

Mindy Oldham is 55 years old as of March 2026. She lives along the Ohio River in southern Indiana. Her occupation is Administrative Support for a cardiology office.

Her hobbies include a love of gardening, reading, writing, visits with her grandsons, spending time outdoors, and turkey hunting with her husband, Tim Oldham, Jr.

With her husband being an artist and turkey call maker, Mindy has been living in a world of everything related to wild turkeys.

In 2023, she attended a book seminar at the National Wild Turkey Federation's convention, organized by Mossy Oak and Brent Rogers. As she listened to the authors talk about their books, she realized she had a story to tell.

Her first thought was, "How am I going to write a book?"

Mindy went straight home and started researching and writing. She needed a WHY! Her first WHY was to write a book for her and Tim's three grandsons to read when they were old enough to. Her second WHY was the thought that she might inspire someone else with her story. Armed with these two WHY's, she then took a very important step forward. Her mindset shifted from "How am I going to write a book?" to a very positive "I am going to write a book and become an author!" She did just that!

One of her greatest days was July 1, 2024, the day she held her book in her hands. The day the dream of her book "The Chase" came true.
