HEADACHE CURES

There are a great many of them; Some cure, some do not. Some are dangerous, others are harmless. Then there is nature's cure—waiting for it to stop—a very disagreeable and annoying cure. Then there is the bandage and the sleep cure, always inconvenient and some times not a cure at all. Then there is Sayre's Headache Powders which do not depress the heart, contain no injurious drugs or chemicals, are perfectly harmless but cure nearly all headaches in a few minutes. We make them.

The Argument - Part Second.

Happy Maids churn the golden butter; they catch a glimpse out of the past and are off to the evening milking. Farmer Jim driven to the very depths of despondency, is in need of encouragement, which he receives from neighbor Joe and the Judge, but Monica proves to be the Queen of Bananarians.

The Jolly Gentlemen (Farmers' Brigade) returning home engaged in their favorite pastime, receive a surprise from the Commodore, whose reputation is seriously affected by the arrival of the Doctor, who rings the death knell to all royal affections in the heart of the "man of war."

Farmer Jim interrupts an ardent colloquy. Hope once more illuminates the sky. The Doctor catches the inspiration, and together they depart a happy pair.

Margery indulges in retrospection, and the busy Judge pauses a moment to paint a picture of life, when the evening bells announce the close of day. The Queen echoes the strain, which is taken up and born out over the hills to the Maids and Farmer Boys, who return from labor.

Ruth makes a startling announcement as the Vesper Song comes floating in from the neighboring chapel. The wedding bells peal forth, and the entrance of the bridal party evokes a merry demonstration of "All Hail to the Farmer's Bride" and happiness reigns in the home of

"THE MERRY MILK MAIDS."

The Argument - Part First.

The Milkmaids' greeting to the early morning is answered by the Farmer Boys on their way to the field, and the tinkling bells from the pasture lands join in the merry refrain.

The Farmers' Brigade is out in early training; the Village Judge passes that way, adjusts matters and departs with best wishes of all as the two Jolly Farmers appear, and the Maids are off to the milking.

The Commodore takes advantage of circumstances, is surprised by the Doctor, but, being "a man of wonderful brain and nerve power", he eludes his persecutor. The Dairy Queen, comes in from her morning walk in time to welcome the Maids, who return with flowing pails.

Dorothy relates her morning adventure and receives kindly advice, when footsteps are heard and the Beggar (the Commodore in real life) appears and tells his tragical tale of misfortune. He departs in disgust as Farmer Jim enters with confessions to learn that his declaration has been so long deferred, and that he is, alas! too late.

The milking is done, but the buckets and pans must be polished. The Peddler (the Doctor in disguise) enters with his wares. Both has a bit of romance to relate, and Mother Monica, the Indian fortune teller, appears with startling revelations, as the Farmer Boys return from the fields amid hearty demonstrations of welcome.
