Hep, Hep, You're in the Army Now, Boys

A detachment of drafted men drilling on the parade grounds at Fort Dix, N.J. One of the first items in the training of the draftees is to learn the rudiments of precision. During these drills they learn to respond to the many commands used in close order drill.

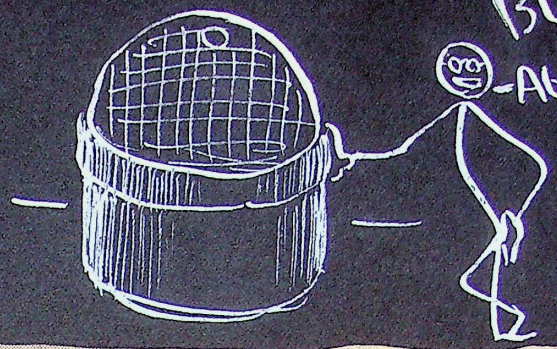

"The best buglers in the fort," that is the reputation enjoyed by the two men who awaken the boys in the morning and sound them off in the evening. They are, left to right: Corporal Theodore Wilson and Private Isaac Ancrum, both of New York City.

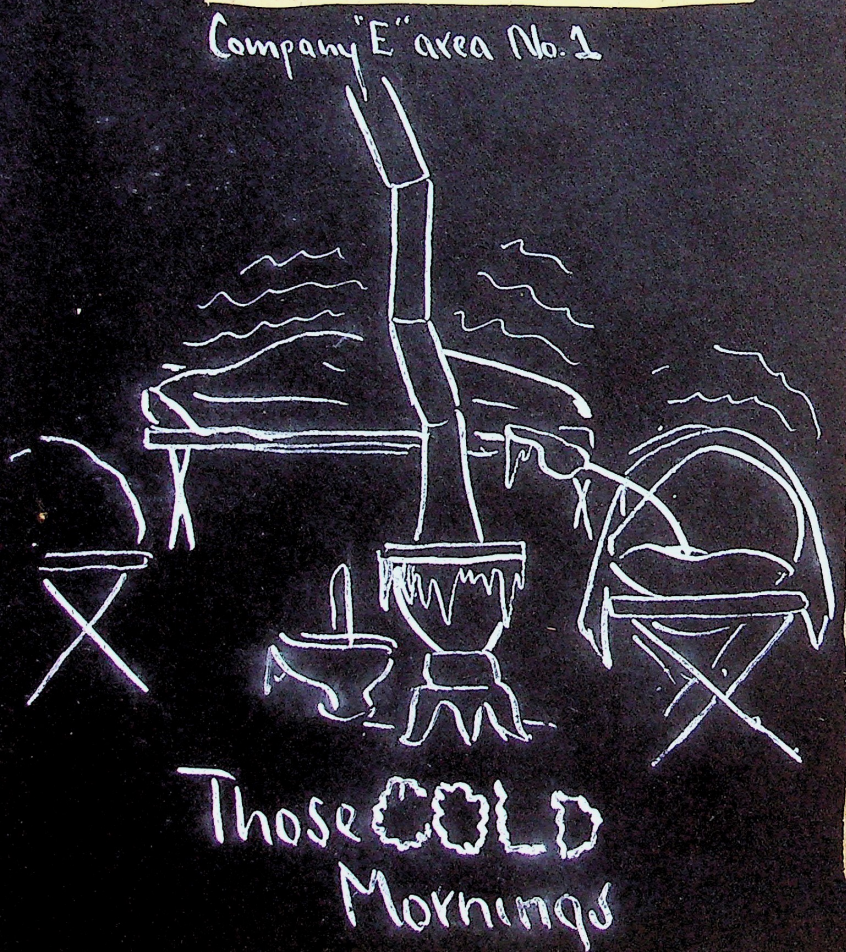

Present site of Co. E, 1st Receiving Battalion, encamped at Fort Dix. Here draftees are sent for their first taste of army life, are equipped, acquainted with fundamental military rules and regulations and later a few are dispatched to camps in Virginia and Arizona.

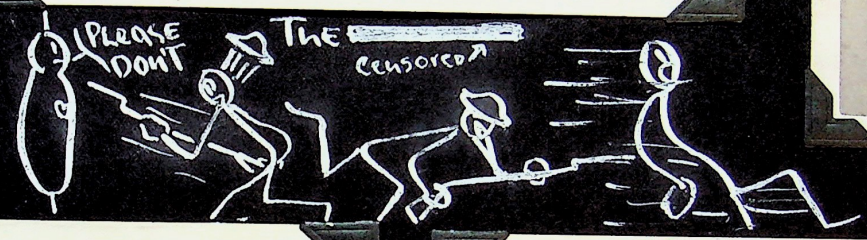

These are the commanding officers of Co. E, 1st Receiving Battalion, who are in complete charge of the 338 selectees in camp. Left to right: Capt. William B. Edelin, company commander, Washington; Capt. C. C. Burke, executive officer, Washington; First Lieut. Henry J. Scott, administrative officer, Wilmington, Del.; First Lieut. N. P. King, duty officer, Washington; First Lieut. Fred D. Durrah, duty officer, Plainfield, N.J.; and Second Lieut. A. N. Fearing, supply officer, Washington.

COMPANY "E", FIRST BATTALION
1229TH RECEPTION CENTER
FORT DIX, NEW JERSEY

July 4, 1942.

SUBJECT : Letter of Recommendation.

TO : Whom It May Concern.

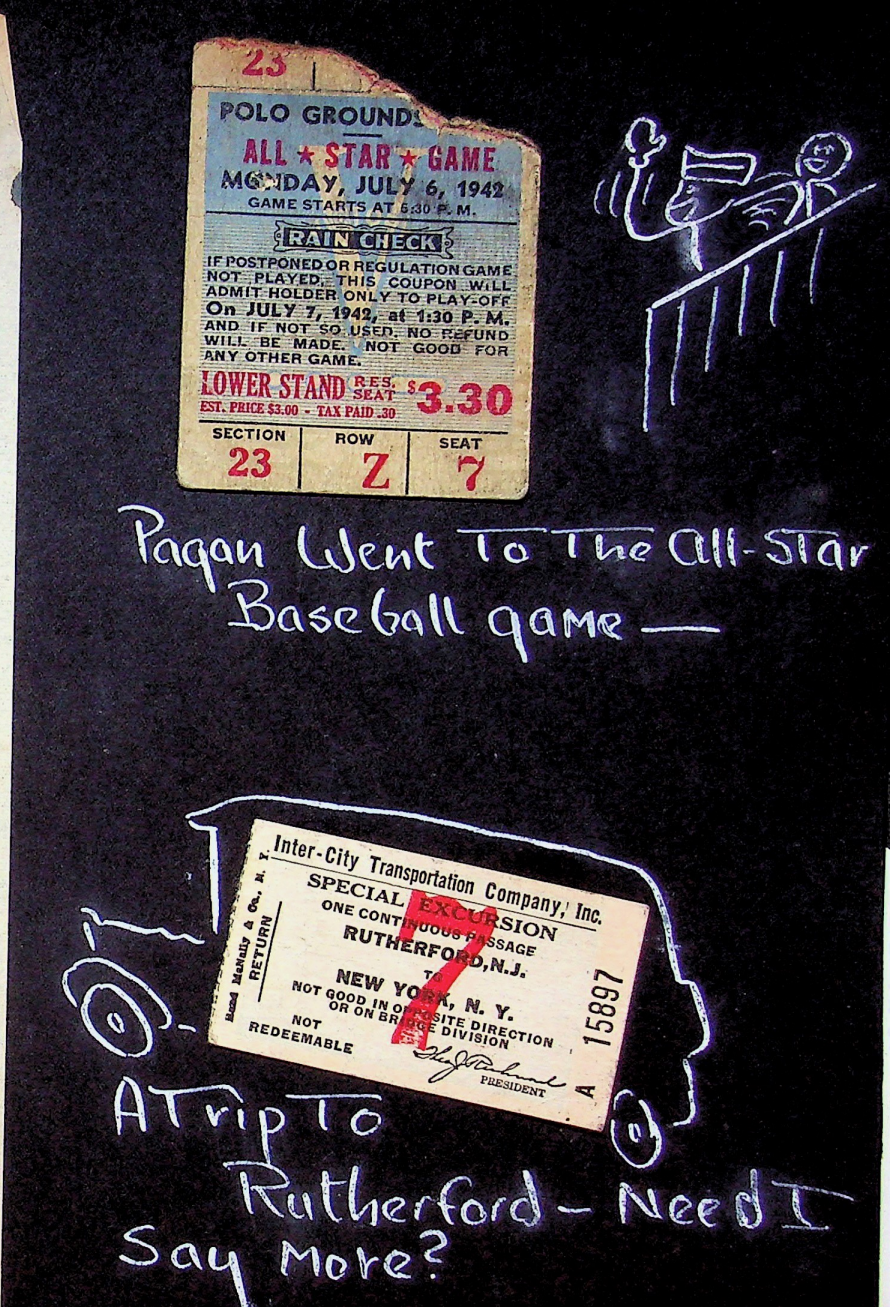

It has come to my attention that Sergeant George A. White, has indicated a desire to apply for Officer's Candidate School.

Sergeant White has been a line sergeant and barracks commander in Company "E" during the entire six months that I have commanded this company.

I know him to be loyal, ambitious and energetic and one of the finest drill sergeants that has ever been my pleasure my pleasure to command.

Therefore may I recommend Sergeant George A. White to your board as excellent officer material.

WILLIAM B. HAGAN,
Captain, Infantry,
Commanding.
