in the dining room in preference to a restaurant in town make this fact very clear.

Sunday evening, the dining hall again is filled. Mindful of the fact that the human stomach must be aided in its digestive function, Miss Coryell efficiently provides food of a light but highly nutritional nature. Of course, some appetites are never satisfied, and their owners betake themselves over town for that delicious dish of the Mediterranean lands,—spaghetti.

All through the week the regular dining hall menu is supplemented with some luxurious tid-bit by those who could "just eat a little more." Result:— the Hen House or the College Inn, "Rosie's" to you.

Each time the door of the Walthers establishment opens, someone fights his way through a cloud of oxidized tobacco into "Ye Aulde College Canteen," sometimes known as the "Hen-Stroud." After a twenty-five minute rest period someone is finally hailed and given an order. Nine times out of ten it's a 'burg with fried onions. Again a wait. As a gift from the blue, the simmering morsel is at last produced. "Where's the salt and pepper?" "How about some catsup?" "Don't I get any service around here?" The atmosphere is very conducive toward hygienic eating. One can actually hear a ten-ton pin drop. The college activity program is discussed and rediscussed between mouthfulls of hamburg and smoke. Never boring is the annoyance created by Johnny, Dean, or Lenny. These illustrious gentlemen would top off any meal. May we never forget them.

At "Rosie's" the atmosphere is practically the same but in a different setting. Instead of he booths we have the colonial motif. Benches are supplied for those young couples who would prefer that type of resting device to the tables of the establishment. Of course benches do come in handy after a hard day at school.

The mianight snack artists find the luncheon establishments mentioned above very accommodating to their nocturnal appetites. A bottle of pop is said to keep one awake long enough to draw from the books the necessary and very elusive knowledge.

One could go on forever talking about the appetites of the Student Eating Association. However, one thing can be truthfully said in closing. If there is any change in a student's weight, the hand on the scale usually moves in a clockwise direction.

DINING ROOMS

College Improvement

In the field of education there are two highly important things that must be taken into consideration. One is environment and the other is inheritance. Of the two it is rather difficult to determine which is the more potent, but it is sufficient to say that very little can be accomplished in an educational way unless there is a high quality of both present in society.

Ever since its birth the State Teachers College at East Stroudsburg has received its share of students who were endowed by nature with a good inheritance. These students matriculated upon a college campus that found it rather difficult to supply all the educational advantages in a material way that were characteristic of modern trends in professional schools. Each year found the facilities becoming more antiquated and it was with a great deal of surprise and chagrin that the undergrduates noted the strides that other colleges and even high school schools were making in comparison.

The promises of a better tomorrow were always in the offing and on one particular occasion it seemed as though a dream of a lifetime was to come true when plans were drawn up for a new gymnasium. Due to difficulties that are always present in government and administration, it was expedient at that time to postpone the building program until the future. Each year the promises were renewed, but many a graduating class passed through the portals without the scene changing in any of its aspects.

Finally, one memorable day near the end of the 1937 college year, Dr. Allen came before the Assembly with a joyful message that was received with enthusiasm by all those in attendance. The Governor had recently signed a legislative measure that provided for the erection of four new buildings upon the campus of our alma mater. The demeanor of the President was assurance enough that the stage of mere promises had finally been passed and that the machinery of construction would soon be humming in our vicinity. Yet, we found some doubtful souls who refused to believe. Their pessimistic viewpoint, however, failed to stifle the ardor of the hopeful one whose imagination was already refreshing his spirit with a dip in the new pool or an hour midst the beauty of the new buildings.

Democratic forms of government are slow to act. We took for granted the truth of this statement, but did not appreciate its real significance until almost a year had elapsed before the first shovelful of dirt was removed. February 14, 1938, the official Ground-Breaking Day, will always be a red-letter one in the historical calendar of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College The occasion was commemorated by appropriate exercises in the auditorium and upon the site of the new physical education building. Prominent people representing the State, the State Department of Education, the Board of Trustees, the service area, the alumni, the student body and the architects shared in the impressive ceremony. Judge Shull, of Stroudsburg, and President Allen are shown in the foreground of the picture below as the Judge "breaks ground."

The four new buildings now under construction are pictured in the pages that follow. The new physical education building will be located adjacent to the new athletic field recently constructed on the southeast campus. The swimming pool, located behind the main structure will be 75 feet in length and 30 feet wide with varied depths. The new training school will be located on the southwest corner of the campus where the girls formerly had outdoor health education. The dining hall will be constructed upon the present football field, and will be modern in every respect, containing all the features that make for efficiency and service. It will be directly connected with Stroud Hall by an overhead corridor making it readily accessible from the main entrance. To the south of the dining hall and occupying the site of the present tennis courts will be the new men's dormitory. This building will be three stories high, containing fifty-six rooms and accommodations for over a hundred students.

As the characteristic noises of construction reverberate across the campus on these beautiful Spring days in the year 1938, we allow our thoughts to take flight upon the wings of imagination. We are carried forward to the day when all construction has ceased and the fresh scars of recent activity are almost obliviated. The campus of our college days has changed, but the campus we look upon now is far more beautiful and inviting, the new buildings enhancing the scene with their grandeur, and beckoning us to enter and once more taste of the pleasures that are only found in the halls of learning.

New Gymnasium . .

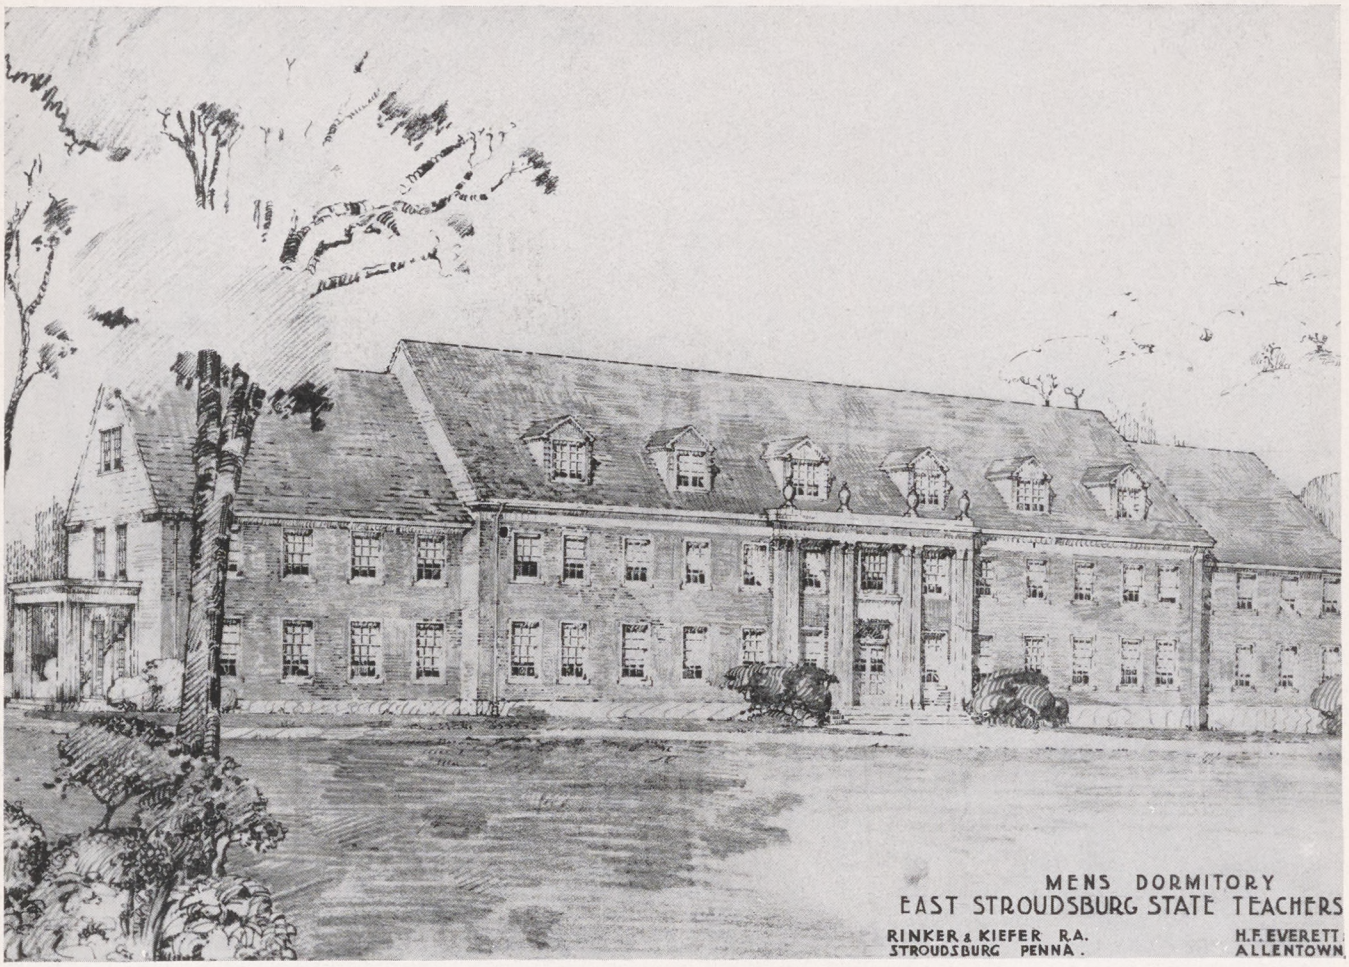

The new gymnasium, which will be erected on the present soccer field, will be the most modern of physical education buildings. On one side are the locker rooms. The swimming pool, which cannot be seen in this view, will be built on the back.

Training School . .

The new training school will stand on what is now the girl's athletic field. It is a two-story building and will contain fifteen rooms, including a kindergarten and the college administrative offices.

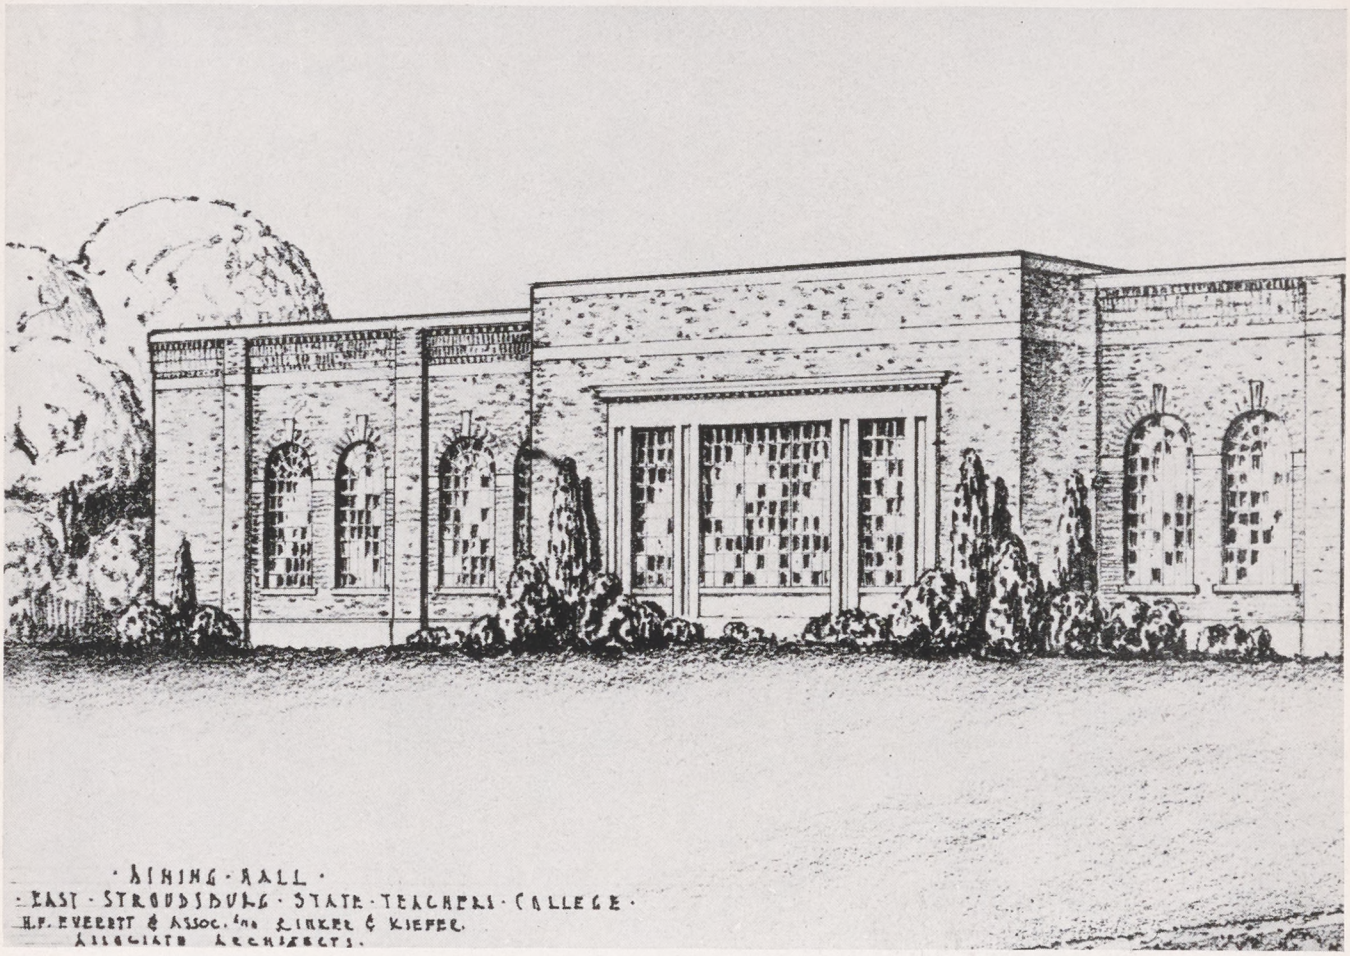

Men's Dormitory . .

The new men's dormitory, which will rise where the upper tennis courts now stand, will be a handsome three story building. The building will contain fifty-six rooms and an apartment for the dean of men.

Dining Hall . .

This is the new dining hall, which will be located on the present football field. It will be connected by an over-head passage thru Stroud Hall. Also, it will have lower entrances, for those who do not live in the dormitory.

Pocono Mountain Splendor

To the uninitiated, to him unfamiliar with the life-habits of the East Stroudsburg students, the words Sunday afternoon may conjure up visions of soft armchairs, a good book, a cozy chat, a nap. Not so for the college student, the words mean but one thing only—a hike. Like the proverbial carriers of the mail, "not storm, nor sleet, nor hail" stays them in their carrying on of the old tradition, for snow or shine sees them immediately after dinner, starting off across back campus—destination unknown—to return only as dusk falls and the 6 o'clock bell rings.

Boy-girl combinations predominate the scene with here and there gangs of he-men who prefer to stalk the bush and win the topmost point of the Indian's forehead sans feminine chatter or interference.

What does the well-dressed hiker wear! Just as the "pillared roses give place to asters and to snow," just so do slacks and riding breeches give way to mackinaws and ski-suits. Literally any costume is suitable. On this one occasion, style is completely subordinated to comfort.

Where do they go? This query is more difficult to answer. There seem to be, however, certain definite trends which hiking feet invariably follow. The cross campus, Crow's Nest, Paper Mill cycle is by far the most popular, since it is short enough to allow for idling, and since the Crow's Nest provides an excellent sunny perch from which to wave and halloo to friends along the tracks far below. Every student follows the lure of the Indian steps at least once every spring and fall and scrambling and shambling ever upward finally reaches the highest step. The fire tower at the Gap is a much more strenuous climb but all effort is rewarded by the view afforded by the tower. For the less venturous souls who prefer the beaten track rather than the byways, there are long, winding, country roads that lead away, to Minisink, to Gregory's, to Buttermilk Falls and beyond.

Who would want or even dare to diverge from such a custom with a prosaic muttering about studying, or too nasty outdoors, or too much to do? For Sunday afternoon, be it the merry month of June or bleak December, is the time for wandering, for enjoying the beauties of the Poconos that we have at our very doorstep. May this custom never die. May we ever go a-hiking of a Sunday afternoon.

Dormitory Life

The seven o'clock bell reverberates down the hallways. The dormitories remain wrapped in solemn silence for a few moments. Then the slam of a door and the tramping of feet signal the awakening of the first "early bird"—usually a waiter. With each passing moment the noise increases in volume as the alarm clocks add to the number who grope their way to and from the bathroom. The rush, "five minutes before," taxes the capacity of the bathroom to the limit.

The bell for breakfast rings and few of the fellows are still in the arms of Morpheus. A last call from about five or six students and these die hard boys are up making hasty preparation. "Save me a seat," just as regular as the rising sun, is the parting request to the roommate as he rapidly vanishes down the hall. A suede jacket, worth its weight in gold at this hour of morning, is zipped to the top; a dash of cold water and a few strokes from a convenient pocket comb and the "toilet" is completed. The rumble of the passing dishes has hardly subsided before their sleepy stares from the dining room entrance have come to rest upon the vacant chairs.

The entire day lends much to the close contact held by the students. A test in anatomy results in a "bull session" being held before the class convenes. Tom Brown receives a package from home and the boys go to town on that home baked cake. "Chick" just came back from a session at the Junior High and he feels pretty "cocky" because the pupils responded better than they ever did for the critic. After a lunch a familiar cry is heard throughout the dorms: "Who's got a cigarette," and if one is detected with a whole pack of the coveted smokes he is soon relieved of a dozen or more.

The classes over at three-thirty the corridors are once again in a turmoil as the members of the various athletic teams promenade through the halls in full regalia searching for some small piece of equipment. For those who do not participate in any sports it is a fine time to catch up on lost sleep. With about twenty good minutes of slumber still remaining the silence is broken by the sharp voice of Nick, the tailor, shouting as he opens each and every door on the floor, "Dry cleaners, special this week."

About this time the varsity teams have finished their practice sessions and the preparation for the evening meal is in order. The shower room is crowded with baseballers, trackmen, and tennis players. The mirror in the shaving room is full of faces; the reflected images cover every available space in the small area. A member of the gym team still has the habit and he insists on using the bar across the entrance for just one more giant swing. A bucket of cold water tossed upon a nude figure in the shower and pandemonium reigns. The English language is being twisted beyond recognition by some unfortunate victim in the hallway. Clad in a bathrobe, wth a towel over his shoulder and his hands full of shaving equipment, he has returned to his room to find the door locked. The practical joker has been at it again. A trip down to the head proctor for his master key is the only solution to the aggravating situation.

After dinner the study hour begins—for some. Others, dressed in borrowed finery, are on the way down town for a mere bit of relaxation. A friendly discussion on the third floor has all the symptoms of a riot. The music from a radio across the courtyard and the tinkling of the piano from the reception room are wafted in on the cool night air. Laughter and the sound of voices can be heard from the arbor, the benches, and the retreats across the campus.

The hours rapidly pass. The noise rises to a crescendo, fades, rises again, and then gradually fades away into silence.

"Sun Up"

"Twar sun-down wen ye left me, son; but ets sun-up now!" The curtains closed and opened a few minutes later to reveal the entire cast of the play to a large and enthusiastically applauding audience. Objections aroused by the choice of a mountaineer type play for a Senior Class production, were quickly withdrawn after the staging of "Sun-Up" on April 6, 1938. The only regret is that the dramatic ability of some of the Seniors was not discovered until such a late date, but luckily in time to make this dramatic production the most successful event of he year.

By very clever workmanship the stage manager and his crew transformed the auditorium stage into a simple but cosy interior of a cabin down in the mountains of Western Carolina, a few miles away from Asheville, which is known to Ma Cagle as "town." Here in this isolated spot lived the Cagles and Todds, in a little world of their own, bothered by no one except "them thar pesky revenuers" and "them feudin' Turners." Ma Cagle (Doris Pipher) was a typical mountaineer woman with a pipe in her mouth and a hatred in her heart for any and everything connected with the law. "Feudin' "was the only law she knew. Sheriff Weeks (Duke Reinisch) was welcomed as a friend, but was covered by a gun when he, with his helper Bob (Michael Oriel), came in official capacity. Rufe Cagle (Joe Glovack) and Emmy Todd (Virginia Sengon) had been fortunate enough to secure some "larnin'." Bud (Aldo Gavazzi), considered mentally deficient, was content to follow them without question. So, all in all, the two families lived a peaceful existence until Sheriff Weeks brought news of a war in France, which Mr Cagle presumed must "erbout a days jerney frem here." Rufe, a true American, felt duty bound to go and fight for "his home, his hills, and his wimmen fo'ks." Before he left, Emmy accepted his proposal instead of the Sheriff's (even in the hills the eternal triangle is present), and the "cultured" preacher (Mark Chesnutwood) pronounced Ruf and Emmy, man and wife. This gave Pap Todd (LeRoy Weiss), weakened by age and too much "co'n likker," a chance to celebrate. Although Ma Cagle declared that "them thar Yankee's ain't wuth fightin' even if they air Germans," Rufe departed from home at sundown. Occasional letters brought word from him. Months passed. Cold winter storms brought to the cabin a stranger (William Craley), an army deserter, whom Ma Cagle protected even when it endangered her life. When, however, word came of Rufe's death, and the Sheriff informed her that the Stranger was the son of the Turner who had killed her husband, Ma raised her gun to kill him. Just at that moment, love stirred her heart and she heard the voice of her son saying, "As long as thar is hate, thar'll be feuds and wars." The sun broke through the clouds just then, Ma Cagle forgot her hatred, and the stranger went free. It was truly "Sun-Up" for everyone.

Registration Day

Registration seems to appear, as one looks back, a vague, hazy sort of experience viewed thru the mists of time and confusion. It's all a little awing at first. Here one is miles from home and lonesome, lonesome in spite of the hundreds of people one's own age who are thronging this place which is to be our home for four years.

At first glance, as one stands in the midst of his heap of luggage that represents about the only familiar thing around, it seems that everyone knows everyone else, that everyone knows so definitely where to go and what to do once he is there.

Timorously we approach a most confident looking fellow, a Senior by the looks of him. "Excuse me. I just got here. Could you tell me where I should go and what I should do?" He looks us over from the tip of our painfully new shoes to the top of the hat we hope is collegiate and then replies, "Gosh, are you a Frosh too? I was just going to ask you the same question you asked me."

Strangers in a strange land we are so we combine forces and manage to reach the Dean's office. After being pushed unceremoniously around for a half-hour by a group of fellows one would never take for upper-classmen, we meet the Dean. He's an awfully nice fellow and so glad to see us, so solicitous about our welfare, so anxious to learn how we are making out on our first day. Surely all those things we've heard about Dean's being so stern and implacable can't apply to this charming gentleman. Well, we came to college to learn.

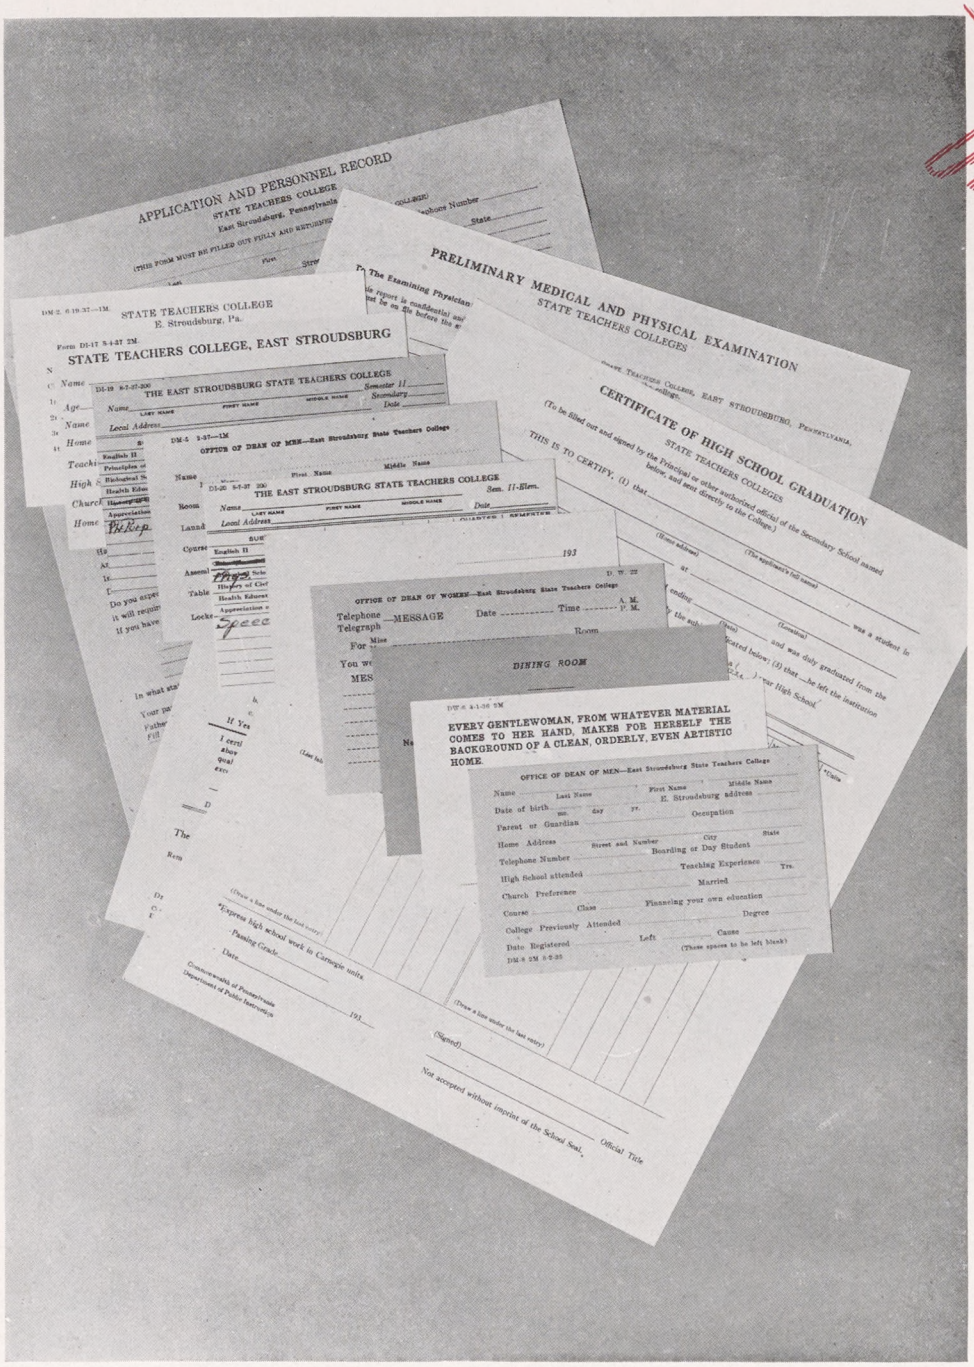

It's in this office that we first become slightly entangled in the maze of red-tape that keeps us forever tied to the filing cases in the offices of the various administrators of the college. Cards are placed in our hands, and we are requested to fill them out. As we painfully try to put down all the information wanted we little realize that from that moment on we shall be filling out cards, receiving cards, handing in cards, worrying about cards, hoping to get cards, praying we won't get cards until the day we receive our diplomas. For every office on the campus has on hand hundreds and hundreds of cards, large, small, and medium of all the colors in the rainbow. Some are agreeable, they mean checks are in, requests are granted, phone calls or telegrams have come for us, a book we want is waiting to be called for; but others mean trouble of all sorts and intensity. Our sins have caught up with us; that class we skipped, that night the girl forgot to sign out, that book that is overdue, that night we threw someone's mattress out in the hall, that time we played checkers with the furniture in the room above the Dean's apartment. There are a thousand things that cards can mean, and they're always so cryptically alike—"Please call at this office as soon as possible." Invariably the reaction is the same, "What did I do now?"

But those are all things that we are, mercifully, not aware of as yet. Just now we have a fistfull of cards of different colors. Each has a purpose and destination but we don't know what or where it is.

From the Dean's office we are sent to Oakes Hall. No sooner do we put our noses in the door than people begin demanding cards. We offer them first one and then another until finally they are satisfied. As we start off again we realize that, strange and impossible as it may seem, we have acquired more cards.

And so it goes all through that first day. Every official we meet wants a card or has a card he wants to give us. The appetite for and the supply of these pasteboards seems never-ending.

Betty Mosteller Made New Yearbook Chief

At a meeting of the Junior Class, Friday, February 25, Miss Betty Mosteller was elected editor of the Stroud yearbook for 1939. Bernard Gazan and John Fern were candidates for the office of business manager. Mr. John Fern was elected. Thomas Blewitt president of the class, conducted the meeting.

Dean Ruth Jones Attends Convention

Miss Ruth L. Jones recently attended the annual convention of the National Association of Deans of Women as a part of the American Council of Guidance of Personnel Associations held in Atlantic City at the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall Hotel. The convention was in session from February 23 to 26. Miss Jones reports that she found it a very inspirational and worthwhile conference. The conference was attended by people

Art Students Enjoy Trip to New York

Wednesday morning at 6:45 a merry crowd of thirty four students, four town women and Miss Marion Satterwhite left by bus for New York City, where they spent the day visiting major spots of interest to art students in that city.

After their trip, which took them through the Hudson and Holland Tunnels and along the Hudson speedway, they made their first stop at 9:15 at Riverside Church, where they spent almost

Training School Pupils Take Voice Course

Members of the Speech Problems Class, under the direction of Miss Clemens, are now getting actual experience and practice in carrying out the theory and printed page directions of this course.

The voices of all the kindergarten children of the training school have been recorded, and one child has been assigned to each student of the speech class who has the task of working with the child twice weekly, diagnosing his speech difficulties, and doing all he can to correct the youngster's speech defects.

This experiment is a new and valuable innovation in the curriculum of both the college and the training school.

If sucessful in this trial, the college shall have advanced one step farther in producing good teachers.

Doris Pipher Takes Lead in "Sun-up"

John Fern To Lead Junior Prom Committee

Buck Hill Falls Inn will be the scene of the Junior Promenade Saturday evening, May 14. John Fern has been appointed general chairman for the dance committee.

The following committees have been appointed: orchestra committee, Charles Knudson, chairman; Larry Nase, Marion Rhoades, Bernard Gazan. Menu committee, Estelle Steinrich, chairman; Elsie Bateman, James Miles, Dorothy Shinn; finance committee, Will Wood, chairman; John Wallace, Dr. Charles Vibberts; invitation committee, Robert Brown, chairman; Betty Mosteller, Anna May Badoud.

The program committee and the transportation committee will be appointed later.

Senate Passes Rules About Activity Cards

1. Of interest to all students is the bulletin board notice to the effect that "In accordance with instructions from the College Senate and the Activity Council, the door keeper is not permitted to allow ANYONE to enter athletic events who does not have his Student Activity card, a properly authorized complimentary ticket, or a paid admission". This notice is signed by the Activity Councils, and will be rigidly enforced.

FACULTY REGULATION CARDS

2. At the Senate meeting last Tuesday evening the council activity cards in admitting the families of the faculty to activities. The interpretation was that the faculty card would admit the faculty member and wife or husband and any children under college age.

Senior Play Will Be Given On April 6

Doris Pipher has been selected to play the leading role in "Sun-Up", the senior class play to be held Wednesday, April 6 at 8:15 p. m. in the college auditorium.

The play reading committee was composed of Dorothy Baecker, Thomas Capraro, Mark Chestnutwood, Donald Dodson, Helen Williams and Miss Mary E. Clemens.

"Sun-Up" is a drama in three acts. It is a folk play with a universal appeal. This play is one of the great American dramas. The scene is laid in the mountains of western North Carolina, near the city of Asheville. The time is June 5, 1917.

A committee composed of Dr. Edna Rosenkrans, Miss Charlotte Ayrees and Miss Mary E. Clemens who held the try-outs the week of February 20, have announced the following cast: Widow Cagle, Doris Pipher; Pap Todd, LeRoy Weiss; Emmy, Virginia Sengon; Rufe, Joseph Glovak; Bud, Aldo Gavazzi; Preacher, Mark Chestnutwood; Stranger, William Craley; Jim Weeks, Edward Reifsch; Bob, Michael Oriel.

Students Invite Guests To Dance

Seniors Profit On Benefit Performance

"Once more the seniors ring down the curtain on a successful week—both in finance and in entertainment!

Today ends a week of benefit performances held at the Sherman Theater. Two excellent movies, added to two different vaudeville shows composed by student talent and enacted by talented students, provided a week of enjoyment to townsfolk and members of the College Community.

Annual Affair Will Be Held March 19

The annual "Guest Dance" for which each student is permitted to invite one guest, has been set for March 19, 1938, at 8 p. m. in the State Armory, East Stroudsburg. The student is required to place the name of his guest in the hands of Dean DeNike or Dean Jones, and he will receive a card of admission.

The attention of the students is called to the receiving line the night of the dance which will give the student an opportunity to present his guest to the members of the faculty.

Mr. Koehler Speaks To Teachers Association

Mr. LeRoy Koehler, head of the social studies department, spoke on the "Present International Crisis" at the meeting of the Monroe County Teachers' Association. Mr. Koehler has spoken on this timely subject at several gatherings in Monroe County.

The meeting was held at Clearview School Monday evening February 28, at 6:30. The main business of the meeting was the adoption of the constitution drafted for the organization by a committee headed by Mr. Carl Secor. Following the general meeting, Dr. C. J. Naegle, Dean of Instruction, addressed the elementary group.

A luncheon was served by the women of the P. T. A. of the Clearview School.

Cast Is Selected For Spring Extravaganza

The Extravaganza which will be presented Friday, April 29, 1938, is based on a plan similar to that of last year, in that the musical numbers are taken from favorite scenes of certain popular operas including "Samson and Delilah", "Faust", the "Gilbert and Sullivan light operas", "Princess Ida", "Gondoliers" and "Pirates of Penzance". There will also be two dances included.

Almost all of the chorus members have been selected and the following soloists have been chosen: Frederick Church, Eleanor Dartt, Selma Glantz, Lillian Hamblin, Robert Hontz, Eleanor Kaplan, Kathryn Mayer, Emma Schlegel, Molly Seem, Elizabeth Small, Eugene Smith, and Esther Stewart.

The orchestra has begun practice on certain numbers for the Extravaganza.

The costume crew and stage crew will soon start work. Anyone desiring to participate in any of these groups should notify Miss Florence Carpenter at once.

Art Club Promotes Drive For Painting

Within a short time the Art Club will send to the various extra-curricular groups on the campus letters asking for their support in a drive to secure enough money to purchase an oil painting by Cullen Yates, N. A., resident-painter of Monroe County. The Art Club has already begun the fund. Certainly a project such as this, which will benefit the entire school deserves the support of our entire school student body.

The college, at the present time, has no such works of art. Students who have travelled to other colleges have found many such paintings and have noticed our luck Cullen Yates, who is an internationally recognized artist, will sell the paintings to the school at less than half-price. The student body is expected to cooperate with the Art Club on this project.

Party To Be Held Saturday, March 12

The Kiddie Cut-Up party sponsored by the Sophomore Class will take place Saturday, March 12, from 8 p. m. to 11:45 p. m. There will be dancing in the gymnasium to the recorded rhythms of Benny Goodman, Glen Gray, Tommy Dorsey, Hal Kemp and Guy Lombardo. Because of the complete informality of the dance, guests are requested to dress as kiddies or to wear other costumes. Hot dogs, pop, ice cream, candy, and chewing gum, refreshments in keeping with the spirit of the party, will be on sale.

Some activity has been planned for every minute. There will be no intermission, but between dances several entertainment features will be presented. Novelty dances, tag dances, and Paul Jones dances have also been arranged. The sophomores invite all students to attend.

Senate Members To Attend Conference

At the last meeting of the Student Senate, four delegates were chosen from the senior class to represent East Stroudsburg at the annual conference of Eastern States Association of Professional Schools for Teachers, to be held the week-end of April 7, 8, 9 at Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City.

The delegates chosen are: Lillian Metzler, Edna Reeves, Herbert Luff, and James Loughney, president of the Student Congress. A faculty adviser has not yet been chosen.

Divided into three groups, faculty, student, and faculty-student, the program will be a panel discussion in which certain delegates are chosen to cover special phases, an open forum with all questions discussed, and a general meeting, in which everyone contributes informally.

Men's Hall Parties To Be Held Monday Night

The members of the Men's Executive Council will hold hall parties for the men students at 8 o'clock, Monday evening. Roland Seiler is the general chairman. Dean Howard DeNike has announced that an alphabetical list of all the men day-students will be posted in the men's club. Each student has been assigned to a particular hall and is asked to go to that hall.

Each hall will present a separate entertainment which will be under the supervision of the proctors on that hall. Refreshments will be served.

Following is a list of the men in charge: First floor Stroud, entertainment, John Carr; refresh-

Don't Be Mis-lead

Into believing that the 1938 Stroud, as it appears before you, reflects our personality as printers. A book may be beautiful from the physical point of view, and it is true that the completed product is invariably used as an indicator of successful production. But beneath all that proves materialistic, beneath all physical revelation, there is need for natural and un-forced "service," the silent and undecorated partner in any cooperative business enterprise. Service suggests latitude; service means flexibility. To us it is as important as all other printing and publishing operations combined.

"Knowing How"...

is a fifty-fifty combination of ability and experience.

When it comes to photography, we're particular about quality; we fuss with true rendition; we're dotty on the subjects of lighting, color harmony and rythm of composition. Maybe that's why we get along so well with particular editors and advisers.

An intelligent service endowed with a spirit of friendly cooperation has been the important factor in bringing Zamsky Studios to the position of leadership in the school annual field.

Maybe that's why so many schools turned to us this year for their photography. We hope you will turn to us soon and we invite your inquiry.
