

One interesting story I have about our house + this "small" world is that right before our wedding my mom + I were at Lazarus waiting in the julep dept. when a lady commented on my engagement ring. This led us into a conversation about my upcoming wedding and more from my rural small town to the "big city". She asked where we were going to live and I told her Glendale. It turns out her aunt + uncle were the ones that built the house. I can't remember the name one part of the couple, but apparently they lived here quite a while + raised a family. Funny how this chance meeting made me feel like Glendale was going to feel like home + it really does.
